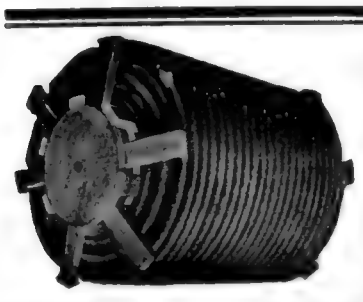
The Market.

Brisk business has characterized the last week. Stock has increased, owing to the mild weather and several days of sunshine. Bulbous stock in great variety is conspicuous on the market. White roses in all lengths are plentiful. Orchids, gardenias and sweet peas are abundant and of excellent quality. These are nearly all from local greenhouses, as few flowers are shipped into this city. Violets are becoming scarce. Lilies continue in excellent supply and are used extensively for funeral work, which has been heavy during the last week. Green carnations for St. Patrick's day sold at good prices and in large quantities. Shamrocks also sold well.

Many florists are holding special sales of cut flowers and ferns during the Lenten season, in order to stimulate trade in the retail stores. The windows of the flower stores present an attractive appearance, with their combinations of new spring baskets and spring flowers, besides the great variety of blooming plants, which are selling well. There is a supply of fine pansy plants on the market. Lilacs are over, but there are many antirrhinums, English daisies and mignonette.

Various Notes.



Herman H. Leitz, of the New Haven Floral Co., New Haven, Ind., was a visitor to this city last week, looking over the stock of the largest growers. Mr. Leitz had just returned from a week's trip to Chicago, where he visited Poehlmann Bros. Co. and several other large concerns. His firm is busy planting the young rose stock in the two new houses, 28x232. Ophelia, Killarney and Russell will be the varieties grown this year.

Miss Margaret Vesey has just been elected president of the Duodecimo Club, a prominent literary club of this city. Some fine Cattleya labiata are being cut at the Vesey greenhouses; also gardenias and some splendid Shawyer roses.

Miss Marguerite Flick, of the Flick Floral Co., went to Kendallville, Ind., last week with an elaborate funeral order and decoration, which included several large baskets of Easter lilies and Richmond and Shawyer roses.

George Pandell, a Greek florist who has been in business for several years on the north side of Calhoun street, has just been made manager of the Fort Wayne Flower Shop, which started business February 1. This is a cut-rate store and sells shipped flowers exclusively, advertising on a large scale in the daily papers.

Markey Bros. have been exceedingly busy with large funeral orders. R. F.

Half Iron Frame Talk No. 2. Wood Sides.

YES, we do build some wood sides; but concrete costs so little more, if actually any more, that fully 75 per cent are now being built that way.

But if you do want board sides, this illustration shows you exactly how we construct them. The wrought iron side post you must, of course, bed in a concrete footing. It's the surest way of making it solid and preventing sags and a wobbly looking eave line.

Before making up your mind to build a Half Iron Frame House, just let us tell you full particulars of the full iron frame. Perhaps it may, after all, fill your needs better.

You know you can depend on depending on Hitchings. And we go anywhere for business.

Every part is named. Exactly what you see is exactly what you will get.

Your Ideas and Ours

No doubt your experience has been the means of giving you a few ideas about the way in which you would like your greenhouse built, and would like to see them worked out. Our many years' experience has taught us many things about greenhouse construction and what not to do. We will be glad to hear from you and about your ideas, and will do our best to incorporate those that are practical in our plans for you. There never was a better time to build than right now.

Two heads are better than one. Let's put ours together.

Range of Greenhouses which we built for Mr. N. Grillo, Rose Grower, of Milldale, Conn. There is absolutely no shade in these houses. The Jacobs patented construction eliminated it entirely.

ANY GROWER WHO WANTS HIS GREENHOUSE BUILT at the lowest cost, and in the shortest time, consistent with good workmanship, can get just what he desires by employing the Jacobs organization for the job. This is a fact which is conceded by many of the biggest greenhouse owners in the country.

While we have been at it almost half a century, we come to you not only with the knowledge accumulated through all this experience, but we are always right up with the times on what's what, and what's new in Greenhouses.

When you think of a greenhouse, no place in the U. S. is too far for us to go to submit specifications and prices.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The supply of stock is hardly up to that of the corresponding time in past years, as far as quantity is concerned. However, it is meeting with an active demand that is keeping the market pretty thoroughly cleaned up. Shipping trade is good. With the exception of two days last week, when openings took up every available rose, the supply of roses was equal to the demand. Carnations, on the contrary, are short of actual needs. Easter lilies are not nearly so plentiful as they were. The cut of callas and rubrums is sufficient for present needs. Sweet peas are plentiful and find a good market. Daffodils and jonquils are in good supply, but tulips and Dutch hyacinths may be had only in limited quantities. Lily of the valley continues to be plentiful. There are fair consignments of violets, orchids and snapdragons. With the exception of smilax, greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Among the Cincinnatians who will attend the National Flower Show are C. E. Critchell, J. A. Peterson, R. Witterstaetter, Henry Shepard and Richard G. Kootz.

C. E. Critchell has been having a good call for baskets for Easter.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been receiving large lots of excellent valley for more than a month.

C. H. H.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The Lenten scare is about over and the retailers are booking a large number of good orders for decorations for teas, luncheons and parties, although in society these events are known by other names, as charity affairs, etc. Single violets are less plentiful and higher in price. Despite this, large quantities are being sold on the streets at prices with which the storekeepers cannot compete. Lily of the valley continues to be of poor quality, but is bringing $5 per hundred. The demand for American Beauty roses has been good and the price on these now is from $4 to $7.50 per dozen. There was a heavy run on white carnations last week for the green carnation business.

Various Notes.

O. A. C. Oehmler, of 1329 G street, northwest, complained to the police last week that his store was broken into and his desk rifled. The thief entered the place through the cellar and made off with about $20.

Charles E. Pierce, of Bowen road, passed away March 14. Further details are given in the obituary column.

Plans are being made locally for the observance of Mothers' day, Sunday, May 14, following the conclusion of Babies' week.

FIBROUS-ROOTED BEGONIAS.

I would like to ask about the propagation of fibrous-rooted begonias. I have had trouble and know of others who have had similar experiences. Most of the cuttings run up like whips, while some branch and make nice plants. We have tried breaking them back, but they do not grow at all after that. My experience has been with the red Vernon. E. S.—N. Y.

Most of the fibrous-rooted begonias propagate easily. Vernon is one of the easiest, but to secure the best type of cuttings you should head back your stock plants some time before you need the cuttings. You will then get more succulent cuttings, which will root with ease and make better plants than those obtained from flowering shoots. The plants of this begonia produced from cuttings are not so well habited as seedlings. Since they are grown with such ease in this way, why not try this plan in preference to rooting cuttings?

Begonia incarnata should be cut back and rested a little; then, if watered, it will give a crop of nice, juicy cuttings. Begonia Glory of Cincinnati and Gloire de Lorraine come best from leaf cuttings, but if headed back a nice crop of shoots will start from near the base. The flowering wood is of no value. B. Gloire de Chatelaine is of easy propagation. B. semperflorens rubra, B. Haageana, B. Scharffiana and B. nitida will root with ease in any warm propagating bench. Be sure the sand is porous, in which case a watering each morning can be given until roots are forming; then reduce the supply and pot up the plants in a light compost before the roots are too long and the wood becomes hard. C. W.

PLANNING A GREENHOUSE SITE.

I notice that from time to time The Review is asked to criticise plans and arrangements of greenhouses. I am enclosing two rough sketches, one of which is intended to give a general idea of our site and its surroundings, while the other sketch shows the proposed position of the greenhouses with reference to the residence, barn, service buildings, orchard and other features of the grounds. Please note the remarks accompanying the sketches and judge accordingly, for if these plans are radically at fault I wish to correct them before it is too late.

You will observe that we are situated on the south bank of a lake, that we have close railroad facilities south of our grounds, and that on the north and west sides we are protected by good windbreaks, composed of large willow trees and a 12-year-old orchard. In the sketches the service buildings are located with a view to the possibility of running a spur track, sometime in the future, southward along the east side of the grounds, for the hauling of coal, etc. I wish to arrange the north side of the grounds as attractively as possible, as the front approach to the place. H. D. L.—Minn.

The sketches show two greenhouses, 27x100 and 28⅔x100, running east and west, with a barn across the west end and with the workshop, potting room and garage at the east end. In one sketch the office is shown at the northeast corner of the north house, while in the other sketch the office and a semicircular palm room are at the middle of the north side of the north house. As nearly as can be determined without knowing more about the surroundings, the general arrangement suggested will be satisfactory, although the placing of the palm room at the middle of the north side of the north greenhouse might complicate matters, both in joining the houses and in connecting the heating systems.

Another way of arranging the houses would be to run them north and south, with the service rooms at the north end. The barn could be detached and located to the north and east of the houses. The office could be at the west end of the potting room, and when other houses are built to the west, a semicircular or rectangular palm house could be built at the north end of these houses.

Marysville, Kan.—H. R. Fisher is having an automobile made to order, a three-in-one as it were, it being intended to serve as a runabout, delivery and touring car.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

NATIONAL SHOW SETS NEW HIGH RECORD

Philadelphia, with the fourth S. A. F. exhibition in progress this week, is making a new mark for national shows in America. The quality of the stock exhibited never has been surpassed and the quantity of it is so great as to overtax the capacity of the largest hall in the city.

THE great exhibition in progress in Philadelphia this week has demonstrated, clearly enough so that all may see, that the problem confronting the S. A. F. in preparing for the Fifth National Flower Show is not one of exhibits, of attendance or of balancing financial accounts, but of adequate facilities for holding such large exhibitions as national shows in America now have become. It may be said, of course, that not outside the three big eastern cities, Boston, New York and Philadelphia, which in turn have had the show in spring, is such an exhibition possible, but it is the fact that from the beginning the national flower shows have each shown an advance from every point of view, so that they now quite eclipse every other trade event in the year in which they are held. It certainly is so in Philadelphia this week.

The show that opened in Philadelphia March 25 was the result of two years of work on the part of a body of men of unusual ability and filled with the determination to spare no effort to make a new mark in flower show annals in America. They are succeeding to such a degree that it was found Convention hall is entirely inadequate. Although it is the largest in Philadelphia, the building is filled so full that it is safe to say the show would create a better impression if each exhibit could have been allowed twice as much space. The opportunity for artistic arrangement was lacking; the most perfect specimens of blooming plants were of necessity packed together until their individuality was lost, and even at that the aisle space for the accommodation of those who pay the admission fee is much less than it should be.

Loss of Two Sundays.

Perhaps the exceptional success the show is scoring is in part due to a series of fortunate circumstances that cannot be relied on for the future. At any rate, everything has been in favor of the exhibition except the city police administration. The show was opened on Saturday afternoon for the purpose of including Sunday, March 26, and it was planned to keep it open to include Sunday, April 2, mindful of the splendid Sunday crowds obtained in other cities. But these plans were made without consultation with the authorities. At the last moment the opening of the doors on the Sabbath was forbidden by the police because of a city ordinance forbidding entertainments charging an admission fee on Sunday. The order came so late that news of it could not be generally disseminated. Sunday was a rarely beautiful spring day and in the afternoon many thousands thronged to the hall, 50-cent piece in hand, only to be turned away by the police. Only members of the S. A. F. were admitted. Chairman Asmus places the loss in revenue at $5,000 for the day. Others put it higher.

Efficient Management.

Convention hall is nearly a half-hour's ride by street car from the center of the city, but any handicap thereby imposed seems to have been fully overcome by the splendid publicity the show has had and is having. The advertising end was placed in the hands of W. F. Therkildson, publicity man of the Burpee organization, and the result has been an exploitation the like of which no flower show ever has known. Hundreds of columns of text and whole pages of pictures have appeared in the newspapers and it is safe to say every person in Philadelphia who can read is aware the flower show is in town this week. Of course the attendance is large, the hall being well filled from the moment the doors were opened. A. Herrington, of Madison, N. J., is superintendent, assisted by Guy W. French and Joseph Beaver, of Chicago. They had everything ready at the opening hour, when addresses were made by several prominent Philadelphians interested in floriculture and replied to by Dan MacRorie, Robert Craig and George Asmus, representing the S. A. F. and the show management. The board of judges is in charge of C. H. Totty and began at once on a task of large proportions, rendered more difficult by the scattering and crowding of exhibits. The customary dinner to jurors was given at the Hotel Walton on the opening evening.

The Arrangement.

Convention hall is a great barn of a structure, built entirely of wood. For once the sign "No Smoking" means exactly what it says; the police see to it. The building has an enormous balcony, unavailable for our purpose. Temporary flooring covers the seats on the main floor, making as large a space as ever has been available all on one floor for any show, but the overhanging balcony cuts the open center small. The building occupies a whole city square on Allegheny avenue at Broad street, setting back a sufficient distance to afford space for an outdoor display that does much to let the public know what may be seen inside. The space at the right of the entrance is used by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., for a display of evergreens in a large number of varieties, the card stating that the stock was grown by Koster & Co., Boskoop, Holland. The Broad street corner is used by H. F. Michell Co., and a unique display of bulbous stock is made. The bulbs were planted and flowered in wood boxes and not until the morning the show opened were they brought to their present location. The boxes are in most cases covered with sod, producing a highly effective illusion of a bulb garden in full bloom weeks before its time. The front of the entrance is decorated with the evergreens exhibit of Adolph Mueller, Morristown, Pa.

A Riot of Color.

Entering the hall, the first impression one gets is that no available inch of space has been permitted to go unused; that the building is much overcrowded. Then one begins to appreciate the brightness of the coloring in the picture and the details, one by one, become apparent. At the left is a beautiful tea garden, conducted by society ladies of the city, a different organization each day. In front of it, and also at the right of the main passageway, are exhibits of the retailers. Around the wall, under the balcony, are the trade's displays, with the competitive exhibits in the center. At the far end, in the center, is the band stand, while on either side rise terrace like steps, used on the opening day for the display of bulbs and similar small stock, on Monday for the rose show, on Tuesday for carnations and on later days for other special exhibits. Of course, as the show progresses the crowding of exhibits increases.

The Outstanding Features.

The impressions created by the show are varied and interesting. Many trade visitors speak first of the size of the show, of the great quantity of material. Others, especially the retailers, first of all note the conglomerate effect the crowding produces and shake their heads over the difficulties the management has encountered in installing a three-ring circus in a one-ring tent. Indeed, one of Philadelphia's leading retailers canceled his application for space when he found how crowded the show would be and how impossible the decorative effect he sought.

But two out of every three trade visitors, after making the rounds of the show, comment first of all on the quality of the rose gardens, and plants and on the acacias. Those who have attended either of the two preceding national shows are familiar with Thomas Roland's group of hard-wooded plants, acacias and ericas, but this time he has outdone himself. There is a full carload of stock in this one group, brought from Nahant, Mass., the acacias in many instances being the largest and most perfect specimens ever seen in America. The pity is this one group could not be given one-third the total space inside the balconies, so that the individuality of each plant might stand revealed.

The Rose Gardens.

The rose gardens are as wonderful as the acacias. Perhaps first of all the exhibit of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., deserves to be mentioned. Its like never has been seen, for here are 1,000 plants of hybrid tea roses in about seventy-five varieties, all in flower. The display is surrounded by a low garden fence, with arched entrances. Inside are four large beds, the pots obscured by tanbark. At the intersection of the walks is an aquatic pool scarcely less attractive than the roses, of which it is said

General View of the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, Looking from the Balcony Above the Entrance.

1,800 plants were forced to insure the perfect maintenance of the exhibit for nine days. An interesting point is that though this is one of the notable exhibits of the show, and awarded two gold medals, it really is a trade's display, the house of Dreer paying $1,200 for the use of the space occupied.

M. H. Walsh, of Woods Hole, Mass., brought a large display of the ramblers for which he is famous. It is called a New England garden, but the only effort for effect is to group the plants, all of which are large and in tubs, around a sundial.

The rose gardens of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., and Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, were planned for effect and are splendid examples of the decorators' art. The Craig garden is surrounded by a representation of a marble wall, while the Pierson artist chose a simple rustic fence. In each case the ramblers clamber over the enclosure, in the Pierson display almost covering it. Pierson has a bed of roses in the center of his lawn, while Craig uses a fountain. The judges had a difficult time over these rose gardens, and it may be said that any one of the four principal exhibits of rose plants would have been made the central and most conspicuous feature of any previous show.

Gardeners' Participation.

No account of the special features of the show would be complete if it did not include some mention of the splendid manner in which the private gardeners of the vicinity have come to its support. Philadelphia is famous far and near for the skill of its gardeners and the liberality of their employers. Nearly every prominent estate in the vicinity is represented and it will be found that nearly all participate in the distribution of the awards, published in full farther on in this article. One of the features of their displays, aside from the high quality of their specimen plants, was the number of groups of mixed flowering plants, all more or less impressionistic in the color effect produced, but none the less excellent. William Kleinheinz, of the Widener estate, is chairman of the committee on exhibits and among his assistants has Thomas Logan and Thomas Long, which to those who know will in a measure account for the strength of the gardeners' showing.

The Retailers' Exhibits.

While the retail florists were required to purchase trade space for their displays, they deserve to be classed among the special features of the show instead of in its commercial section. The Philadelphia retailers never before have come to the front in the way they have done for this show. The pity is they could not be given more space; the retail exhibits alone would make a creditable flower show.

Charles H. Grakelow furnished a dining-room complete and is putting on a fresh and distinctive decoration each day. Vollers' House of Flowers has a garden scene, with marble furniture; the flowers are plants in baskets and cut stock in vase arrangements, changed daily. J. Wolff Myer shows a dinner decoration, starting with an immense heart of pink sweet peas and changed daily. John C. Gracey has basket and flower bowl arrangements in his booth. The London Flower Shop features flower bowls of many wares. John J. Connelly Estate has a display of doves, ribbons running from a central one, representing the store, to each of sixteen others representing the Main Line towns the store serves.

Harry S. Betz Nursery Co. and John Kuhn show Easter plants, some of them made up in baskets.

In the competitive classes Charles H. Fox entered for the Public Ledger trophy for a study suitable for its pictorial section cover and won with "A Bit of Old Rome," pictured in The Review some time ago.

A novelty that attracted much attention and which will be seen at more than one show of the future is the retailers' "Art Gallery." This is a large room with rich red hangings in which are a number of boxes with deep gold frames to represent paintings. In each frame and illuminated by a shaded light is a beautiful basket or vase of flowers. Among those who are assisting in maintaining the art gallery are Wilhelm's Logan Flower Shop, Rupert Kienle, Vollers' House of Flowers, George Williams, Edwards Floral Hall at Atlantic City, M. J. Callahan, C. H. Grakelow, J. C. Gracey and several who place no cards on their exhibits.

The Aquarium Exhibit.

In connection with the show there was an exhibition by the fish fanciers of Philadelphia and vicinity which stretched clear across the rear of the building and attracted a surprising amount of attention, not only from the public but from the trade. Many florists obtained a new idea of the value of goldfish as a side line with flowers and the result will be an increase in the number of retail stores in this trade that will handle fish.

The aquarium exhibition was in the hands of a committee of which Franklin Barrett was chairman and his display, really wonderful for its staging as well as for the quality of the fish, was half of the whole. The other exhibitors were John R. Clarke, of Frankford, Pa.; Harry J. Peters, John Audsley, Wm. Peck, J. Klipper and R. J. Schaeffer, of Philadelphia.

New York Day.

New York day at the show, March 28, did not quite come up to the advance notices; the special train carried about 200, the small attendance being due, probably, to the fact that such a large number of New Yorkers had been at the show on its opening days, also to the regrettable circumstance that the weather turned from delightful spring on the day the police kept the people away to raw, wet March for the New York visitors.

There were refreshments en route and dinner was served in the Pennsylvania dining-room on arrival at Broad street station at noon, the dinner party being considerably augmented by the participation of the reception committee and many New Yorkers already present at the show.

The affair was in charge of A. L. Miller and Frank Traendly, assisted by energetic committees, and was used by the press department for liberal show notices in the Philadelphia papers.

The Rose Plants.

While the rose plants are a notable feature of this great show, the groups of Henry A. Dreer, Robert Craig Co., A. N. Pierson and M. H. Walsh, already described, constitute the greater part of the display and include all the outstanding exhibits. These growers are the only exhibitors in the classes for commercial men and in the classes for private gardeners Wm. Robertson, gardener to John W. Pepper, Jenkintown, is the only exhibitor who entered in more than one class. As before stated, the displays arranged for effect are splendid and the specimen plants are good, especially the large plants of M. H. Walsh. Tausendschon is easily the finest variety in the show. The awards were:

COMMERCIAL CLASSES.

Display of rose plants arranged for effect, covering 500 square feet—Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, first; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., second; M. H. Walsh, Woods Hole, Mass., third.

Display of rose plants to cover 200 square feet, arranged for effect—A. N. Pierson, first; Robert Craig Co., second.

Specimen Dorothy Perkins, Lady Gay or Minnehaha—M. H. Walsh, first.

Specimen Tausendschon—A. N. Pierson, first.

Specimen Hiawatha—M. H. Walsh, first.

Specimen excelsa or Crimson Rambler—M. H. Walsh, first; Robert Craig Co., second.

Specimen Mrs. M. H. Walsh or White Dorothy Perkins—M. H. Walsh, first.

Specimen any other single-flowered variety—M. H. Walsh, first; A. N. Pierson, second.

Specimen any other double-flowered variety—A. N. Pierson, first; M. H. Walsh, second.

New variety, not in commerce—M. H. Walsh, silver medal; A. N. Pierson, silver medal; R. Witterstaetter, Cincinnati, silver medal.

In awarding a gold medal for the exhibit of hybrid tea roses by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., the judges feel that a special word of commendation should accompany the award. Never before at any flower show in the United States has such a result been achieved. The patience and interest required to accomplish this result is worthy of our sincerest appreciation. The exhibit as arranged deserves the approval of the most artistic and will surely be a factor in making the Philadelphia show a success.

PRIVATE GARDENERS.

Six climbing or rambler roses in three or more varieties—J. H. Dodds, gardener to John Wanamaker, first; Wm. Robertson, gardener to J. W. Pepper, second.

Specimen Dorothy Perkins—Wm. Robertson, first.

Specimen Tausendschon—Wm. Robertson, first.

Specimen Hiawatha—Wm. Robertson, first.

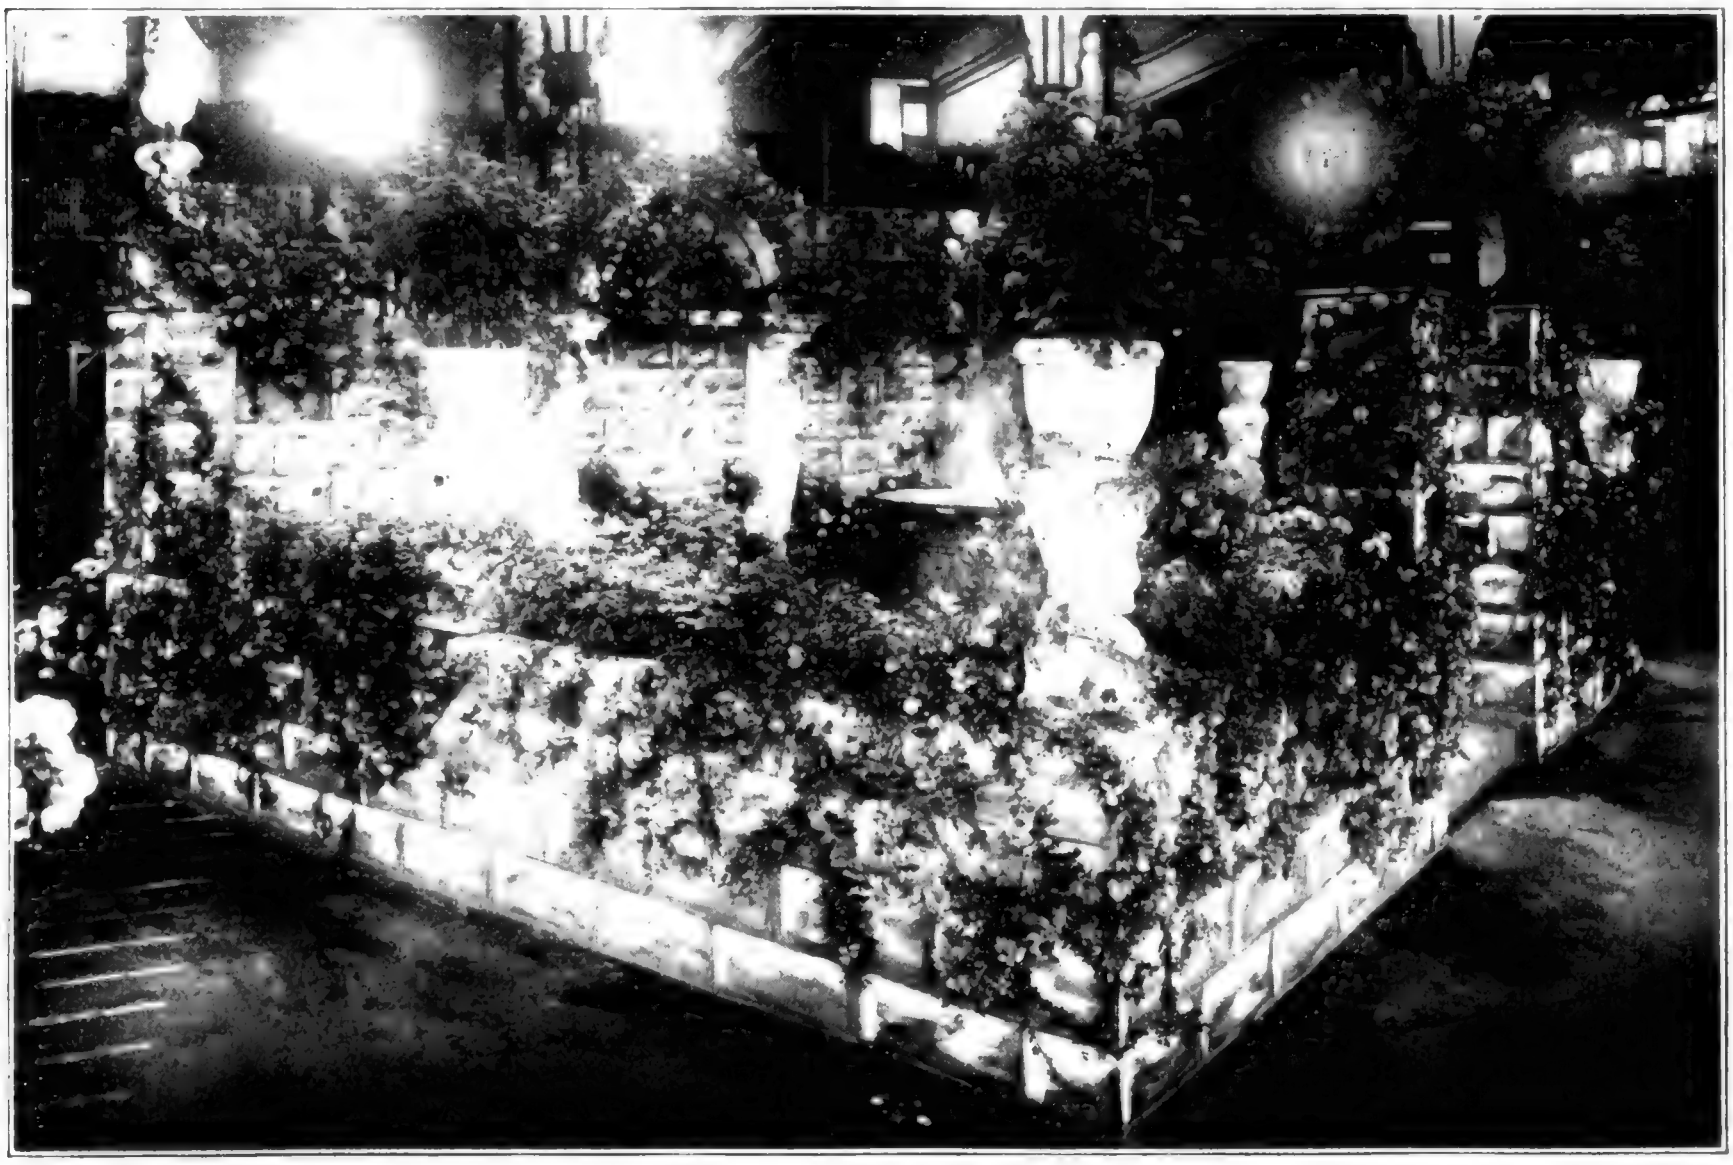
Specimen excelsa or Crimson Rambler—Wm. Robertson, first.

Specimen Mrs. M. H. Walsh or White Dorothy Perkins—Wm. Robertson, first.

Specimen any single-flowered variety—Wm. Robertson, first.

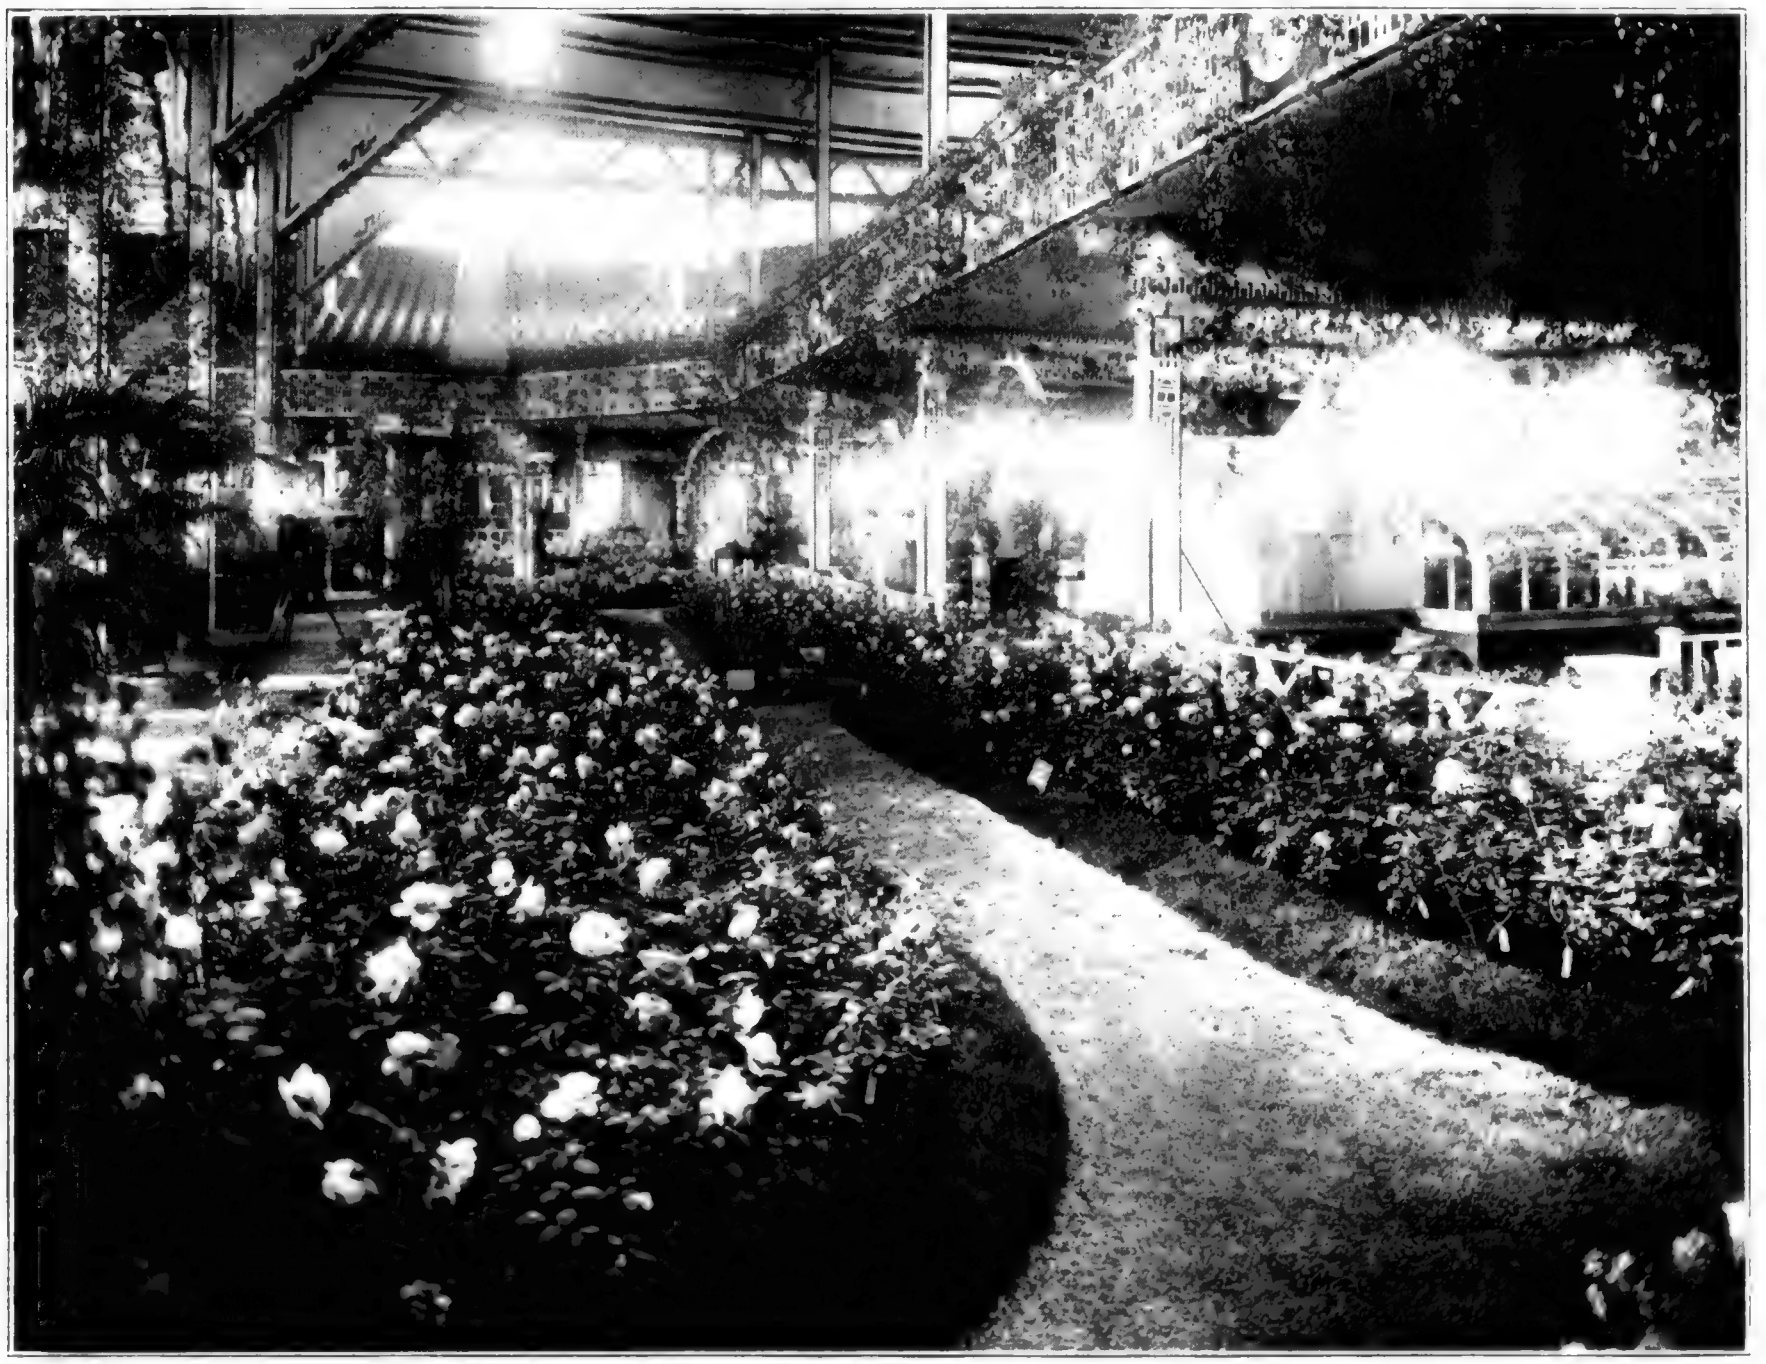
Specimen any double-flowered variety—Wm. Robertson, first.

Six plants hybrid perpetuals—Wm. Robertson, first.



Twelve plants dwarf polyanthas—Wm. Robertson, first.

Collection of hybrid teas in bloom—Wm. Robertson, first.



Cut Roses.

The cut roses in this exhibition constitute the most wonderful showing ever seen in America. This part of the National Flower Show is in charge of the American Rose Society and the display is the largest in the annals of that organization. There were seventy-four classes for commercial growers and all but three classes filled, the total number of entries running to 175.

But this rose show is a record for quality as well as for size; the equal of these roses never has been seen. So magnificent is the quality that, as one exhibitor was heard to remark, one was "mighty fortunate to get second in such company." Surely it was a surprise to more than one man who, knowing the unusual merit of his own roses, was unaware of an equal advance on the part of his competitors and came to the show expecting to make a killing.

First Prize Rose Garden Display at the National Flower Show this Week, Staged by the Robert Craig Co.

Hybrid Tea Roses in Pots, the Trade's Display on Which Henry A. Dreer was Awarded Two Gold Medals.

The nearest approach to such a clean up was by the Joseph Heacock Co., which, with seventeen entries, took seventeen prizes, eleven firsts, five seconds and a sweepstakes. It was quite freely conceded, even by competing exhibitors, that no one ever before had come to a rose show in this country with so large and so fine a lot of flowers as did the Heacock concern at this time. The Hadley and the Killarney Brilliant excited special admiration, but A. S. Burns, Jr., was able to take one of the Hadley firsts away from the Heacock entry, and A. Farenwald did as much with Killarney Brilliant, showing the keenness of the competition.

Hadley was quite the sensation of the show. A rose that many growers, especially in the middle west, tried and discarded as hopeless, here showed up in the hands of several exhibitors as the finest rose in sight today. A reconsideration of previous conclusions is demanded. Richmond is gone, at least for this season of the year; only a few flowers of indifferent quality were shown. Milady and Francis Scott Key were not in the ascendant. Hoosier Beauty was Hadley's only rival.

The best Mrs. Russell came from a Wisconsin grower. This show probably marks the passing of Killarney, at least as an exhibition flower; it does not in any way compare with Killarney Brilliant, which was shown by several growers so well done that nothing but Hadley could stand comparison by those who seek quality stock.

But there are many other good roses in this show; variety is not lacking. No one ever saw finer Ophelia, Shawyer, Radiance, Maryland, Mock, Sunburst, Ward or Lady Alice Stanley. Myers & Samtman took three firsts on Beauties over rather strong competition.

The new roses in this show are not especially numerous and nearly all have been seen at one or more fall shows. Among miniature or corsage roses the E. G. Hill Co. shows Tip-Top, yellow, sometimes known as Baby Doll. Myer Heller, of New Castle, shows Rosalie, a new bright pink. C. H. Totty shows Cleveland, pink. The Waban Rose Conservatories show Dark Pink Russell. A. N. Pierson, Inc., shows Red Radiance and Mrs. W. R. Hearst.

The awards were as follows:

Palms and Foliage Plants.

Perhaps the palms and foliage plants suffer more than any other class of exhibits from the overcrowding of the hall; these specimens and groups need space if their perfection is to stand revealed. W. A. Manda is the principal exhibitor in the commercial classes, but the Robert Craig Co. is well represented by its crotons, dracænas, ficus and phœnix. Each of these exhibitors has an excellent group.

Among the private gardeners who brought their finest palms and foliage plants were J. H. Dodd, E. A. Schmidt, Wm. Robertson, Wm. Kleinheinz, Thomas Long and the Bodine estate. From the number and size of the specimens it would seem that they must have virtually emptied their conservatories for the occasion and the plants were in all cases perfect examples of the gardeners' art.

The awards were:

Ferns and Selaginellas.

The ferns are an especially strong feature of the show. In the commercial classes J. A. Peterson & Sons and W. A. Manda show splendidly finished Cibotium Schiedei, and F. R. Pierson is well represented with nephrolepis varieties. The private gardeners have brought their best. J. T. Whittaker and Thomas Long have wonderfully perfect adiantums and T. W. Logan has a cibotium that possibly is the largest in America. Wm. Robertson has a splendid example of the staghorn fern and the specimen brought by J. Goodier is scarcely less perfect.

The awards in the fern classes were:

COMMERCIAL GROWERS.

Bulbs in Flower.

The bulbous stock is almost entirely by the gardeners. The notable exception is the Michell Dutch garden, which was awarded a gold medal and a cash prize of $150. The Robert Craig Co. has a fine show of lilies.

But there were seventy-three classes for bulbous stock open only to private gardeners and nearly all filled with from two to half a dozen entries. In spite of the complaints that are heard of the poor flowering quality of many of the bulbs this season, all these exhibits were fine. Nearly all classes were for named varieties, so that the following list of awards will show what each gardener had for his best:

COMMERCIAL GROWERS.

Lilies, fifty pots—Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, Pa., first.
Narcissus, twenty 10-inch pans, six or more varieties—A. E. Wohlert, Narberth, Pa., first.

Bulbs in Flower.

The bulbous stock is almost entirely by the gardeners. The notable exception is the Michell Dutch garden, which was awarded a gold medal and a cash prize of $150. The Robert Craig Co. has a fine show of lilies.

But there were seventy-three classes for bulbous stock open only to private gardeners and nearly all filled with from two to half a dozen entries. In spite of the complaints that are heard of the poor flowering quality of many of the bulbs this season, all these exhibits were fine. Nearly all classes were for named varieties, so that the following list of awards will show what each gardener had for his best:

Plants in Flower.

The two principal exhibitors of blooming plants were the Robert Craig Co., which had twenty-four entries in the show, taking twenty-four premiums, and Thomas Roland, whose acacias were the marvel of the exhibition. The Craig entries were especially meritorious in bougainvilleas, hydrangeas and rhododendrons. Julius Roehrs Co. also had fine rhododendrons. W. A. Manda showed anthuriums, Azalea mollis and a good group. Knight & Struck Co. had a group of small hard-wooded plants arranged for effect and Wm. Sim's pansies had many admirers.

Among the gardeners' exhibits there were many fine things, not the least of which were Wm. Vert's hybrid amaryllises. Wm. Kleinheinz deserves special mention for acacias, large azaleas, forced lilacs, rhododendrons and his group. J. H. Dodd brought excellent anthuriums, gardenias, lilacs, primulas and pansies. Wm. Robertson was the largest exhibitor in these classes and was specially strong with his cyclamens, hydrangeas and rhododendrons, his Pink Pearl being exceptionally well flowered. Other entries that are worthy special comment are David Archer's genistas, W. L. Ellis' primulas and standard heliotrope, John Gribble's schizanthus, R. Abeneritz's spiræa, John Dunn's schizanthus and cinerarias, and Joseph Crowther's cinerarias and primulas. Thomas Logan brought fine wistaria.

Group of flowering plants and bulbs—John Dunn, first; Wm. Kleinheinz, second.

Group of blooming plants and foliage plants—W. L. Ellis, first; J. H. Dodd, second.

Group of flowering and foliage plants, arranged for effect Joseph Crowther, first Mushrooms, best plate—Mrs. Chas. Wheeler, first; John Dunn, second.

The Orchids.

The schedule for orchid plants was divided into two sections, one for commercial growers and one for gardeners, but the display deserves to be treated as a whole. Meritorious as were the specimen plants entered in the various classes as for the appended prize list, the groups were the special feature. Largest of these was that of Louis Burk, gardener for C. Wurst, of Olney. This was staged in the English style, against a 10-foot rockery wall. Composed chiefly of cattleyas, it was one of the exhibits that in any previous show would have been considered a milestone. Squarely in front of the main entrance a pyramidal group embracing a large number of species was staged by J. Goodier, gardener for C. G. Roebling, Trenton, N. J.

Of the commercial men's orchid groups that of Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., easily was first. Wisely, the exhibitor refrained from using too much stock, so that the individual merit of each plant could be seen. In the center was an illuminated picture effect with a beautiful plant of Miltonia St. Andre.

The awards on orchid plants were:

COMMERCIAL GROWERS.

Plants in variety, covering 100 square feet—Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., first.

Twelve plants, distinct varieties—W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., first.

Six plants, distinct varieties—W. A. Manda, first; Julius Roehrs Co., second.

Cypripediums, twelve plants, six or more varieties—Louis Burk, first; J. Goodier, second.

Cypripedium, specimen—Louis Burk, first; J. Goodier, second.

As One Approaches the National Flower Show this Week.

The Carnations.

The American Carnation Society had charge of the carnation classes, which were staged Tuesday, March 28. The flowers were given a place on the aisle next the roses and, taken as a whole, the display was of fine quality, although not so large as might have been expected at a national show and especially as this exhibition celebrates the twenty-fifth anniversary of the A. C. S., each winner of a first prize to receive one of the commemorative medals.

The awards were:

COMMERCIAL GROWERS.

One hundred blooms white—Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., first, on Crystal White; A. A. Pembroke, Beverly, Mass., second, on Matchless.

One hundred blooms flesh pink—A. A. Pembroke, first; Wm. Wunder, Philadelphia, second.

One hundred blooms light pink—A. A. Pembroke, first; Cottage Gardens Co., second.

One hundred blooms dark pink—A. A. Pembroke, first; Cottage Gardens Co., second.

One hundred blooms red or scarlet—Cottage Gardens Co., first; Wm. A. Dawson, Willimantic, Conn., second.

One hundred blooms crimson—J. W. Minnott Co., Portland, Me., first; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., second.

One hundred blooms variegated—Halifax Garden Co., Halifax, Mass., first; E. F. Lieker, Lansdowne, Pa., second.

Sweepstakes for best vases in the foregoing classes—Cottage Gardens Co., silver medal on Crystal White; A. A. Pembroke, bronze medal on Pink Sensation.

Fifty White Wonder—E. F. Lieker, first; L. H. Dudman, Llanerch, Pa., second.

Fifty any other white—Strouts, Biddeford, Me., first; Halifax Garden Co., second.

Fifty Enchantress Supreme—Halifax Garden Co., first.

Fifty any other flesh pink—Cottage Gardens Co., first; Strouts, second.

Twenty-five blooms crimson—Wm. Graham, Greenwich, Conn., first; Hamilton Farm, second.

Twenty-five blooms variegated—Thomas Gaynor, first; W. L. Ellis, second.

Twenty-five blooms any other color—W. L. Ellis, first.

Not For Competition.

There were, of course, numerous exhibits not entered for competition. Among them were:

R. Witterstaetter, Cincinnati, showed some handsome plants of a new rose, a sport from Tausendschon identical in every respect except color, which is bright deep pink.

Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, sent two vases of Carnation Belle Washburn, which traveled well and stood up several days.

John Savage, of Gwynedd, Pa., showed vases of a fine silver pink snapdragon.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., staged a table of a new fern, described by its name, which is Cyrtomium Rochfordianum compactum.

F. H. Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind., staged an excellent group of Primula malacoides rosea in several sizes, which attracted much attention because of its bright rose-colored flowers.

The Lectures.

The lectures in connection with the National Flower Show are proving an even greater success than was expected. There are two series, one for the evenings, the other for the afternoons, arranged by J. Otto Thilow, and the large audiences and the close attention given the speakers indicate the interest gardening topics hold for Philadelphians.

The evening course in full is:

March 25—"Home Grounds," illustrated, by W. N. Rudd, of Morgan Park, Ill.
March 27—"What Science Has Done for Floriculture," illustrated, by Prof. E. A. White, of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.
March 28—"Roses," illustrated, by Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa.
March 29—"Civics for Home and Municipality," illustrated, by J. Horace McFarland, president of American Civic Association.
March 30—"Flowers from Snow to Snow," illustrated, by J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, under the auspices of the Garden Clubs of America.
March 31—"Agricultural Exploration in China," illustrated, by Frank N. Meyer, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.
April 1—"Gladioli," illustrated, by Arthur Cowee, of Berlin, N. Y.

The afternoon series in full is:

March 27—"Flower Arrangement and Color Combination," by Max Schling, of New York.
March 28—"Rock Gardens," illustrated, by Richard Rothe, of Glenside, Pa.
March 29—"School Gardening," illustrated, by Miss Caro Miller, bureau of education, Philadelphia.
March 30—"Dahlias," illustrated, by Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the American Dahlia Society.
April 1—"Bulbs for Summer Bloom," by E. I. Wilde, State College, Pa.

Following the afternoon talks and lectures a moving picture of the Portland rose carnival is given.

Of course the lectures are planned for amateurs rather than for the trade visitors, but a goodly representation of the trade is noticed each time.

Contributors of Prizes.

The National Flower Show could not have been financed on the present scale, with a premium list representing $20,000 in value, except for the fact that a considerable part of the premiums were covered by the donation of cash, cups or medals by the following:

THE MANAGEMENT.

The National Committee.

The management of the series of National Flower Shows, of which the present one is the fourth, is vested in a standing committee of the S. A. F., the members of which serve six years, one member being appointed each year. The committee for 1916 is:

George Asmus, chairman, Chicago.
John Young, secretary, New York.
Wm. F. Kasting, treasurer, Buffalo.
Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.
Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.
Adolph Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.
Wm. P. Craig, Philadelphia.
Patrick Welch, Boston.

The Local Committees.

Because of the impossibility of handling local details through a widely scattered national committee, the arrangements were placed in the hands of a local executive committee and subcommittees, as follows:

EXECUTIVE.

A. Farenwald, chairman.
A. A. Niessen, secretary and treasurer.

Wm. Kleinheinz,	W. F. Therkildson,
Louis Burk,	Robert Craig,
J. Otto Thilow,	S. S. Pennock,

S. A. F. DIRECTORS MEET.

The S. A. F. directors have again departed, as they did last year, from the custom of holding the annual mid-Lenten meeting in the convention city and met at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia, holding the first session on the afternoon of March 28 at 2 p. m. The meeting has the largest attendance in the history of the S. A. F., for the full elected and appointed board is present in Philadelphia this week, as are all the directors under affiliation except the presidents of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society and the Florists' Hail Association. Those present are:

President Daniel MacRorie, of San Francisco, Cal.
Vice-president Robert C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex.
Secretary John Young, of New York.
Treasurer W. F. Kasting, of Buffalo.
Director J. J. Hess, of Omaha.
Director J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati.
Director W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, Mass.
Director W. J. Keimel, of Elmhurst, Ill.
Director A. J. Rossi, of San Francisco, Cal.
Director Charles L. Baum, of Knoxville, Tenn.
Ex-officio Director Patrick Welch, of Boston.
S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, president of the American Rose Society.
Joseph H. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., president of the American Carnation Society.
Irwin Bertermann, of Indianapolis, president of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery.
Henry Weston, of Elmhurst, L. I., president of the New York Florists' Club.
George Burton, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., president of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia.
Alex. Henderson, of Chicago, president of the Chicago Florists' Club.

The routine work of the S. A. F. now is done at the meetings of the board of directors and there is a large volume of detail to be put through before the board can adjourn. The plans for the thirty-second annual convention the third week in August are being put into shape.

Adolph Farenwald.

(Chairman Local Executive Committee for the National Show.)

STATE WORKERS GET TOGETHER.

At the call of W. N. Rudd, of Illinois, a meeting was held at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia, Tuesday evening, March 28, for the purpose of preliminary steps to bring the various state floricultural experiment stations into an organization that will tend to coördinate their work. The meeting was attended by representatives of the floricultural experiment stations in Illinois, New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio and New Jersey, as well as by a number of those in the trade who are interested in the work being done at these institutions. The plan is to form an organization which will assist in making the work of each institution available to all, to prevent duplication and to develop the full possibilities that lie in such funds and equipment as are available.

CASTLE GOULD CELOSIAS.

I want to grow some Celosia Pride of Castle Gould and any information in regard to growing them will be appreciated. Can they be grown in benches for cut flowers, or would you grow them in pots? L. L.—Mo.

I have had no experience with Celosia Pride of Castle Gould in benches, but as a pot plant for late summer or fall blooming it is excellent. I have found that if seed is sown in a shallow pan about May 1, and the seedlings are transplanted into flats and later kept potted along, using at all times a light but rich soil, they will make splendid plants for flowering from September until November. They will succeed in any ordinary greenhouse through the summer, but as the nights become cooler give them a minimum temperature of 55 to 58 degrees. Splendid plants may be had in 8-inch pots. Never let the plants become potbound before giving them the final shift. Feed with liquid manure when they are well established in the flowering pots. C. W.

AN OVERDOSE OF SULPHUR.

Perhaps a word of caution about the use of sulphur on the steam pipes might be of benefit to some of your least experienced readers. I am quite well convinced that one would better go slowly with the application of sulphur in that way. My sweet peas were affected with mildew and I, like an ignoramus, gave four of the six heating pipes on each side of the house a light painting with the stuff, a little more than the extent of the bed, and, lo! I lost every blossom on the vines, but the mildew is still "dewing" business. F. G.—Ill.

You have overdone the sulphuring business. Painting a single pipe on each side would have proved ample. Painting so many could not fail to ruin the buds. If this has not killed the mildew, spray with Fungine and carefully avoid drafts from the ventilators, which are usually the cause of mildew. C. W.

THE TRADES' DISPLAY

THE trade exhibits are becoming one of the important features of the larger flower shows in this country and especially strong is the showing made at Philadelphia this week. Indeed, the exhibition is made possible only by the trade displays, the guarantors and the donors of prizes, as the sale of much space was an essential where so large an expense was to be covered.

The trade's display, larger than at either of the last three S. A. F. conventions, is of mixed character, some of the exhibitors appealing frankly to florists and to none other, while some seek the favor of the public. A few play both ends against the middle by taking orders from all comers, either to be filled direct or through a florist.

The trade space is around the outside of the hall, under the balcony and behind the stage. Many of the settings are elaborate and the general character of the exhibits is the best yet seen, showing that in this respect as well as others the trade is making progress. In most cases quality and novelty have been aimed at, rather than a large showing.

The exhibitors are as follows:

Advance Co., Richmond, Ind.—The Advance ventilating machine and the Advance line of greenhouse hardware, pipe fittings, etc., all nicely nickel-plated for display purposes.

Alphano Humus Co., New York.—Soil building materials.

American Rose Society, Beacon, N. Y.—A booth for the display of literature calculated to increase the membership.

American Seed Tape Co., New York.—Seeds attached to tape for garden planting.

Andorra Nurseries, Chestnut Hill, Pa.—This is a display of evergreens, principally conifers.

A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., Chicago.—A large line of cut flower and design boxes in a variety of materials, finishes and colors, featuring a new manila box now available in all standard sizes. Joseph Marks is in charge.

Battles' Vase Shop, Philadelphia.—This is one of the branches of the business of H. H. Battles, conducted as an adjunct to his two flower stores. The display includes some scores of vases, no two alike in material, color, size, shape or value; a vase to fit any flower, place or purse.

Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.—Because this house has made a specialty of Japanese goods since Mr. Bayersdorfer's trip to Japan last summer, 600 square feet of space was taken for the erection of a Japanese bamboo pergola, vine clad, in which to show baskets of Japanese and American make, vases, bird cages, wedding accessories and other Easter and spring novelties.

Board of Education, Philadelphia.—A display of the work of the pupils in the division of physical education in the city schools.

W. J. Boas & Co., Philadelphia.—A large line of flower boxes.

Bon Arbor Chemical Co., Paterson, N. J.—The Bon Arbor humus and commercial fertilizers.

Burlington Willow Ware Shop, Burlington, Ia.—A line of willow baskets.

Burpee & Co., Philadelphia. — As might be expected, sweet peas are the principal feature of this fine display, some twenty varieties of Fordhook winter-blooming Spencers and other leading and newer sorts. There are two big banks of Schizanthus Wisetonensis and a large collection of annuals in pots, plants flowered in the greenhouse for this purpose.

The Cloche Co., New York.—This exhibitor has a wire device for holding panes of glass in a variety of positions as a protection for small plants in the garden. Literature regarding other garden accessories is displayed.

Coldwell Lawn Mower Co., Newburgh, N. Y.—The exhibit included a large line of lawn mowers of the various types.

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.—Rose plants are the only stock shown, but there is a large display of colored pictures of the widely known Wintzer cannas as well as of roses.

Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.—Gladiolus bulbs are the one thing this exhibitor deals in and the display showed samples of the bulbs of his newest and best varieties.

Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia.—In addition to a large number of entries in the competitive classes, this exhibitor had a large group of Easter pot plants in the trade's display. It was specially strong on dracænas, but crotons, roses, ferns, lilies and hydrangeas all were of high quality.

Davey Tree Expert Co., Philadelphia.—This exhibit consists of photographs of tree surgery done by the exhibitor.

A. T. De La Mare Printing & Publishing Co., New York.—Horticultural books.

Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, L. I. — Horticultural and other books and magazines.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia.—The garden of hybrid tea roses was this company's display, using $1,200 of trade space. It was singled out for special honor, being awarded two gold medals, one by the show judges and one by the judges of the American Rose Society.

W. H. Dugan, Philadelphia.—Greenhouse and porch movable shading.

Edwards Folding Box Co., Philadelphia.—A large line of glazed folding cut flower boxes.

Farquhar & Co., Boston.—This is a striking group of Azalea Kæmpferi and Lilium myriophyllum, the color combination making every visitor pause to admire.

Floral Nurseries, Edgely, Pa.—This wholesale grower of roses for the Philadelphia market has had the enterprise to take space to show a vase of each of the seven varieties of roses that are grown, Shawyer, Ward, Sunburst, Killarney, Maryland, Ophelia and Double White Killarney.

Florists' Telegraph Delivery, Detroit, Mich.—A booth for the exploitation of the quick delivery of fresh flowers at distant places. Albert Pochelon and W. F. Gude in charge.

Galloway Pottery Co., Philadelphia.—This is a display of garden furniture and the space also includes the pot display of the Whilldin Pottery Co., a collection of antique flower pots recalling the good old days before Mr. Whilldin began the manufacture of our present standard pots.

F. R. Grey Co., Philadelphia.—Garden furniture.

Hammond's Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.—This is, to the trade, the familiar display of packages of paint, putty and insecticides, and enjoyed the distinction of being the first exhibit completed in the show. B. Hammond and Walter Mott in charge.

Wm. K. Harris, Philadelphia.—One group by this exhibitor included an extremely well grown collection of hydrangeas, roses, spiræas, rhododendrons, azaleas, bougainvilleas, ericas and other Easter plants, while a table at another place was devoted exclusively to Asplenium Nidus-avis.

J. G. Harrison & Sons, Berlin, N. J.—This exhibitor had a both for a display of shrubs and evergreens and had a number of large evergreens in tubs scattered about the building.

Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa.—Kentias in various sizes are the principal feature of this display, which is topped by a fine specimen Cibotium Schiedei. Phœnix Roebelenii also is prominent in the group.

A. Herrmann, New York.—A line of staple articles in florists' supplies, in charge of Charles Ford, Philadelphia agent.

Hitchings & Co., Elizabeth, N. J.—The details of this exhibitor's conservatory and show house construction are shown by means of a full-size curved eave greenhouse, with iron bench frame and slate bottomed benches. There are numerous photographs of commercial and private ranges the exhibitor has built. J. C. McArthur is in charge.

Ideal Lighting Co., Davenport, Ia.—The Ideal metal self-watering window box.

Japanese Perfume Co., New York.—Perfumes.

Kapteyn & Son, Sassenheim.—This Holland exporter has a booth in which to display tulips, hyacinths and narcissi in considerable variety, the bulbs having been flowered for the purpose by a Philadelphia customer.

King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y.—A full-size curved eave greenhouse was erected to show the details of the exhibitor's construction. The benches were filled with Dreer's hybrid tea roses in bloom in pots and attracted many visitors.

Kirke Chemical Co., Brooklyn.—This exhibitor manufactures fertilizers and insecticides that are put up in cartridge form, to be placed in the feeder which is attached to the water faucet before the hose is screwed on. The display shows the various preparations and how they are used.

Knight & Struck Co., New York.—Chorizema cordæa was the striking feature of this group, but there were excellent specimens of ericas and acacias in variety.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago.—This boiler manufacturer showed photographs of many greenhouse establishments in which its steel hot water boiler is operating; also pictures of its new three-way fire travel steam boiler and blueprints of installations of its threaded tube system of piping.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.—In addition to a splendid group in the competitive classes, this exhibitor had a table in the trade's display showing a large variety of fine orchid plants in bloom.

Lord & Burnham Co., New York.—A full-size curved eave greenhouse was erected such as is used for private conservatories or florists' display houses, the construction embodying the latest improvements and developments in this class of house. There also were many photographs of greenhouses erected by this exhibitor. The display was in charge of M. C. Wright and D. T. Conner, of the Philadelphia office.

Mathews Garden Craft Co., Cleveland.—Pergolas, trellises and garden furniture.

Meehan & Sons, Germantown.—This is a large group of evergreens, in burlaps, balled and in tubs; a variety of Japanese maples and other ornamental nursery stock.

Metropolitan Material Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.—A curved eave greenhouse showing many patented points in construction; photographs, drawings and detail sections illustrating commercial and private houses.

C. F. Meyer, Inc., New York.—A booth for the exploitation of T-brand lily bulbs, in charge of Chas. Nieman, Philadelphia agent.

H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia. — The Dutch garden that captured one of the leading prizes of the show was converted, after the judging, into a business exhibit by the uncovering of large electric signs. The beds of hyacinths and tulips were surrounded by a fence covered by rambler roses and the exhibit is one of the best in the whole show. It was the handiwork of Philip Freud.

John C. Moninger Co., Chicago. — Here is an exhibit that takes the eye of the commercial grower. It is a model of a 60-foot all steel greenhouse complete in every detail and each part exactly one-eighth actual size. Some full-size details and many blueprints also are shown.

National Floral Corporation, New York.—A booth to disseminate information with regard to the appointment of a so-called National Florist in each city.

William Kleinheinz.
(Chairman Committee on Exhibits for the National Flower Show.)

J. G. Neidinger Co., Philadelphia.—Baskets, in keeping with the trend of demand in the trade, are the principal feature of this display, but there also is a large showing of wreaths, artificial flowers and other staples of the florists' supply business.

New York Stable Manure Co., Jersey City, N. J.—This exhibitor shows Diamond Brand Compost and prepared horse manure fertilizers.

Peacock Dahlia Farms, Berlin, N. J.—The display consisted of photographs of the dahlia farms and literature descriptive of varieties.

H. V. Pearce, Detroit.—The Pearce steam trap for returning condensation to greenhouse boilers.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia.—While the display is principally of the better grades of ribbons, chiffons and corsage ties, baskets are given more prominence than heretofore, as the exhibitor is one of those who has found the trade eager to buy good styles of plant and cut flower baskets.

Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia.—A booth for the distribution of literature, the reception of friends and the enrollment of new members. In charge of David Rust.

J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, O.—This exhibit consisted of well-flowered plants of the two new begonias originated by the exhibitor, Melior and Mrs. J. A. Peterson.

Pfaltzgraff Pottery Co., York, Pa.—A sample line showing all the sizes of red clay pots.

A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.—In addition to a large number of entries in the competitive classes, chief of which is the rose garden, this exhibitor has a booth to receive friends, made attractive by vases of cut flowers of Lady Alice Stanley, Red Radiance, Mrs. Hearst, Hadley, Ward, Montrose and other roses. Elizabeth Ziegler, a climbing sport, is to be sent out in 1918. A new maroon carnation, Arawana, is shown for 1917 dissemination. Of course Farleyense was shown.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y.—If any member of the nephrolepis family descended from Bostoniensis is missing from this group its absence passes unnoticed because of the number. The group also includes Cibotium Schiedei, rubbers, Cyrtomium falcatum, etc.

A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.—The interesting feature of this line of baskets, cut flower receptacles and decorators' materials was that each one of the large number of styles shown was designed and manufactured in the exhibitor's own factory, established since the European war broke out. Many of the styles are here shown for the first time. There also is a large display of the flower bowls that have so recently come into vogue.

M. Rice Co., Philadelphia.—It is said that the genuine ostrich plume corsage shield shown by this exhibitor has had the largest sale ever scored by any novelty the house has put out. Silver butterflies and hearts also are big sellers. The display of baskets is huge and the wedding accessories are a prominent feature. Aquariums, bird cages and baskets for table decoration receive special attention.

Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.—This exhibitor shows a wide variety of stock in the competitive classes, but also has a booth enclosed with evergreens, palms, etc., in which there is a handsome display of the newer win-

Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.—This exhibitor shows a wide variety of stock in the competitive classes, but also has a booth enclosed with evergreens, palms, etc., in which there is a handsome display of the newer winter-flowering begonias, some excellent ferns and other stock to attract the man who wishes to sit down and give an order.

J. Scheepers & Co., New York.—A display of lily bulbs, including Henryi, speciosum, Melpomene and auratum from cold storage.

Schloss Bros., New York.—The special feature of this display is a feather-edged bouquet holder, shown in a number of colors, but a large line of ribbons, chiffons and corsage ties is exhibited.

School of Horticulture, Ambler, Pa.—Products of the pupils in the school.

S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Philadelphia.—Primula malacoides rosea (Lemon) occupies a conspicuous position in this display, as does Rose Queen sweet pea. There is a large line of young stock for growing on. Magic hose is featured.

Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O.—The Skinner system of irrigation, displayed by the H. B. Pancoast Co., Philadelphia representatives.

A. W. Smith Co., Pittsburgh.—A miniature city block, showing treatment at the hands of the exhibitor's landscape department. Also photographs, blueprints, etc.

Spencer Heater Co., Scranton, Pa.—Two boilers are shown, the self-feeding type, used with small sizes of anthracite coal.

George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I.—This exhibitor specializes on dahlias and in his booth showed nothing but dahlia roots and colored pictures of the flowers.

Strafford Flower Farm, Strafford, Pa.—For the purpose of advertising its ability to supply plants for gardens and porch and window boxes, this exhibitor has installed a complete garden scene, showing the stock in use. The beds and vases of geraniums are especially good.

G. E. M. Stumpp, New York.—A large and highly diversified line of cut flower holders for retail sales and for the use of decorators.

Supple-Biddle Co., Philadelphia.—The Pennsylvania line of lawn mowers.

S. P. Townsend, Orange, N. J.—A line of hand and horse mowers.

B. H. Tracy, Wenham, Mass.—This display was of bulbs of the Cedar Acres gladioli and pictures of the blooms and of the establishment.

W. E. Tricker, Arlington, N. J.—An aquatic pool in which the features were Panama, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and gigantea nymphæas.

Vaughan's Seed Store, New York.—Bulbs are the principal feature of this display, but a number of varieties of beans, peas and other seeds are shown.

Vim Automobile Co., Philadelphia.—A Vim truck for delivery to Ross, the local florist, a chassis and a truck with panel body.

Voltax Paint & Varnish Co., Philadelphia.—Special greenhouse paint.

Hosea Waterer, Philadelphia.—This booth contains a display of lily bulbs, grass and other seeds and garden requisites.

Wertheimer Bros., New York.—A large display of ribbons, featuring Webro fabrics, ombre ribbons and corsage shields. S. B. Wertheimer and Samuel Seligman are in charge.

Women's Agricultural and Horticultural Association, Newton, Pa.—Garden wands, etc.

O. F. Zurn Co., Philadelphia.—This exhibitor manufactures a shading material under the trade name of Shaderine and shows samples of it in charge of Wm. K. Harris Henszey.

A. C. Zvolanek, Lompoc, Cal.—These are sweet peas of the winter-flowering Spencer type, on which this exhibitor has specialized for many years. Some are cut sprays displayed in the English fashion, while others are plants blooming in tubs. While the seed was grown in California, it was flowered at Boundbrook, N. J., and Washington, D. C.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT

COMPILING a list of trade visitors at a flower show is not the easiest of occupations. Although a register is kept, many who are entitled to do so fail to inscribe their names on it. Those who are not members of any of the trade societies, and who therefore have no claim to courtesies, are not asked to register. With so large an attendance of the public one fails to meet some of the florists who give the show only a day of their time. And this National Flower Show lasts nine days! The attendance of trade visitors is expected to be even larger toward the close of the show than it was at the opening. But this list of those from outside Philadelphia whose presence was noted during the opening days will serve to show the wide interest the trade is taking in this show:

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Officers Reëlected.

The American Rose Society, which held its seventeenth annual meeting at Convention hall, Philadelphia, at 8 p. m. March 27, has made such excellent progress this year that officers were unanimously reëlected, as follows:

President—Samuel S. Pennock, of Philadelphia.

Vice-president—Louis J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.

Secretary—Benj. Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

Treasurer—Harry O. May, Summit, N. J.

Executive committee—Admiral Aaron Ward, of Roslyn, L. I., to fill a vacancy; Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., to succeed himself; E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass., to succeed John H. Dunlop.

Judges—Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit; Alexander B. Scott, Sharon Hill, Pa.; George C. Thomas, Chestnut Hill, Pa.

Standard Grades.

The spirit of the meeting came into activity when Harry O. May presented the report of the committee on standardizing the grading of cut roses. The report proposed the following official standard:

AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

Name of Grade	Length Stem
Specials	36 inches and over
Fancies	30 inches and over
Extras	24 inches and over
No. 1	18 inches and over
No. 2	12 inches and over

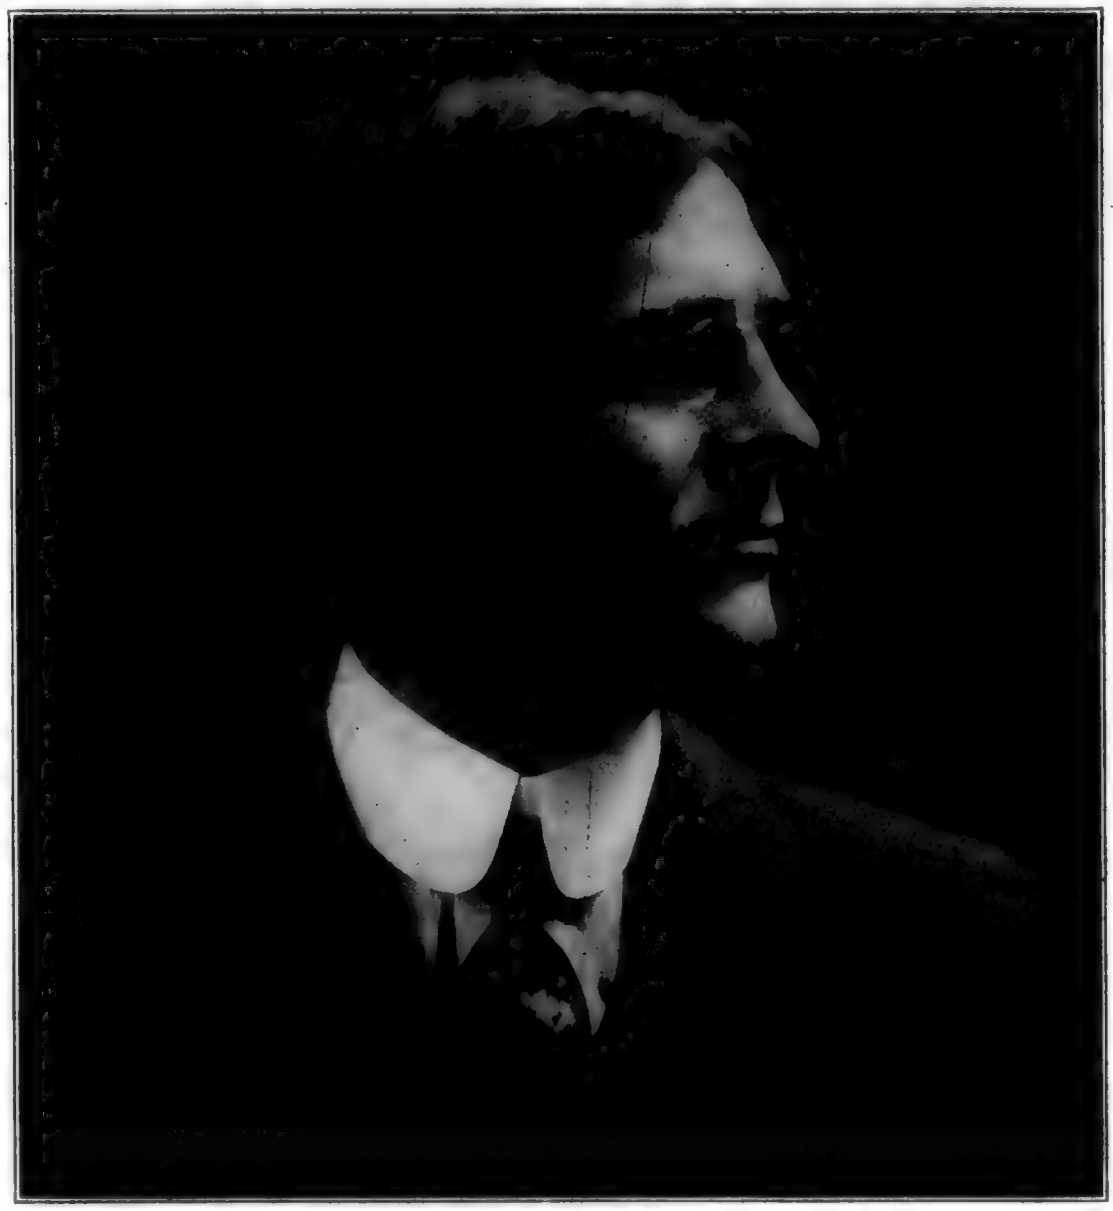
OTHER ROSES.

Name of Grade	Length Stem
Extra specials	30 inches and over
Specials	24 inches and over
Extras	18 inches and over
No. 1	14 inches and over
No. 2	10 inches and under

The aim of the committee is not only to create a uniform standard but to enable telegraphic and mail orders to be briefly given and intelligently filled.

The report brought out a lively discussion and an earnest protest. W. H. Elliott said there already is a standard in general use in Boston that differs from the proposed standard. It is based on the Stearns Lumber Co. scale and anyone can have one for the asking by addressing that company. George Burton thought that extra special Beauties of 48-inch stem or over should be recognized. W. F. Gude opposed the standard as proposed.

The matter finally was referred back to the committee for further consideration.



Routine Business.

President S. S. Pennock presented his annual address, dealing with the work accomplished by the society and its possibilities for the future. Secretary Hammond presented a report for his office, mentioning that it is twelve years since the society had met in Philadelphia. Treasurer Harry O. May reported cash receipts of $2,501.20 for the year, with disbursements of $1,453.28 and a cash balance of $1,047.92. In the investment account there is $3,450.

J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, was elected an honorary member and his work in editing the Rose Annual for the society was highly praised.

It was decided to hold a meeting June 25 to visit the rose test gardens at Cornell University and at Syracuse, N. Y.

The date and place for the next annual meeting were left to the executive committee.

Samuel S. Pennock.
(President American Rose Society.)

A gold medal and letter of appreciation was voted to Henry A. Dreer, Inc., for its wonderful rose gardens in Convention hall.

George C. Thomas presented an outline of a plan perfected by Dr. Robert Huey and himself for uniformity in judging outdoor roses. Points to be given to color, fragrance, form, shape, size, quantity of bloom, stem and lasting qualities. Wallace R. Pierson thought the plan in its present form was not feasible. It was referred back to the committee.

SECRETARY HAMMOND'S REPORT.

[The following is the report of Secretary Benjamin Hammond of the American Rose Society, read at the meeting held in connection with the National Flower Show at Philadelphia, March 25 to April 2, 1916.]

This is the seventeenth annual meeting of the American Rose Society. Twelve years have passed since this society held an annual meeting in Philadelphia, and the development of the society during those twelve years is evidenced by the wonderful exhibition at Convention hall. Since our last visit to this city the society has met four times at Boston, once each at Washington, Chicago, Buffalo and Detroit, and three times at New York.

Our membership varies from year to year. Last year, 1915, we had the pleasure to receive another life member, namely, R. Witterstaetter. The life membership fees help us to build our permanent fund, which now reaches the sum of $3,200. The annual members who have paid for the year at this date number 179, of which forty-seven are associate members.

The Testing Gardens.

The test rose gardens, which began at Hartford, Conn., now consist of a garden at Washington, D. C., one at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., and one at Minneapolis, Minn. These are watched over by special committees appointed by the society and certainly have awakened much interest. The bushes to be tested are being furnished gratis by rose growers. Two lots were sent from Europe, one by Kallen & Lunnemann, of Boskoop, Holland, embracing 168 plants in twenty-nine varieties. These were sent to the Cornell rose garden at Ithaca. Hugh Dickson, Ltd., of Belfast, Ireland, sent ten each of four varieties. These are for competition in the test gardens and were divided, one-half going to Hartford, Conn., the other half to the Washington gardens. The details of the results at the rose gardens is presented in the Rose Annual, as well as the awards made.

Municipal rose gardens are being advocated in England. A letter from England, under date of January 23, came to me, saying, in part: "You are far more progressive in America as regards municipal rose gardens than we are over here, and I shall be gratified if you will send me details of any public rose gardens established in America." This writer is an amateur and holds the championship both for exhibition roses and decoratives of all England. Our amateur societies are looking to the American Rose Society for information and recognition. The affiliation membership rate was first placed at 10 cents each, but this sum was not sufficient and has been advanced by the executive committee to 25 cents per member.

The Rose Annual.

In supporting the society there is a lack of assistance from the men growing roses outdoors. At every show we hold there is more or less expense and the support of the society has been mainly from the cut flower producers.

The broadening of the membership of this society involves much detail work, but one piece of good work that has come to pass is the printing in first-class style of the annual report of the work of the society, in book form, with complimentary essays. This publication, the Rose Annual, involved a greater expense than the revenue of the society warranted, but J. Horace McFarland assumed the work and risk of cost attending the same, and for this service we certainly are indebted to him. The proportional sum paid for this work by the society was $200 and postage; beyond this, all cost has been assumed by the publishers.

For this spring's exhibition the number and value of special prizes contributed by individuals have never before been equaled. All this is clear evidence that our society is forging ahead and that our exhibitions and meetings help to bring beauty to the homes of all the people.

Arthur Herrington.
(Superintendent of the Fourth National Flower Show.)

DATES FOR STARTING BULBS.

I wish to thank C. W. for the information received on the forcing of bulbs, but I did not make myself quite clear in my former inquiry. What I want to know especially is the earliest date at which the bulbs referred to can be made to flower. They are to be planted outside next fall in flats, covered with soil, and with some marsh hay after the first good frost. Please state the earliest possible date at which they can be brought in and the length of time required to flower them. The varieties are such tulips as Murillo and La Reine, and such narcissi as Trumpet major, Double Von Sion, Single Von Sion, princeps, Sir Watkin, Golden Spur, Victoria, Emperor, poeticus ornatus and Barri conspicuus.

A. R.—R. I.

The earliest practicable dates for starting them are: La Reine tulips, December 1 to 15; Murillo tulips, January 10; Trumpet major, French, December 1; Guernsey, December 10; Dutch, January 1 to 10; Double Von Sion, January 15; Single Von Sion, January 5 to 10; princeps, January 1 to 10; Sir Watkin, January 20; Golden Spur, Dutch, January 5 to 10; Guernsey, French, December 1 to 10; Victoria, January 20 to 25; Emperor, January 15 to 20; poeticus ornatus, January 5 to 10; Barri conspicuus, January 20 to 30. A good deal, of course, will depend upon how early your bulbs are received and planted. It is well to remember that none of these bulbs started at the earliest possible date will flower so satisfactorily as they will a little later in the season and I doubt if too early forcing of any of them pays.

Allow La Reine tulips, Trumpet major, Single Von Sion, Golden Spur and poeticus ornatus four weeks from start to flowering; Victoria, Barri conspicuus, Emperor and Double Von Sion, five weeks; Murillo, six weeks. A good deal depends on the temperature. The tulips need drawing up in a warm, dark case, but a place below the benches usually suffices for the narcissi. Give the tulips 60 degrees at night and the narcissi 5 degrees less heat. Although you can give all the same temperature, the narcissi will lack in quality if grown too warm. C. W.

DIRECTIONS ON AZALEA INDICA.

Please tell me how and when to progagate Azalea Indica. Is black muck land that has been cultivated for some time a good soil for azaleas, or is leaf-mold and sand better? Should fertilizer be used on azaleas, and would it be advisable to plant young plants out every spring and repot them in the fall, or to carry them along in pots and shift them whenever necessary? Should azaleas be carried over in pots plunged outdoors in full sun or in a partly shaded place? H. G.—O.

Propagate from cuttings in winter, or by grafting; the latter method is usually adopted. Azaleas like a mixture of peat, leaf-mold and sand, but will grow well in loam, particularly if leaf-mold has been added to it. They would not do well in leaf-mold alone. Azaleas, when the pots are well filled with roots, are benefited by occasional weak doses of liquid manure during the growing season. When they are planted out each season, they need not have any feeding. Plants will make better growth if planted out each season than if kept in pots, but carried-over plants kept in pots and plunged outdoors will force earlier than those planted out. Give them full sun, but have a hose convenient so that they can be freely syringed, and watered, in addition, when necessary. C. W.

SOIL ONLY NEEDS LIME.

Last September we placed a strip of soil alongside a pavement. It is eight feet wide, 120 feet long and three feet deep. The soil used was black, sandy and washed, taken from a creek bottom. We took the soil to a depth of seven feet. Will this be suitable for roses, asters and other flowers this year?

E. T. S.—Ia.

If you give the soil a dressing of ground or air-slaked lime and work it in well, the soil should prove all right. Do not use any manure with the lime, but if the roses show signs of starvation give them a top-dressing of cow manure in summer. C. W.

Roswell, N. M.—When asked her "connection with the trade," Mrs. Bernice Akin good-humoredly replied: "A few days ago I hung out my shingle, with this inscription on it: 'Flowers and Plants for Sale.' I did not find the business—it found me! I had such success in growing flowers for myself it occurred to me that I could grow flowers for others as well. I hope you will consider me enough of a florist to qualify as a subscriber to The Review."

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Officers Reëlected.

The American Rose Society, which held its seventeenth annual meeting at Convention hall, Philadelphia, at 8 p. m. March 27, has made such excellent progress this year that officers were unanimously reëlected, as follows:

President—Samuel S. Pennock, of Philadelphia.

Vice-president—Louis J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.

Secretary—Benj. Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

Treasurer—Harry O. May, Summit, N. J.

Executive committee—Admiral Aaron Ward, of Roslyn, L. I., to fill a vacancy; Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., to succeed himself; E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass., to succeed John H. Dunlop.

Judges—Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit; Alexander B. Scott, Sharon Hill, Pa.; George C. Thomas, Chestnut Hill, Pa.

Standard Grades.

The spirit of the meeting came into activity when Harry O. May presented the report of the committee on standardizing the grading of cut roses. The report proposed the following official standard:

AMERICAN BEAUTIES.

Name of Grade	Length Stem
Specials	36 inches and over
Fancies	30 inches and over
Extras	24 inches and over
No. 1	18 inches and over
No. 2	12 inches and over

OTHER ROSES.

Name of Grade	Length Stem
Extra specials	30 inches and over
Specials	24 inches and over
Extras	18 inches and over
No. 1	14 inches and over
No. 2	10 inches and under

The aim of the committee is not only to create a uniform standard but to enable telegraphic and mail orders to be briefly given and intelligently filled.

The report brought out a lively discussion and an earnest protest. W. H. Elliott said there already is a standard in general use in Boston that differs from the proposed standard. It is based on the Stearns Lumber Co. scale and anyone can have one for the asking by addressing that company. George Burton thought that extra special Beauties of 48-inch stem or over should be recognized. W. F. Gude opposed the standard as proposed.

The matter finally was referred back to the committee for further consideration.

Routine Business.

President S. S. Pennock presented his annual address, dealing with the work accomplished by the society and its possibilities for the future. Secretary Hammond presented a report for his office, mentioning that it is twelve years since the society had met in Philadelphia. Treasurer Harry O. May reported cash receipts of $2,501.20 for the year, with disbursements of $1,453.28 and a cash balance of $1,047.92. In the investment account there is $3,450.

J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, was elected an honorary member and his work in editing the Rose Annual for the society was highly praised.

It was decided to hold a meeting June 25 to visit the rose test gardens at Cornell University and at Syracuse, N. Y.

The date and place for the next annual meeting were left to the executive committee.

Samuel S. Pennock.
(President American Rose Society.)

A gold medal and letter of appreciation was voted to Henry A. Dreer, Inc., for its wonderful rose gardens in Convention hall.

George C. Thomas presented an outline of a plan perfected by Dr. Robert Huey and himself for uniformity in judging outdoor roses. Points to be given to color, fragrance, form, shape, size, quantity of bloom, stem and lasting qualities. Wallace R. Pierson thought the plan in its present form was not feasible. It was referred back to the committee.

SECRETARY HAMMOND'S REPORT.

[The following is the report of Secretary Benjamin Hammond of the American Rose Society, read at the meeting held in connection with the National Flower Show at Philadelphia, March 25 to April 2, 1916.]

This is the seventeenth annual meeting of the American Rose Society. Twelve years have passed since this society held an annual meeting in Philadelphia, and the development of the society during those twelve years is evidenced by the wonderful exhibition at Convention hall. Since our last visit to this city the society has met four times at Boston, once each at Washington, Chicago, Buffalo and Detroit, and three times at New York.

Our membership varies from year to year. Last year, 1915, we had the pleasure to receive another life member, namely, R. Witterstaetter. The life membership fees help us to build our permanent fund, which now reaches the sum of $3,200. The annual members who have paid for the year at this date number 179, of which forty-seven are associate members.

The Testing Gardens.

The test rose gardens, which began at Hartford, Conn., now consist of a garden at Washington, D. C., one at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., and one at Minneapolis, Minn. These are watched over by special committees appointed by the society and certainly have awakened much interest. The bushes to be tested are being furnished gratis by rose growers. Two lots were sent from Europe, one by Kallen & Lunnemann, of Boskoop, Holland, embracing 168 plants in twenty-nine varieties. These were sent to the Cornell rose garden at Ithaca. Hugh Dickson, Ltd., of Belfast, Ireland, sent ten each of four varieties. These are for competition in the test gardens and were divided, one-half going to Hartford, Conn., the other half to the Washington gardens. The details of the results at the rose gardens is presented in the Rose Annual, as well as the awards made.

Municipal rose gardens are being advocated in England. A letter from England, under date of January 23, came to me, saying, in part: "You are far more progressive in America as regards municipal rose gardens than we are over here, and I shall be gratified if you will send me details of any public rose gardens established in America." This writer is an amateur and holds the championship both for exhibition roses and decoratives of all England. Our amateur societies are looking to the American Rose Society for information and recognition. The affiliation membership rate was first placed at 10 cents each, but this sum was not sufficient and has been advanced by the executive committee to 25 cents per member.

The Rose Annual.

In supporting the society there is a lack of assistance from the men growing roses outdoors. At every show we hold there is more or less expense and the support of the society has been mainly from the cut flower producers.

The broadening of the membership of this society involves much detail work, but one piece of good work that has come to pass is the printing in first-class style of the annual report of the work of the society, in book form, with complimentary essays. This publication, the Rose Annual, involved a greater expense than the revenue of the society warranted, but J. Horace McFarland assumed the work and risk of cost attending the same, and for this service we certainly are indebted to him. The proportional sum paid for this work by the society was $200 and postage; beyond this, all cost has been assumed by the publishers.

For this spring's exhibition the number and value of special prizes contributed by individuals have never before been equaled. All this is clear evidence that our society is forging ahead and that our exhibitions and meetings help to bring beauty to the homes of all the people.

Arthur Herrington.
(Superintendent of the Fourth National Flower Show.)

DATES FOR STARTING BULBS.

I wish to thank C. W. for the information received on the forcing of bulbs, but I did not make myself quite clear in my former inquiry. What I want to know especially is the earliest date at which the bulbs referred to can be made to flower. They are to be planted outside next fall in flats, covered with soil, and with some marsh hay after the first good frost. Please state the earliest possible date at which they can be brought in and the length of time required to flower them. The varieties are such tulips as Murillo and La Reine, and such narcissi as Trumpet major, Double Von Sion, Single Von Sion, princeps, Sir Watkin, Golden Spur, Victoria, Emperor, poeticus ornatus and Barri conspicuus.

A. R.—R. I.

The earliest practicable dates for starting them are: La Reine tulips, December 1 to 15; Murillo tulips, January 10; Trumpet major, French, December 1; Guernsey, December 10; Dutch, January 1 to 10; Double Von Sion, January 15; Single Von Sion, January 5 to 10; princeps, January 1 to 10; Sir Watkin, January 20; Golden Spur, Dutch, January 5 to 10; Guernsey, French, December 1 to 10; Victoria, January 20 to 25; Emperor, January 15 to 20; poeticus ornatus, January 5 to 10; Barri conspicuus, January 20 to 30. A good deal, of course, will depend upon how early your bulbs are received and planted. It is well to remember that none of these bulbs started at the earliest possible date will flower so satisfactorily as they will a little later in the season and I doubt if too early forcing of any of them pays.

Give the tulips 60 degrees at night and the narcissi 5 degrees less heat. Although you can give all the same temperature, the narcissi will lack in quality if grown too warm. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Stock for Memorial Day.

There is a comparatively short period between Easter and Memorial day this year. As five weeks is not sufficiently long to start plants and flower them, it will be necessary to start them in a moderate way early in April. Allow Spiræa Japonica six weeks, Gladstone, seven weeks and Peach Blossom eight weeks, in an average night temperature of 60 degrees. Hydrangeas and rambler roses should be housed and given a start now. They may need to remain somewhat crowded until Easter has passed. Crops of feverfew, candytuft, stocks, snapdragons, calendulas, etc., in benches, which should all have been benched some weeks ago, will need careful attention from this time on. Run the candytuft and feverfew warmer than the snapdragons and stocks. If the last-named need heat, let it be later, when the spikes are pushing up.

Bouvardia Humboldtii.

If young stock of Bouvardia Humboldtii is wanted, cut back one or two old plants, place them in heat and spray freely, but do not overwater, and they will soon give a fine crop of nice, succulent cuttings that will root easily. If these are potted on, they will make nice stock in 6-inch pots before fall. Keep the old, carried-over plants rested for some time yet, and plant them outdoors in well enriched ground when the weather has become warm and settled.

Buddleia Asiatica.

Cuttings of Buddleia Asiatica can be put in as late as August and produce good little flowering plants; if those of fair size are needed, cuttings should go in now. They root easily and should be kept potted on and plunged outdoors through the summer. They can be had in good bloom as early as Christmas, and are at their best during January and the first half of February. They succeed particularly well in a temperature of 50 degrees at night.

Sweet Peas Outdoors.

Winter in many sections this year is prolonged well into the lap of spring, and early plowing and seed sowing seem improbable when these notes are written. But even though certain seeds are sown two or three weeks later one season than another season, they invariably flower at about the same time each year. It is always an advantage to have an early season for sweet peas. It is necessary to sow the seed as soon as possible after the frost has left the ground and the soil has dried sufficiently to be workable. Cover the seeds two to two and one-half inches deep, leaving the tops of the rows somewhat hollowed after filling in, but do not fill in about the plants, as is often recommended, while they are small; it only breeds stem-rot.

Utilize Hotbeds.

Greenhouses become much overcrowded in early spring and it is a great relief to be able to use coldframes now for much of the hardier stock. A foot of warm stable manure mixed with leaves and firmly tramped will give a nice, gentle heat in which many plants will thrive amazingly. All plants are near the glass. They grow stocky and can be gradually hardened in a way impossible in greenhouses. Partly plunge the pots in order to give them a little bottom heat, and the change from the greenhouses will be little noticed. Use mats and board shutters on cold nights to keep the plants comfortably warm.

Ground for Asters.

Sweet peas and asters are the two most valuable annuals for the average florist. The land for each, whenever possible, should be prepared in late fall. Where this can not be done, give the aster ground a liberal coating of well decayed manure and plow it as soon as the land is workable; later, when it has dried out well, give it a thorough harrowing and go over it several times more before planting time, in order to pulverize the ground thoroughly. The better the land is prepared, the finer your asters will be.

San Jose Scale.

Before the buds on trees and shrubs get started, it is a good policy to spray many varieties either with lime sulphur or one of the soluble oils for San Jose scale, which is a common pest. Unless the work is to be done on a large scale, the oil solutions, such as Scaline and Scalecide, are to be preferred. Select a sunny day for the work, when there is as little wind as possible, and use a fine misty spray nozzle that will wet every portion of the bark. All fruit trees, not excluding currants and gooseberries, should be sprayed. Some shrubs are badly attacked, including lilacs, cydonias, cornus and all the species of roses; also, hawthorns, cercidiphyllums, willows, chestnuts and poplars. This is but a partial list, but it is a safe plan to spray the entire shrubbery each year.

CARNATIONS

YIELD OF BLOOMS PER PLANT.

How many carnation blooms per plant are considered a good cut?

M. W. H.—Mo.

Fifteen blooms per plant would be considered a fair average for such varieties as the Enchantress family. Mrs. Ward will drop a couple of blooms behind, while White Wonder will go a few blooms ahead. A. F. J. B.

YELLOWS AND FEEBLE GROWTH.

Please examine the enclosed plant and let me know what disease has affected it, as I am losing the plants in the benches slowly but surely.

J. S.—O.

The plant submitted has never made much growth and is in anything but a vigorous condition. It is full of the yellows, which may be responsible for this lack of vigor. There is little you can do for these plants, except to follow a moderate course of culture. Do not overwater them and be careful about the feeding. They will perhaps need a little food later, but not as much as plants which have made a vigorous growth. Let the food you do give be phosphoric acid and potash, rather than nitrogen, as nitrogen softens the tissue and tends to aggravate the trouble. As spring approaches, a mulch of long stable manure may be beneficial, to prevent too rapid evaporation. This, with a little phosphate rock, may be all they will need.

Cuttings taken from these plants will not make first-class stock for next year. If, however, you select cuttings from the best plants, the stock may prove to be better than this year's stock and several years of selection might bring it up to a fair state of quality. Selection is usually an effective method of eliminating disease and it is so in this case; until we know more about this disease, it is about the only treatment that can be recommended.

A. F. J. B.

BRANCH-ROT AND RUST.

We are enclosing sample plants which show two kinds of infection that are appearing on our carnation benches, and we wish to inquire as to the cause of the trouble and the best way of remedying it. P. F. C.—Mich.

The specimens submitted are affected by both branch-rot and rust. This form of rot is difficult to handle, because it makes its attacks down in the heart of the plant, where it is difficult to reach it with any spraying material. Bordeaux is the most effective remedy and I suggest that you spray the plants thoroughly with this material every two weeks, poking the spray nozzle right into the center of each plant. Bordeaux is also good for rust, but you should have little trouble from now on with this disease. Spraying the young plants every three or four weeks with this material will usually keep them free from rust. A. F. J. B.

Geraniums

NUTT GERANIUM IN 1874.

In The Review for March 2 I read with interest two articles relative to the history of the S. A. Nutt geranium. One of the first geraniums that I became familiar with was the S. A. Nutt, and that was in 1874, in the greenhouses of the late L. T. Charles, of Hornell, N. Y. At that time S. A. Nutt was grown throughout that part of the country. In 1877, while at Limestone, N. Y., I purchased this variety from the Storrs & Harrison Co., of Painesville, O., which had S. A. Nutt listed as one of the best colored varieties but not as a new one. I think you are right when you say that the history of the S. A. Nutt geranium is lost in the mists of antiquity.

John I. Whiting.

GERANIUM FOLIAGE TURNS RED.

I should like to know what is making my geranium leaves turn red, as red as an oak or maple leaf in autumn. The plants are thoroughly watered at all times, but the soil is never allowed to get soggy. Young cuttings and mature plans are affected alike.

F. G.—Ill.

Too much potash in the soil is the probable cause of the foliage turning red. An excess of bone is just as bad. Shake the plants out and give them a compost of two-thirds well decayed loam and one-third old hotbed manure, cow manure or horse manure, being sure it is old, crumbly and well decayed. Add a 4-inch pot of fine bone to a wheelbarrow load of compost and mix thoroughly before potting. Your system of watering seems to be all right. C. W.

GERANIUM LEAVES DISEASED.

Enclosed you will find a few geranium leaves which were removed from young stock in 2¼-inch pots. Will you kindly tell me what is the cause of the spots on the leaves and what causes the edges of the leaves to turn brown? I am careful never to wet the leaves during the winter months and I have kept all affected leaves picked off, but the trouble continues. There are about 5,000 plants on the bench and they are all sturdy and now ready to shift. Yet, twenty-four hours after leaves have been picked off, many become like those enclosed. This occurs in patches over the whole bench.

A. E. D.—Mich.

The leaves were all dried up on receipt. Your trouble is not at all uncommon. Each year at this season we get many similar letters. It is not easy to tell what has been the cause of the trouble. Geranium diseases are yet but imperfectly understood, and it is to be hoped that some of our state colleges will take up the study of them. Often the cutting bed is the cause of this trouble; cuttings left in the sand too long often develop disease. I would suggest spraying the plants with either Bordeaux mixture or Fungine. Apply the latter at the strength advertised on the cans, on a bright day, being sure the foliage is quite dry. Give a second application four or five days later. If this does not stop the spread of the disease entirely, give a third, or, if necessary, a fourth spraying at intervals of a week.

Keep a dry atmosphere in your house, air freely, give the plants all possible sunshine, and continue to pick off the badly affected leaves. Let the average night temperature be 50 degrees. When repotting, avoid the use of any animal manure unless it is old and well decayed. The kind that will crumble in your hand is the best. Also add a 4-inch pot of fine bone to each bushel of earth. Bone promotes a hard, stocky growth, and where it is used the plants bloom much more freely than where cow, horse or sheep manure only is used. C. W.

OBITUARY.

Jacob Fischer.

Jacob Fischer, one of the pioneer florists of Toledo, O., died March 21 after an illness of four days, death being due to pneumonia. Mr. Fischer was born in Schaffhausen, Switzerland, sixty-seven years ago. He came to this country at the age of 18 and found employment in greenhouses at Toledo. In 1879 he started a greenhouse business on Central avenue, Toledo, in which he was actively engaged up to the time of his death. Recently the city, in return for a boulevard right of way, which necessitated the removal of the old greenhouses, built for Mr. Fischer houses valued at $12,000, a short distance from the old location. He is survived by his wife and two daughters.

George E. Tromey.

George E. Tromey, a well-known retail florist of Cincinnati, O., died at his home last week after an illness of only a few days' duration. For a large number of years he was a member of Fred Gear's force. Eight or nine years ago he opened his own store and was successful from the start. Mr. Tromey belonged to several lodges and orders. His wife and two children survive him.

C. H. H.

Sewickley, Pa.—W. E. Patton has sold his greenhouses to Thomas Evans and retired from the business. The new owner will continue the business under the name of Valley Greenhouse Co.

Chrysanthemums

POINTS ON PROPAGATING.

I wish to grow my own chrysanthemums this year, with Mrs. Henry Robinson as my principal variety. Will you kindly let me know in what size of pots I should place the cuttings and what kind of soil is best? How deep should the cuttings be planted in the pots? Would it be safe to put them all in a coldframe and put sashes over them, shading them until they take root and also giving them air? When can I start taking the cuttings? G. K.—La.

Chrysanthemum cuttings are struck or rooted in sand, as a general rule. When the roots are about an inch long in the sand, they are taken up and potted in 2½-inch pots. The soil for this potting does not contain any fertilizer of any description; the best soil is a nice virgin loam, where it is possible to procure it. When the cuttings are planted, half an inch or so of the stem should be covered, with the roots. It would be entirely safe to put them in a coldframe with sashes over them, in your vicinity. When the plants are growing nicely they should be given all the air possible, whenever the temperature is over 40 degrees.

You can start making cuttings as soon as the old plants begin to throw up stock. If planted early the stock is liable to grow too tall, but it can be kept tipped and allowed to come along at the same time as the later propagated batch. Chas. H. Totty.

MUMS FOR LATE OCTOBER.

Please give me the names of the best white, yellow and pink chrysanthemums that will yield perfect blooms between October 20 and 30. What is the largest white that will flower at that time? Is Odessa perfect by that time?

L. W. V.—S. C.

The largest and most perfect white to come on between the dates mentioned would be either Mrs. J. P. Mitchel or Antigone. Both are good and superior to others. Mrs. Syme comes in about the same time, but it is little cultivated. The best yellow would be either Marigold or A. S. Baldwin. Odessa is a good variety, but it hardly would be ready at the time desired. Take either Lady Hopetoun or Adele Griswold for good pink blooms. Hopetoun still is the peer of any pink yet introduced, providing it can be had in good condition.

Chas. H. Totty.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

ST. LOUIS took National Flower Show week to announce a big spring show for 1917. The dates selected are March 15 to 18.

THE development of the rose and of the carnation has been carried to a point where a new variety must possess decided merit to attract more than ordinary attention on the exhibition table.

A SUBSCRIBER, somewhat new in the trade, complains that he has difficulty in procuring stock at wholesale prices; when he writes, some do not reply, while others send retail lists. But he uses paper out of a school tablet! The first thing to do, on starting a business, is to get a printed letterhead.

A NEW DELIVERY PLAN.

The Western Union Telegraph Co. has announced that on and after April 1 it will execute commissions for its patrons and will deliver flowers, candy, books and the like in any town or city where it has an office. There is no need to know a florist or confectioner or bookseller—just hand the Western Union the price, and it will make the purchase and deliver the goods for a small fee. This is an extension of the company's money transfer service.

The express companies for many years operated a similar purchase and delivery department, but the service was too slow to have much effect on the florists' business. The telegraph company can do better. Florists in large cities should find the telegraph company's business highly desirable.

WHEN COST COUNTS LITTLE.

The fear frequently is expressed that the rapid rise in the price of greenhouse materials, especially glass and pipe, will result in checking building operations. But why should it? If conditions are ripe for the increase of a grower's glass, the market price of materials counts for little; a grower would be unwise to build greenhouses he didn't need, just because materials were cheap, and he would lack in enterprise to postpone building, because of high prices, if conditions otherwise make building desirable. Given a market that calls for increased supplies of stock, any ordinary variation in the investment caused by the price of glass or pipe counts for little. Suppose a house does cost five or even ten per cent more this year than it did last year; aren't general conditions in the trade a lot better than that?

AGAIN, CAN YOU BEAT IT?

It isn't possible to give record results to every advertiser, but a surprising number write of the more than satisfactory returns they get through The Review. Like this:

Not advertising in The Review is like stopping the clock to save time.—Conrad Freund, Cleveland, O., March 17, 1916.

Review ads are helping wonderfully.—Ashborne Goldfish & Supply Co., Burlington, Ia., March 17, 1916.

I will say frankly, two short ads sold all my geraniums and vincas, bringing me very good results. I am perfectly satisfied with Review ads.—Charles Taynor, New Carlisle, O., March 16, 1916.

Mr. Taynor sold out his stock at a cost for advertising amounting to only $5.50.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

FERNS NOT SCARCE THIS SEASON.

At this time of year attention turns to the situation as regards hardy cut ferns and the prospect of a squeeze in whatever interval there is between old and new crop.

But the indications are that there are plenty of ferns this season and that there will be no shortage around Memorial day. It is true that many ferns in cold storage have been keeping poorly, but the loss, while it has hit the pocketbooks of certain parties, has not been enough to affect the general supply.

Perhaps the best evidence as to the present situation is found in the fact that prices all season, with business good, have been a shade under those of last season, with business slow. Also, the eastern shippers usually raise their wholesale prices each month as the season advances, but there was no increase for March, some shippers even reducing previously accepted quotations.

There evidently are plenty of ferns in the hands of the Massachusetts shippers, as well as moderate quantities in storage elsewhere.

PLANTSMEN'S TROUBLES.

Outside the greenhouses it is the quite general opinion that the grower has a snap—all he has to do is to stick some cuttings in the sand and, in the course of time, bank the money.

But there are plenty of indications that, this year at least, the growers who specialize on spring stock for the trade are having troubles of their own. To root geraniums appears to have been especially difficult this season. And vincas and other stock in special demand at this time also have given trouble.

Both growers and buyers have had trouble: The growers could not fill orders as expected and buyers were, and are, impatient, especially if their checks have been cashed. The insistence of buyers, demanding that stock be shipped at once or money refunded, has resulted in the shipment of much inferior stock, 2½-inch plants that scarcely would have been able to get by as rooted cuttings.

It is a season in which the man who is prompt and careful in answering correspondence and who refuses to send out stock until it is ready is adding greatly to his reputation.

AGAIN A RECORD.

The excuse for referring so often to The Review is that so many people are kind enough to take interest in the progress their trade paper still makes even after it has become known as one of the remarkable class journals of America. Not in any other trade in this country is there a journal carrying so large and comprehensive a volume of advertising as appears in The Review. Nor is there one in which so large a percentage of the advertising is depended on for direct mail orders to clear stock—stock that will be lost if not sold at once as a result of the advertising.

But to this week's record: It is for volume of classified advertising. Other issues have carried as much display, but never before has so much classified appeared in a single issue. There are almost twenty full pages of it this week. It is the trade's market place.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Beginning with the combined rain and sleet storm March 26, Chicago market conditions performed a right-about-face, and as a result the early part of the week found a bountiful supply of practically everything. March 27 and 28, while not markedly cold, were rainy and gusty, which quite effectually put a damper on local demand. Shipping business, though not as heavy, perhaps, as one could desire, has not been so much affected. Moreover, the dearth of weddings during the Lenten season is beginning to make itself felt. In spite of this fact, however, business was good until the weather took an unfavorable turn.

The supply of Beauties is regularly increasing and there is a marked improvement in the quality of receipts. The demand is primarily for short and medium length stock. The supply of other roses is more than equal to the demand. Ophelia and Russell are clearing with the least difficulty, though Maryland is moving with a fair degree of ease.

Last week carnations were on the short side of the market and experiencing a lively demand. This week they are in good supply and are moving slowly. The red varieties are in greatest demand. The general complaint is that Enchantress is far too plentiful. Valley is behaving in a most unusual way. It is actually sluggish! Though surely in the limelight, Easter lilies are not moving any too well. Violets, however, are clearing. So, too, are sweet peas. Tulips still meet with a fair demand. The supply of southern jonquils has been sufficiently great to take the edge off the market, and, as a consequence, they are not moving as rapidly as they should. Cattleyas are decidedly scarce, and though there is no great demand for them all receipts clear on arrival.

Asparagus sprays for funeral work are in more than usual demand. Ferns, too, find a ready sale. Smilax, however, shares with cattleyas the honor of being on the short side of the market. Other greens are moving well considering the condition of the market.

Various Notes.

George Asmus is having a bad time with his throat and has been taking treatment for three weeks. Although the swelling permits him to speak hardly above a whisper, it could not keep him away from the National Flower Show, for he is chairman of the committee.

There was a reunion of the Rudd family at Philadelphia, March 25. W. N. and Mrs. Rudd were from Chicago, Miss Phyllis went from Ithaca, where she is in Cornell, and Miss Margaret joined them from the famous New York farm on which she contributes her part to scientific management.

George J. Ball has all his space in Spencer sweet peas this spring and is picking some unusually long stems as well as a large quantity.

After having driven one of the earlier Pierce-Arrow sixes 50,000 miles, W. J. Smyth has traded it in for the last word in that maker's car. He expects delivery of the new machine May 1.

Chicago is well represented at the National Flower Show in Philadelphia this week. See the list of trade visitors there.

A new device for calling those on the floor who may be wanted has been installed by the A. L. Randall Co. It is a series of bell alarms and is proving much more satisfactory than the megaphone.

After spending a most enjoyable fortnight in the far southwest, Joseph Ziska, Sr., and Emil Jehlik, 1825 South Ashland avenue, returned to Chicago March 26.

A. G. Fischer has purchased the Clark's Flower Shop, 23 South Crawford avenue, and is getting ready for a heavy run of Easter business.

The sudden illness of his mother called J. E. Quallich, of the A. L. Randall Co., to Cleveland March 25.

A. F. Kavina, 2205 South Fifty-sixth avenue, was recently married to Miss Eleanor M. Cerny, 1647 South Austin boulevard.

Quite refreshed from his early spring vacation in the south, Roswell Schupp is again in charge of the shipping department of J. A. Budlong.

The wife of John Walsh, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, was taken suddenly ill early March 25 and was hurried to the University hospital. It was found she was suffering with acute appendicitis, and the surgeons decided to operate at once. The operation was successful and she is now convalescing.

Decorators and painters are working overtime in the store of Otto Larson, 1604 West Sixty-third street. He reports a phenomenal sale of Boston ferns.

There is nothing like work to cure a heavy cold, according to Otto Frese, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., who is quite recovered from a recent attack of neuralgia.

The ample space in the office of D. D. P. Roy in the Federal Life building is being converted into a veritable garden of flowering plants, ferns and palms, with rustic fence and benches.

Believing the demand for good Beauties never will wane, John Michelsen says the E. C. Amling Co. is not encouraging any grower to cut down on it if the grower really knows how to handle this rose well. But there are not many such.

The present crop of Sunburst is one of the finest Emil Buettner has yet cut of this rose of steadily increasing popularity. The foliage and color both are especially fine.

Among the spring jobs to be handled by Richard Gloede, of Evanston, is an 8-acre park at Rogers Park and nearly a dozen good landscape orders for private parties along the north shore.

The increased call for perennials is commented on at Winterson's Seed Store, where J. P. Degnan says the sales in this line have increased faster than in any other.

Just to show his friends in the trade that he has altogether recovered his health, Charles Erne, of Erne & Klingel, was on the market March 27 in spite of the rain and the cold.

Believing that the wholesale plant business offers unlimited scope for his energies, Peter Pearson is confining himself to that line, including seeds

The Market.

Business was steady until the middle of last week; then it took a decided drop, which all had anticipated, as conditions were due to change because of Lent. Roses and carnations are in good supply and the quality is good, bringing fair prices. The quality of Beauties is much better than that of a month ago. Calendulas have sold exceedingly well all winter and proved themselves money-makers for all who grew them. Some extra fine callas and Formosa lilies are in the market and sell well. Shipped-in California violets are fine, but there is not much demand for them.

Various Notes.

Miss Louise Wegner, who was operated on several weeks ago, is able to be up and around, but she is not quite ready for work.

J. J. Hess, before going to the National Flower Show at Philadelphia, was a guest at a large banquet Saturday evening, March 25, given by the Swiss ambassador at Washington.

Miss Gretchen Swoboda has returned after several months' visit to California, where she had a delightful time.

The Woerner Wire Works has been exceedingly busy all winter and right now is working day and night to fill orders on hand.

Frank Swanson, who some time ago leased the Arnold greenhouses on North Eighteenth street and has his store in South Omaha, is doing a good business and says he could do more if he had the glass.

At Council Bluffs.

Last Sunday we took a run over to Council Bluffs to see some of our brother florists, but, owing to the fact that our time was limited, we did not see all of them, much as we wished to. Our first stop was at Herman Bros.', where we found roses and carnations in good shape. Oscar Herman has had quite a lot of bad luck this winter. Some time ago he had his left arm broken and just at present is hardly able to be about, suffering from an ailment similar to rheumatism. He now is the proud possessor of a 7-passenger car, a gift from his father-in-law.

Henry Gerber, vegetable grower, is adding three houses, each 30x120, to be used for vegetables for the present, but later for cut flowers.

J. F. Wilcox & Sons have had a heavy run of business, both wholesale and retail, at their No. 1 plant. Some nice Ophelia, Russell and Ward were to be seen. Carnations also were fine. Down at Lake Manawa, where they have two big houses, 60x1,000, we found everything in really better shape than we expected, considering the fact that three years ago this month these houses were completely demolished by a tornado and last summer a hail storm broke every pane of glass in the houses. Under the efficient management of Foreman Harry Clark, the place has taken on new life and some excellent stock is the result. The houses have been given a good coat of paint inside and outside, which makes them look like new.

Fred Lainson is so busy these days he hardly knows which way to turn. His Bassett carnations beat any red to be seen in this market. Winsor also is fine, while his geranium and mum stock show excellent care. He is going to tear down two of his small houses and replace them with one, 97x260 feet, to be used for cucumbers. Mr. Lainson is a good example of what push and vim will do and what opportunities the florists' business affords those in it. He has about 150,000 square feet of glass, one of the finest homes in Council Bluffs and two or three automobiles. And with all his wealth, he is still one of the boys. L. S. H.

NASHVILLE.

The Market.

The three weeks I did not report saw great changes in the business here. The first two weeks were erratic as to weather—one day cold, the next day warm as summer. As a result the earlier daffodils did not produce heavily. Last week was mild and brought us plenty of rain, but also a terrible wind. With the wind came the worst fire the city has ever known, sweeping block after block and leaving thousands homeless. Many of these were good flower buyers, too. Fortunately, none of the trade was directly affected in any way, as there was none of them in the fire-swept part of tne city. Tom Joy served on the relief committee in caring for the homeless ones, until permanent quarters could be secured for them. Over 350 residences were burned. The fire was started by a little colored boy dropping his yarn ball into the open grate. Hastily snatching it from the flames, he threw it into the yard to extinguish it. The heavy wind rolled it under the house and in a moment the fire was beyond control. Naturally, the florists are wondering just what effect the fire will have on spring trade.

Last week brought an abundance of good stock of all kinds, the first real let-up on a shortage for over six months. Carnations and roses are plentiful and of excellent quality. Peas are as plentiful as I have ever seen them and the quality averages the best for forced stock. Truly, peas have improved much since the new winter-flowering orchid type first appeared. Outdoors the later varieties of narcissi are beginning to open, and they promise a full crop of exceptional quality. The varieties on this market are growing to be legion and it takes one who is well up on this flower to recognize half of them.

Hyacinths in pots have at last come into their own as regards quality. They have been of poor quality until the last few days, but they are selling well now. The first spiræas of the season made their appearance last week. They are not nearly so popular here as they once were. Rhododendrons are of excellent quality this season. Evidently we have a better grade than usual. The usual lot of peddling wagons have not appeared on the streets as yet this year, but the influx of stock is bound to bring them out. Fruit trees are in their glory now, and they tell me they have bloomed so late that we will have peaches again this year. If so, we will forgive the weather man for handing us so much winter when we should have had spring.

Various Notes.

Daniel MacRorie, president of the Society of American Florists, spent a day here on his way to the Philadelphia flower show. The boys were much pleased to see him.

J. F. Corbett reports that the wholesale plant business is starting off fine this season.

brought their stock of spring bulbs out and say that sales are already starting nicely.

McIntyre Bros. last week had the first snapdragons that have been seen this spring. These are not an all-winter seller here, though they are profitable as a spring crop.

Haury & Sons are to be complimented on the improved appearance of their store. They have a good general line of pot plants and their pot roses are especially attractive.

The Joy Floral Co. has a house full of good geranium plants. They are in 6-inch pots and are given plenty of room.

F. B.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Mark Henderson is cutting some fine carnations just now and is supplying the local market with excellent lettuce and radishes.

W. Calvert still is growing violets and asparagus, there being a great shortage of the latter in the greenhouses here at present.

G. W. Mulliss, of the McIntyre greenhouses, is bringing in good sweet peas, which meet with a ready sale.

The Dale Estate has been experimenting with schizanthus on a small scale, the lasting power of this poor man's orchid, as it is called in England, fully warranting more extensive growing next season. Even when cut short, the blooms grow to nearly double their size when the stalks are placed in water, and they bear a fresh appearance when more than a week old. Carnations are blooming more freely this month than they have done throughout the season, and violets are being picked in large quantities every day, most of the stems being nine inches in length and the blooms larger than ever.

We had two zero days last week, but the ice now has begun to melt and it looks as if spring is approaching. The cold weather no doubt will be helpful in retarding the growth of the Easter lilies and the rose stock. Judging by appearances, everything will be in good shape by the time Easter arrives.

W. J. Jones, of the Dale Estate, is gradually gaining strength in the sanitarium at Weston, after a severe illness. H. Swain, who has been growing sweet peas for the Dale Estate for a couple of years, resigned his position today. Miss Bessie Dale, head stenographer at the Dale Estate for the last five years, has gone to New York to enter upon her career as a nurse in St. Luke's hospital.

There still is a shortage in labor and several young women have been called in to assist in greenhouse work.

The Market.

Last week's cut flower market was not satisfactory. The tendency of price was downward. The supply of everything is increasing and this condition seems likely to continue until Easter. American Beauties are lower in price and abundant. The top price March 25 was $35 per hundred, with Hadley running neck and neck. The arrivals of Prima Donna are lighter. The other roses, such as Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Richmond, Killarney Brilliant, Sunburst, Ward, Francis Scott Key and Stanley, have their adherents and admirers and are quickly acquired by the bon-ton stores. Prices for the selects of all of these are steady. Of the short-stemmed and lower grades, few have fallen below $20 per thousand.

The quality of the carnations arriving is perfect and prices hold remarkably strong. The sizes of the shipments, however, grow larger daily and a break this week seems inevitable. The fancies sold at $3 per hundred; few dropped to less than $2 except the imperfect stock. Sweet peas are numerous and any but the best are hard to dispose of at any price. The best of the Spencers are greatly favored and sell readily. The quality of these is superb. Violets must be first-class to yield 25 cents per hundred. Shipments are heavy.

The street merchants were legion March 25, and they were loaded with trays of valley. Sweet peas and violets and even gardenias were offered in great quantities by these merchants. The best gardenias were selling at $1.50 per dozen, and from that figure down to $5 per hundred. Valley holds at $1 to $3, with an occasional sale at $4, but the supply is growing larger. Lilies are abundant and prices steady at the previous week's quotations. There will be little change before Lent ends. There was a slight advance in orchids during the week, but it did not hold, and Saturday saw the previous week's figures repeated. A few of the finest cattleyas sold at 50 cents. One concern says it is receiving 1,000 orchids daily. The tulip shipments again are large. There were more than the market could digest March 25. Prices have been well maintained on bulbous stock, especially on daffodils and narcissi. There are no signs as yet of the southern invasion. Callas are abundant, as well as pansies, lilac, mignonette and the other seasonable spring flowers.

Various Notes.

A large number of tradesmen attended the National Flower Show at Philadelphia. F. H. Traendly left March 25. Mr. and Mrs. P. Breitmeyer were in the city March 24, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bunyard, and on their way to the show. The whole affair reflects credit on A. L. Miller and his committee.

Show, which opens April 5, will be a fitting mate of the National Flower Show. We are to be honored by the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia, who are patrons of the red cross tea garden at the Grand Central Palace, in connection with the show

H. W. Thomas, of D. C. Arnold & Co., has gone to Saranac Lake, because of illness, and will remain at the resort for some time.

The sympathy of many friends is tendered John and Ambrose Cleary in their bereavement by the death of their mother, Thursday, March 23.

C. C. Trepel will have as novelty attractions, at his store at Bloomingdale's, a Japanese garden department, with small native attendants, and a Holland section, with little Dutch ladies, in costume, selling bulbs, nursery stock and other importations. Mr. Trepel will establish an auction department, selling two days in the conservatory on the roof and one day each week in the store.

Madison avenue is fast becoming the center of the retail cut flower industry, a dozen new stores having been opened during the last year. From Forty-fourth street up to Seventy-second street nearly every block has its floral emporium.

J. H. Small & Sons will move May 1 to their new store at Fifty-second street and Madison avenue. The high rentals of Fifth avenue and Broadway are thus avoided.

The plant auctions are in full swing. At the MacNiff Horticultural Co. rooms the crowds of suburbanites increase at every sale. Two auctions here are conducted simultaneously.

The seedsmen have had a breathing spell during the cold weather, but now that spring is really here they are at it again, night and day.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held April 10, the week of the International Flower Show.

Jack Trepel, buyer and manager for Joseph Trepel, of Brooklyn, last week celebrated his wedding anniversary.

Messrs. Elliott and son, of Boston, were in New York early Monday morning on their way to Philadelphia and the National Flower Show.

The New York Galvin store was visited last week by Thomas Galvin, of Boston. Mr. Galvin is greatly pleased with the season's record under the care of Manager Decrie.

Louis Michel, formerly with Charles Abrams, of Brooklyn, has opened a store on his own account in the Orpheum, at 578 Fulton street.

The interest in the International Flower Show, which opens here April 5, is increasing daily. It will be the greatest flower show ever seen in New York. A large attendance is anticipated, comparing favorably with the German and Jewish bazaars of the last few weeks.

The Grand Central Palace and Madison Square Garden flower booths at the German bazaar last week were presided over by Mrs. Julius Roehrs, Mrs. W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., Mrs. A. J. Guttman, Mrs. John Miesem, the Misses Miesem and Mrs. Charles Arnold.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There is a distinct change in conditions, due chiefly to milder weather. All flowers are more plentiful. Business, while good for mid-Lent and the end of March, lacks snap. Staple flowers, such as roses, carnations and daffodils, are in fair demand. Valley continues quite scarce. Gardenias, stocks, forget-me-nots and wallflowers are neglected. Lilac has been selling well. So have Easter lilies; they bring a better price now than at Easter, although, of course, a larger supply would change conditions. Single violets are nearing the end of their season. Double violets are not in favor at present. The feature of this market is the heavy supply of fine Spencer sweet peas. Their price has declined, but great numbers are used at the lower figures. With the Spencers in such grand form, the early-flowering sorts have little chance.

Beauties are finding a market after their period of scarcity. The other roses have been accumulating a little at times, mostly in the standard varieties. Well grown novelties fare rather better. Carnations are down a peg; the increased receipts compel the lower rate. Emperor daffodils are in strong demand. Their quality is superb, their supply limited. Cattleyas are quite plentiful at lower prices; so are snapdragons. The wholesale houses that enjoy an out-of-town business are shipping a considerable quantity of stock. Southern daffodils and arbutus are both active at list prices.

The National Flower Show.

The preliminary work of two years is over. The Fourth National Flower Show is in full swing at Convention hall. Whether it is a complete or only partial success others must decide. For ourselves it is only necessary to say that we have done our best. Whatever shortcomings there may be are not from want of effort. We hope that this show may be considered a step in advance in horticulture in America. We now know that we have made two blunders. Our largest hall was not nearly large enough and we should have known and squarely met that Sunday closing law in time. Up to March 26 the daily press and the general public believed the show would be open that day, Sunday. This was a serious error. The way that our out-of-town brethren of the profession and their families have come to our city to see the show is most gratifying and we are deeply grateful to them for their interest.

A Credit Association.

There has been a strong feeling among the wholesale florists in this city throughout the fall and winter in favor of a local credit association. Recent happenings have brought out strongly the need of some system by which credits may be regulated. Under present conditions it is possible for a buyer to run up accounts with a number of wholesale commission houses. These accounts, moderate in themselves, often prove so heavy in the aggregate that they prove unbearable, and a heavy, sometimes a total, loss results. While these credits are carefully regulated by an association the chances of loss are greatly diminished because the fact that a buyer cannot exceed a given credit compels much greater care with his or her credits and collections. The principal bar to the formation of a credit association is the opposition of those who can not or will not see that it would be to the advantage of all, by cutting out unfair competition, for a retail florist who does not pay his bills is an unfair competitor. He can sell regardless of price the stock for which he pays nothing. It is simply a case of united we stand, divided we fall.

Various Notes.

Robert Kift has resigned his position at Vollers' House of Flowers.

George Asmus, chairman of the National Flower Show committee, announced that the paid admissions at Convention hall at 6 p. m. March 25 were larger than those of any previous opening day of a national show.

Ernest Hemming addressed the March meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

Henry Oldys, of Silver Springs, Md., spoke before the Garden and Orchard Club March 29.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. had handsomely filled porch boxes in front of their store in honor of the National Flower Show visitors.

B. Eschner was pleased with the number of out-of-town visitors who called at the M. Rice Co. store, which was decorated in their honor.

George Aeugle reports activity in lilac at the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. store.

A. M. Campbell has some wonderful Emperor daffodils.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is proud of William A. Leonard's show Russells.

Eugene Bernheimer feelingly described the pleasure of the crippled children from the Widener home who visited the National Flower Show March 27. Mr. Bernheimer was one of the committee who brought the children to and fro and saw to their comfort.

American Beauty roses are to be had. While the demand is good, the price has dropped to $6 per dozen for the best. Other roses are more plentiful, but the wholesale houses are managing to clean up daily. The top prices are $8 to $10 per hundred; some of the grades sell only at the buyer's offer. Valley has been draggy and the wholesalers report it to be a losing game, even though the price has advanced to $5 per hundred. Since this increase went into effect the sale has fallen off and the growers have had to hold their stocks for several days at a time. There are about three times as many sweet peas on the market as there were a month ago and the price has dropped to the point where $1 per hundred is high for the best. Large quantities of these find their way to the street fakers, as do violets, which are arriving in large quantities. The latter are to be had at $5 per thousand and less. Carnations have been holding up well and the best are bringing $4. Northern-grown orchids are selling well

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., is scheduled to be held Tuesday evening, April 4, at 1214 F street, northwest. The principal business of the evening will be the installation of the new president and vice-president.

R. Lloyd Jenkins, of Anacostia, has so far recovered from his recent illness that he is able to attend to his business.

Charles Scarborough was in charge of the display at the Philadelphia flower show made by the Gude Bros. Co. According to the announcement of William F. Gude, about one-half of the company's employees will visit the show during the week, taking advantage of the educational opportunities offered.

Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks of Minneapolis, Minn., and J. J. Hess, of Omaha, Neb., were the guests of the Gude Bros. Co. last week. Before leaving for the Philadelphia show they had an opportunity of visiting many of the places of interest in and about the city. They visited the greenhouses and expressed themselves well pleased with all that they had seen.

Florists of Washington have been invited to enter the window display contest to be operated under the auspices of the Washington Chamber of Commerce. The contest is to run for three days. The stores are to be divided into five classes and to the winner in each there is to be awarded a scholarship in a Scranton correspondence school. Those desiring to enter their windows in this contest should communicate at once with Secretary Thomas Grant.

The Market.

Although the Lenten season now is well advanced, there does not seem to be the usual slackening of business. Funeral and hospital work has greatly exceeded that of last year at this time, which is the main line with the retailers. Stock was more plentiful last week and prices declined in some lines. Roses are good and more plentiful, especially in the fancy stock. Beauties still are scarce, with the demand for them on the increase. The Russell and Milady roses enjoy a large demand, regardless of the Lenten season. Carnations have started into another large crop and prices are expected to recede.

Bulbous stock is more plentiful than it has been at any time this season, but it is being cleaned up. Sweet peas are exceedingly plentiful and of good quality—the best this market has ever had. The prices remain the same as those of the week previous. As a whole, the market is well supplied and prices are good.

Various Notes.

The seed houses report that the seed business is the best they have ever had, although they have considerable trouble in securing some kinds of seeds. The stores handling bulbs have had a heavy season.

Nurserymen have started to plant out their orders for this spring and they are busy trying to find enough help to plant the stock. The general report is that orders are larger and more numerous, and that it will require extra work to get them out before hot weather comes.

The dry goods stores have had an all-week sale of spring planting bulbous stock, at low prices, which is going to affect some of the retailers in that line.

Arthur Newell reports that he had all the business his force could handle last week. A number of out-of-town funeral orders were executed. The supplies for the Easter trade have arrived.

T. J. Noll reports that his shipping business has far exceeded his expectations for Lent.

Henry Kusik & Co. had shipped to them last Thursday 18,000 southern jonquils.

William Foith will have a good batch of lilies and cinerarias ready for the Easter trade.

Biedermann & Son made a deal in real estate last week, selling a part of their place. They will have some splendid Easter Greetings and lilies for Easter.

Adolph Mohr is cutting first-class sweet peas, 1,500 to 3,000 per day. His lily crop for Easter is in good shape.

Samuel Murray reports that funeral work during the week was especially heavy.

James B. Masson is trying to dispose of all his stock. Since the death of his wife he has been unable to handle the place alone. He will stock up again for a wholesale pot plant business. He now has most of his place filled with bedding plants.

E. C. Gullett, of Lincoln, Ill., was in the city last week. W. J. B.

TRI-CITIES.

The Market.

The demand for flowers of all kinds was good last week. Funeral work was less in evidence, but stock generally cleared well. Roses are in good supply and of fine quality. Carnations have been in rather short supply and as yet are none too plentiful. Tulips are on the wane and daffodils in good supply. Peas are plentiful and other stock in fair supply, but in no line can there be said to be a surplus. Potted plants continue in good demand. A few springlike days have brought some inquiries for hardy plants.

Various Notes.

Ludwig Stapp reports trade conditions more favorable than for some time, with a fairly good supply in all lines. This is quite a relief from the conditions of a short time ago, when stock was short in supply.

H. G. Pauli reports business good and is preparing for a big demand in window boxes and bedding stock.

Harry Bills has had a large supply

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Charles Vorkeller, of South Bethlehem, Pa., denies the rumor that he recently acquired a block of Bethlehem steel stock, but he admits investing in a fine touring car, an evidence of prosperous business.

John F. Horn & Bro., of Allentown, Pa., note a shortage of and increasing call for white flowers, and are growing every variety of plant producing that color, for their retail trade. John Horn, commenting upon the lateness of the season, predicts a puzzling time for the grower of bedding and Easter stock. A splendid lot of Primula obconica grandiflora was noted among a fine general stock.

Ernest Ashley, of Allentown, rounding out his fifteenth year in the business here, notes with satisfaction the increasing call for fine work. In a recent competition for window displays he received first prize for artistic arrangement, but says that much of the credit is due Mrs. Ashley. A tract of land has been acquired for nursery purposes. Ella Knauss, his efficient bookkeeper, is shortly to be married. She has the best wishes of her many friends in the business.

John H. Sykes, of Allentown, says the way orders have come in for funeral work has been remarkable, using everything in the shape of natural flowers.

Edward Kroninger, of Allentown, is shipping in some of the finest carnations grown around here and has done much towards boosting local trade, although he grows for wholesale exclusively.

Andrew Yeager, Allentown, is justly proud of his new mansion, which is being completed and in which he and his industrious partner will enjoy their leisure hours.

Anton Schultheis, of Scranton, Pa., smilingly remarked that there were some who would not be downed. He has made a remarkable success in the space of two years, considering the fact that his place was almost totally wrecked two years ago. A new house rose, Marechal Niel, which is grown on the place. We both associated it with our more romantic days.

Charles Doerrer & Son, of Westfield, N. J., remarked, when being complimented upon his attractive place, that it was just as necessary for the florist to have a thoroughly up-to-date store and show house as the man in any other line of business. The more attractive the surroundings, the more seductive are the flowers.

H. W. Pierce, of Kingston, Pa., expects the authorities to purchase his estate of ninety-five acres for a park, which will include the greenhouses, in which case he will rebuild farther out.

HYDRANGEAS FOR EASTER.

I would like to know how far advanced my Hydrangea Otaksa should have been March 25. We have some hydrangeas with clusters as large as a half-dollar and some only showing buds.

C. W. R.—Kan.

If your hydrangeas had heads two to two and one-half inches across March 25, they will need an average night temperature of 60 degrees until Easter in order to develop them properly. Of course, we may have a warm spell, which would advance them more quickly, but it is easy to hold them back in a cool and airy house.

C. W.

SPIRAEAS FOR EASTER.

Some of our spiræas are twelve to sixteen inches tall and the pinnacles of the buds are branched out, while others are only showing the buds plainly. Will these flowers be in time for Easter?

C. W.R.—Kan.

Your spiræas should come along in ample time for Easter. If you are growing the old S. Japonica they may need some retarding, but astilboides and Gladstone need longer time to develop them properly. Queen Alexandra, Peach Blossom and other pink forms will need about all the time remaining

CACTUS AND PEONY DAHLIAS.

Will you please advise me as to the best varieties of cactus and peony-flowered dahlias for commercial use, and as to their colors? F. C.—Ind.

Peony-flowered dahlias—Bertha von Suttner, salmon-pink; Glory of Baarn, soft pink; John Green, yellow, changing to scarlet; Mrs. T. G. Baker, pure white; Queen Wilhelmina, beautiful pure white; Geisha, orange-red, shaded yellow. Cactus dahlias—F. M. Stredwick, pure white; Harbor Light, orange-red; J. H. Jackson, crimson-maroon; Countess of Lonsdale, salmon-tinted apricot; Kriemhilda, brilliant pink, lighter center, fine but not an early bloomer; Ruth Forbes, clear pink; Golden Wave, deep yellow; Amos Perry, scarlet. C. W.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Newark, N. J.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Harry C. Strobell, trading as H. C. Strobell & Co., at 895 Broad street. The petition was filed by Nathan Bilder, representing the creditors. The case was referred to George W. Porter, referee in bankruptcy, who named Chester W. Fairlie receiver. The receiver was placed under $2,900 bonds. No order was issued by the receiver for the continuance of the business. Mr. Strobell filed a written consent to be immediately adjudicated bankrupt. It is estimated by Mr. Strobell that his assets and liabilities are about equal. He values the Broad street property at $150,000. On this there is a mortgage of $103,000. He owns a greenhouse at 101 Elizabeth avenue, and the flowers and plants on hand were estimated at $2,500. The liabilities are not stated, but the bankruptcy petition states that they are much in excess of $10,000. R. B. M.

Holyoke, Mass.—Gallivan Bros. recently purchased the stock of Hugh Clark and held special sales for a week to dispose of it.

The Market.

Prices have at last broken quite badly, due in a large degree to the belated coming of warmer and more springlike weather. We still have snow in abundance, but it is melting rapidly and the time for spring planting will soon be here, more particularly as there is no frost below the snow. Roses have taken a decided drop all around. They still are of grand quality, but supplies exceed the demand. American Beauties are more plentiful and the prices have fallen sharply. Russells sell well. They are temporarily somewhat scarce, and Hadley is not overabundant. Ophelia cleans up well, as does Francis Scott Key. The last-named variety is becoming quite a favorite and is eagerly bought. White Killarney and Killarney Brilliant go slowly. Cecile Brunner sells the best of the small polyanthas and realizes double the price of the few Elger roses.

Carnation values have dropped sharply, although many growers are much off crop. Sweet peas are abundant and fine. Single violets are nearly over, but doubles will last more than a month. They move slowly. There is a much heavier supply of snapdragons, with lower prices. The warmer weather has sent bulbous stock along with a grand rush and prices have softened. Some extra fine Darwin tulips are coming in, of which Pride of Haarlem is much the best. Yellow marguerites are coming in much more freely, as well as pansies, mignonette and cornflowers.

Callas and lilies have been rather druggy, but good valley is in demand.

Quite a variety of miscellaneous flowers is arriving. Gardenias are more abundant; the best flowers bring $3 and $4 per dozen. Cattleyas temporarily are somewhat scarce. Asparagus continues to sell well. Trade in flowering plants is active, the best sellers being rambler roses, bulbous stock, deciduous flowering shrubs, cinerarias, genistas and azaleas.

The Bowlers' Banquet.

The winner of the Florists' Bowling League championship was announced in last week's issue. The score in the final play-off of the three tied teams was as follows:

plants and cut flowers. A 5-piece orchestra and artists from local theaters furnished the entertainment. Julius H. Zinn presided at the after-dinner exercises and called on W. H. Elliott to present the prizes, which he did in his usual inimitable style. J. J. Cassidy, John Dowd, Seymour Grose, J. M. Cohen and others made speeches.

The members of the winning team were Messrs. B. McGinty, Barr, Lamy, J. P. A. Guerineau and Harrigan. The Galvin team, winner of second position, consisted of McDonough, Dowd, Dike, McNally and Dunn. Among the leading winners of individual prizes were: J. Bresnahan, high average; J. Montgomery, second high average; J. McDonough, third high average; F. Pettitt, fourth high average. J. Jacobs had high single string and J. Dowd high triple string. Other winners were Neil Casey, E. A. Pierce, M. Hambro, W. A. McAlpine, J. Gearin and Lester Comley.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, J. Seymour Grose; vice-president, J. Dowd; secretary and treasurer, C. J. Sloan.

Various Notes.

The Budlong Rose Co. is receiving remarkably fine Francis Scott Key roses, which prove to be great sellers. Stanley and their Sunburst sport also are in great demand. Indiana now is coming of good color, not unlike Stanley. Russell and Hadley are each off crop, but Ophelia is abundant and remains as popular as ever. They continue to have fine gardenias.

Henry Zumbrumen, of Auburndale, is sending in some remarkably fine antirrhinums.

F. W. Fletcher & Co. have flowered a splendid lot of hybrid freesias in a variety of colors, with flowers just as large as those of Purity.

The warmer weather has brought a rush of orders to the seed stores, which now have more business than they can properly care for. It has been a laggard season and will be a strenuous and trying one for both seedsmen and nurserymen.

season of the variety Nelrose are those from R. P. Petersen, of Saxonville. Snapdragons to realize $2.50 per dozen at wholesale must be good.

The closing lecture of the season was given at Horticultural hall March 25. Prof. J. J. Taubenhaus should have lectured on "Sweet Pea Diseases and Their Control," but was unable to attend. His lecture, however, will be printed in the transactions of the society.

The Darwin tulips which were first forced here to any extent on private estates are now being grown commercially to an increasing extent. Pride of Haarlem remains the favorite and flowers such as grown by Paine Bros., of Randolph, are so vastly superior to the early tulips that the latter are simply not in the running.

J. A. Nelson, of Framingham, is getting a heavy pick of his high-grade carnations. Pink Delight, Matchless and Benora are fine. Alice is growing better all the time, both in stem and color.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. report business as being splendid. Their growers are sending them splendid lots of cut flowers, Sim's sweet peas, mignonette and violets and John McFarland's valley being noteworthy.

English primroses, yellow polyanthus, pansies and violets in large bouquets meet with heavy sales at Wax Bros.', where business shows a decided jump since flowers have become more reasonable in price.

In last week's Review the name A. Streckwald, of Tewksbury, should have read A. Strickwell.

Welch Bros. Co. reports business as being good. This firm anticipates the best Easter business on record.

Henry Penn and A. L. Boch, of Penn's, are visitors at the Philadelphia show. A fine spring display of plants has been a feature here the last few days. Business remains brisk.

The W. W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, has a grand lot of stock coming along for Easter, comprising lilies, azaleas, genistas, roses, metrosideros, acacias, etc. A large attendance is looked for on the occasion of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club field day here, April 8.

The attendance at the New York show from here will be light. The long winter followed by warm weather causes such a rush of necessary work that few feel able to spare time to visit another show, more especially as Boston will have a large exhibition opening May 10. W. N. C.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The market last week was in first-class condition in every respect and the retailers had little room for complaint. As to supply, every flower in season is in plenty at any of the five wholesale cut flower markets. The retailers say trade last week was only good in spots, the bulk of the business being funeral work. The wholesalers say that the stock in the lighter shades had the call all the week. Roses are arriving in fine quality and the supply is large. The prices are most reasonable on prime stock of all varieties except Beauties.

Carnations are too plentiful for the demand, but all are readily sold at $3 per hundred; only the lower grades are left over. Sweet peas are in abundance and have been for a month. The sale of fancy Spencers is large at $5 per thousand. The other grades, which are in the bulk, are not looked after much at present. Violets are letting up somewhat and the demand is not any too good. Bulbous stock is coming in heavily and there is some extra quality stock in tulips, jonquils, Von Sions, Dutch hyacinths, lilies and callas. Valley is scarce. Snapdragons, unless extra fine, do not sell in this market.

Various Notes.

The annual banquet given by the Retail Florists' Association March 20 at the Mission Inn Garden was one of the most pleasant affairs ever given by this association. The tables were nicely decorated. Covers were laid for thirty-five and thirty responded to the call. A splendid menu had been prepared, with a gay cabaret and good music after cigars. President Charles Young, who was selected as toastmaster, called on several of the members, who explained the workings and object of this association for the benefit of the non-members present. Each gave an interesting talk and there were quite a few who filed applications for membership. All present said they never spent a more pleasant evening and the result will, no doubt, prove beneficial to the association.

Park experts met here last week for a conference to form a national association. The meeting lasted three days. Among those present were Cabot Ward, of the New York park board; Irvin M. Krohn, of the Cincinnati park board; C. Lechman, Kansas City park board; Louis Nash, park commissioner of St. Paul, Minn.; S. Wales Dixon, of Hartford, Conn.; John Noyes, of Worcester, Mass.; Chas. I. Niedhans, of Denver, Colo. All the attendants were entertained by Park Commissioner Conliff and enjoyed an automobile ride through the parks.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold its monthly meeting at the Eleven Mile House April 6. President Fred W. Ude, Jr., who has returned from his Florida trip, will preside and no doubt will have some interesting things to tell the members about Florida.

The following members of the Florists' Club are in Philadelphia this week for the National Flower Show: Jules Bourdet, J. F. Ammann, Fred H. Weber, Fred C. Weber, Jr., David Scott Geddis, F. H. Meinhardt and Otto G. Koenig. The party left Saturday, March 25, over the Pennsylvania route.

A. M. Sanders, representing the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, called on the trade last week. This was Mr. Sanders' first trip to St. Louis and he was pleased with it.

company with Mrs. Seeger, is still in Florida for his health. In his absence his brother, Martin J. Seeger, is acting head of the store.

Fred Michel, expert designer at Waldbart's Grand avenue establishment, has had many opportunities this season to display his ability. Mr. Michel is one of those good-natured, unassuming fellows who make many friends.

The C. Young & Sons Co. is making special window displays of bulbs, seeds and garden implements. At this time of the year these displays attract many and an extra force will be put on this week to handle the mail-order trade.

At Angermueller's wholesale house it is reported that shipping of all kinds of supplies to the western part of Missouri and to Texas has kept the force busy.

It is a sure sign of spring when Thomas Carr opens his big plant stands at Union Market, and that is what happened last week. Mr. Carr says the few warm days kept things rushing in plants, seeds and bulbs.

Jules Bourdet, head of the Bourdet Floral Co., says his concern will not be caught by the lateness of Easter, but expects to have a large assortment of Easter plants for the local trade, as usual.

Messrs. Bruenig, Herzog and Kruse, three well-known south end florists, experienced a busy week in funeral work. All plants, too, had a call.

Our landscape gardeners, who have plenty of work ahead, are having great difficulty in securing competent help to carry out their plans. Common labor, too, seems scarce.

John M. Walther, a well-known south end grower, has a splendid lot of fine cinerarias in full bloom; also bulbous

E. W. Guy and A. E. Halstead, of the St. Clair Floral Co., Belleville, have their houses in shape again after the heavy damage by a storm in January. Both expect a heavy demand for bedding plants this season and are well prepared.

George Schmidt, rose grower for W. J. Pilcher, Kirkwood, says that the men soon will be cutting an abundance of extra quality Russell, Hearst and Shawyer roses, while Ward, Ophelia and Killarney will be in abundance from now on.

Vandervoort's floral department reports an extra heavy sale on $1 boxes of cut flowers from their big advertisement in the daily papers for March 25.

The addition to the Washington avenue store of Grimm & Gorly is nearly completed. This will place an additional $200 per month on their rent, but they say they will need the room for their fast-growing business.

John Moritz, head of the big greenhouses at Forest park, has a great quantity of fine bedding plants ready for the various parks when planting out time comes. Superintendent Strehle has a big force of men at work making preparations to receive them. J. J. B.

mands. Bulbous plants are of good quality and plentiful. Lilies are more abundant than they were. Gardenias are plentiful and bring a medium price. The prices of orchids have an upward trend. Valley is of good quality, abundant and reasonable in price, but not low-priced. Not so many freesias are seen in the stores. Sweet peas of excellent quality are coming in and there is a good demand for them at medium prices. Last week southern arbutus made its appearance in the market. Some fine potted hydrangeas are now on display in some of the stores.

There continues to be much funeral work, but it is not as large in volume as that of a few weeks ago. Spring flowers, such as forget-me-nots, pansies, etc., are coming into the market more freely, but are not overabundant.

Various Notes.

George Penek reports that business is keeping up well and that the total business done since the first of the year has been much better than that of the corresponding months of last year.

A. Deisler & Son say business is good. They have had much funeral work.

Charles Luthy, who added magnolia wreaths and artificial flowers to his regular business when the prices of cut flowers were so high, reports doing well in the new lines, while at the same time the demand for cut flowers, plants, etc., has been good. He is building wall cases for the protection of the wreaths.

Joseph D. Kroehl, Jr., states that business began to pick up about the middle of January and has been good since, though Lent has brought a little dullness.

The S. A. Rogers Nursery Co. reports that there has been quite a demand for novelties during the last few weeks. Stock for Japanese gardens sells well.

August Begerow had a splendid window decoration last week. It was right in line with the preparedness agitation. In the middle of the window was a miniature warship with turrets and tin sailors. There also was a fort, barracks, tin soldiers, flags, etc.

R. B. M.

Beatrice, Neb.—The Dole Floral Co. has started work on a large greenhouse, the eleventh house to be erected by this aggressive concern.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20 to 22, 1916.

VISITED CHICAGO: Marshall H. Duryea, of the Nungesser-Dickinson Seed Co., New York.

CALIFORNIA growers believe next season will develop a stronger demand for onion seed than any heretofore met.

THE seed houses at Atlantic ports are making combined shipments by boat to points whence local freight service can be had to destinaton. It is slow, but it beats the embargo.

IN choosing a location for a seed store in a city it should be noted that the rush of counter sales is during the luncheon hours and again at closing time. Get into the office building district.

WINTER did not come to the Holland bulb fields until after they had been uncovered for spring. Two feet of snow is thought to have prevented damage from zero weather at the end of February.

IS the seed trade's disclaimer slowly breaking down? In spite of the best efforts of the trade to uphold it, each new law requiring any sort of guarantee or statement is a step in the other direction.

THE congestion on eastern railroads is felt as far west as the Missouri river and shipments of seeds are being refused for the reason that eastern roads will not accept them at Chicago. The embargo is to prevent congestion at the central terminal.

PLANS are being made by the Gate City Seed Co., of Keokuk, Ia., for rebuilding the warehouse recently destroyed by fire. It is said that the new building will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000. The loss by fire last December was estimated at $26,000.

THE peak of the seed season almost always falls in the second half of March; usually "big Monday" with the mail-order houses is the fourth Monday in this month. But this year, with most seedsmen, including all of the catalogue houses in the north, but especially the concerns that do considerable counter trade, March is far behind and the last week of the month finds seed selling only fairly started. If April does not break records there will be much disappointment.

REPORTS coming across the water indicate that Great Britain is taking steps to prevent, next season, evasions of the embargo placed on seeds, plants and roots of German origin. It is well known, for instance, that exports of valley pips avowedly of Danish or Dutch origin have considerably exceeded the quantities ordinarily produced in those countries and it is reported that British consular agents are preparing to inspect the 1916 crops in those countries for the purpose of limiting the exports to the stock of known neutral origin.

J. J. BUDLONG, head of the L. A. Budlong Co., Chicago, made a conspicuous success of the market garden, pickle and onion set businesses and then turned banker, in which calling he also is making a success. As president of the Lake View Trust and Savings bank the first thing he did was to put up a handsome new building. Then he began advertising, putting a card in the same street cars that carry the famous ad of Budlong's dark green spinach. During 1915 the bank's deposits increased over $500,000, the number of accounts in-

The Last Call on Sutton's Novelties

Hustle Along Your Order

YOU have just about time enough (but no more than enough) to pick from our catalogue some of the English novelties you have heard so much about.

There is going to be a great demand for English things this year. People can't go to England's flowers, so it is the wise growers who are bringing England's flowers to them.

Send 35 cents for 190-page catalogue, which amount will be promptly refunded with your first order amounting to $5.00.

NEW JERSEY BILL NOW LAW.

Governer Fielder last week signed the bill which, while pending in the New Jersey legislature, aroused so much opposition in the seed trade of the state. The bill was amended in a few minor details as the result of a hearing February 8, attended by many seedsmen, but not enough to any way lessen the objections to it.

The law is of great importance because for the first time it includes garden seeds within its requirements as to purity and germination and because the bill, drafted by an official of the national organization of seed analysts, is sure to be the model for seed legislation in other states. The grass seed dealers have been the object of regulatory legislation for so many years the sensation is not new to them, and this New Jersey law permits them to sell anything they please so long as they label it for what it is, but the garden seed man is required to do something he never before has been asked to do and which he believes to be impossible. He is required to state on the label of each parcel of one pound or more the true varietal name, the percentage of germination at a stated date of test and the percentage of purity. No distinction is made in the case of those seeds that are not distinguishable, one from another, by their appearance.

Whether or not a seedsman can be compelled by law to warrant that of which he states he gives no warranty is one of the questions the courts will have to determine as a result of the signing of the New Jersey bill No. 34.

WAR NO EXCUSE FOR BREACH.

The florists and seedsmen who are importers will be interested to know that the New York Supreme court recently decided a contract for the sale of goods, entered into and to be performed in the United States, is binding upon the seller, although he may be a citizen of one of the belligerent countries, whose war laws make it difficult or unlawful for him to carry out his agreement. The court supported its conclusions by citing several decisions of higher courts of this country and of England to the same general effect.

In this case the defendants entered

Burpee-Quality Seeds Help Solve the Market Problem

It is our pleasure to record a greatly improved market condition, and we confidently predict that 1916 will prove a most prosperous season for the Market Grower.

Many causes contributed to the unsatisfactory vegetable market of 1915, and it is also true that these same causes created a most profitable market for Staples, such as Wheat, Corn, Oats, etc.

During 1915 we attended many meetings where market growers gathered to formulate plans to overcome the then prevailing unfavorable conditions. Much good resulted from these conventions, as they have proved beyond question that inferior produce in large quantities, dumped without thought of quality or condition, has done more to demoralize the markets than any other factor.

The discussions at these meetings have brought the invariable conclusion that Quality Produce did sell —and sell well—at the highest price obtainable.

Quality Produce can no more be the harvest of inferior seed than high-bred cattle can be the product of inferior or diseased stock.

Burpee's Seeds are known the world over as the American Standard of Excellence. When you buy Burpee's Seeds the element of doubt is removed so far as is possible by human care.

A careful canvass of our Market Grower friends has brought this answer: "Yes, we certainly grew first-class crops from Burpee's Seeds."

The conclusion is inevitable: Burpee's Seeds grow Quality Produce, and Quality Produce brought good prices. Burpee's Seeds help solve the market problem.

Did you use Burpee's Seeds in 1915? If not, we earnestly solicit your orders for 1916. The profit is mutual.

Burpee's Annual for 1916, our complete retail catalog of 182 pages, has already been mailed. If you have failed to receive it, please write us at once and a duplicate copy will be forwarded.

Sincerely yours, into a contract in New York before the European war was declared, agreeing to deliver at New York or Boston merchandise of Belgian origin. The defendants are citizens of Germany, and when sued for breach of the contract pleaded as a complete defense that the performance of the contract had been prevented by hostilities between their country and Belgium, which, under the German law, prevented the exportation of the merchandise or dealings with Belgian industries. But the court applied the rule that impossibility of performance of a contract due to a foreign law is no excuse for nonperformance of an agreement made and to be performed in a neutral country. The decision quotes the following statement of a federal court: "The contracting parties are subject to the contingencies of changes in their own law and are liable to have the execution of their contracts prevented thereby, but it is on the ground of illegality, not of impossibility. Prevention by the law of a foreign country is not usually deemed an excuse, when the act which was contemplated by the contract was valid in view of the law of the place where it was made and, for stronger reasons, when it also was valid at the place of performance." S.

LAW ON TELEGRAM ERRORS.

When an order for seed is sent by telegraph and, through mistake of an operator, is delivered as calling for a greater quantity than was intended, the buyer who accepts delivery of the excess has no cause of action against the telegraph company on account of the mistake, according to a recent decision of the Mississippi Supreme court.

The plaintiff, or buyer, ordered seed corn from the Shenandoah Pure Seed Co., of Shenandoah, Ia., by wire, sending the following telegram: "Ship us seventy-five bushels St. Charles White, seventy-five bushels Silver Mine, 150 bushels Banner White, 200 bushels Monoch of Iowa." This telegram, when delivered, read as follows: "Ship us seventy-five barrels St. Charles White, seventy bushels Silver Mine, 150 bushels Banner White, 200 bushels Monoch of Iowa."

The telegram, as sent, called for 500 bushels of seed corn worth $1.10 per bushel, making a total of $550. The telegram, as delivered to the seed company, called for 795 bushels. The company actually shipped 788 bushels, billed at $1.10 per bushel. The buyer could not sell this excess as seed corn, but did sell it as feed corn at 70 cents per bushel, entailing a loss of 40 cents per bushel on the excess, or a total loss of $115.20.

A draft for the cost of the shipment, attached to an invoice and the bill of lading, was presented and paid before the seed was received, and, therefore, the buyer knew before the shipment was accepted that it was larger than he had ordered. He brought suit against the telegraph company to recover the amount of his loss, but the courts denied his right to recover on the ground that his voluntary acceptance of the excessive quantity constituted a waiver of his claim against the telegraph company. A REMINDER!

¶It is time to sow seed of Snapdragons for summer flowering. Plants will now grow more rapidly, keep ahead of disease and soon make choice stock for benching or bedding. It doesn't pay to use stunted or hard-stemmed plants. Our several varieties are the best that grow. Choice seed of our original Silver Pink at $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Garnet, White, Yellow, Buxton and fancy mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00.

¶Splendid plants of all of the above varieties, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000. Free cultural directions. All orders cash or C. O. D.

¶We grow Snapdragons, but other good things that we have are Dirt Bands and Pots. See our ad of Bands on page 124.

TOMATOES UNDER GLASS.

Training the Plants.

The easiest, readiest and most profitable method of training tomato plants under glass is to grow them on the simple cordon, removing all side growths. They are supported by growing them up strings. The string, which should be a strong cord, is tied firmly but loosely around the plant under the second leaf. The end of the string is then carried up to the roof and firmly tied to a lateral wire. The plant will give a twist around the string from time to time. Twice a week will be sufficient during the growing season. This will be ample support and it is clean, neat and simple.

crop, the readiest form of training is up the strings. Place a 12-inch screw, such as is used for cucumber vines, twelve inches from the base of the rafter, another halfway up and a third at the height to which you intend the tomatoes to grow. Tie the string around the base of the tomato plant under the second leaf, and then hitch it firmly to each wire. Give the vines a twist around the string and they will have sufficient support for a plentiful crop of fruit. The object aimed at is efficiency, utility and economy.

Scientific Feeding.

The tomato will stand more feeding than most growers realize, providing it is done on a common-sense line. Science is organized common sense. We want to sell fruit; we cannot sell the foliage. At the same time, healthy foliage is necessary to a good crop of fruit. Let us remember three things: First, nitrate promotes growth; second, phosphate gives fruitfulness and early maturity; third, potash gives quality and flavor.

Phosphate is the sheet anchor of the tomato grower. In the early stages of the plant it is best and safest to use it in the shape of bone meal. Later, as the plants develop, superphosphate, in the form of rock phosphate, is best, as its action is quicker and it is more valuable. Most phosphates are accompanied with a guarantee of fourteen per cent solubility, which is sufficient for our purpose.

Nitrogen is best applied in the form of good bone meal, for the early stages of the growth. A good bone meal will contain four and one-half per cent of ammonia, which will be sufficient until the plants are heavily fruited. If nitrogen is required then, in a quick-acting form, a fish guano or a blood manure containing from twelve to fourteen per cent of ammonia will be the best. Being organic, it gives better results than inorganic ammonia for tomato culture. Potash can be applied in the form of kelp from seaweed; wood ashes in the form of kainit, muriate of potash or sulphate of potash. Sulphate of potash is readily applied and easily obtained. It is in the form of a salt.

A Compounded Fertilizer.

For those who have no intimate knowledge of raw, artificial or organic prepared manures, it is better to use some good compounded manure. A good potato fertilizer will answer the purpose quite well. For the general dressing of the tomato soil, a compounded manure may contain: Phosphate, twenty-eight per cent, fourteen per cent soluble; ammonia, six per cent; potash, five per cent. Apply at the rate of three ounces to the square yard of bench, once a month.

In the open on the average tilled ground a dressing of superphosphate drilled into the rows where the tomatoes are planted, at the rate of two tons to the acre or about seven ounces to every nine feet run of the rows, will be sufficient. This will promote early fruitfulness and maturity. F. E. B.

CONFIDENCE AND GOOD JUDGMENT

Well, this good hearted, sympathetic friend who said he "mighta married" me eighteen years ago, would have had a slim chance to have dragged me out of the school room; his sympathy went the limit of a joke with me, as he looked upon me as a lonesome "Bulb Peddler," traveling around because it was possibly the only thing I could do.

Bless his good heart; this is the kindness that is usually wasted and is far from sincerity.

He is the kind of man who considers a woman a weakling, and in a million years he would not give me an order. Why? Because he has the wrong idea of a woman in business. After I surveyed his character I suddenly had to catch a train and made a speedy "get-away."

Never would I want his order nor from anyone else on the sympathy platform; the foundation of the patronage is too weak to endure.

Business is the same old thing for the woman as for the man, and every real business man knows it. QUALITY, PRICE and SERVICE are roadways to success; and any wise girl knows skirts are not a good drawing card.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Santa Barbara, Cal.—Arthur Beverley, of the Mission Park Nursery, is going more into the culture of cut flowers, for which there is a greatly increasing demand. Mr. Beverley's soil is light and well adapted to the cultivation of early developing stock. He reports business as above the average.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

There was more or less slump to business last week, but a brisk demand for funeral work kept stock from accumulating. Staple lines are about as last mentioned, but among the newcomers last week were some magnificent German irises. Early Iris Kæmpferi, too, was seen on some of the wholesalers' tables, as well as a magnificent lot of late tulips. In potted stock, hyacinths are showy and good, while rhododendrons and Easter lilies are already appearing. Pot lilacs have not been so good as usual this year, but they are better now than at any previous time. Greens are plentiful, the shortage in plumosus having passed. The common marigold and blue cornflower make a pretty combination in the cheaper flowers. Outdoor Cecile Brunner roses are coming in, helping to offset the shortage in good corsage flowers.

Various Notes.

The shortage of Asparagus plumosus has led many growers to consider the possibility of increasing their plantings of this popular green. Harry Bailey, of Montebello, has decided to cover an additional acre with lath for this purpose. The lath house will be higher than usually built, in order to take care of seed growing as well as greens, if this becomes necessary.

The usual meeting of the Pasadena Horticultural Society was held in the board of trade rooms March 17, with a good attendance. After the usual business meeting had been held, R. McKenzie gave an interesting lecture on ferns, bringing with him to illustrate his remarks a number of fronds of the finer adiantums. A. Farleyense and its culture were gone into by Mr. McKenzie, his remarks showing him to be an observant fern lover, while the fronds were evidence of his skill as a cultivator. He has, of course, long been known as a skilled orchid grower. A rising vote of thanks was tendered him for his able paper and an instructive debate took place among those present. Among the members present from Los Angeles were J. McGilvray, Hal Kruckeberg, H. R. Richards, J. Whitehead and J. M. Grant. An invitation was given the Pasadena brethren to attend the quarterly smoker of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society, to be held April 8. A few bunches of Rainbow freesias from Alois Frey, of Montebello, were shown.

A visit to Coolidge's Rare Plant Gardens, on Colorado street, Pasadena, is always of interest and especially just now, when a number of the rarer shrubs are in bloom. One of the prettiest things in bloom is the red-leaved and red-flowered crabapple, both foliage and flower being extremely attractive. The Coolidge variety of feijoa, or pineapple guava, is a splendid fruit, as large as a small pear and of excellent flavor. Mr. Coolidge says he hopes to see thousands of acres of this planted before he dies. More unlikely things have happened, for the fruit is good and Mr. Coolidge is a live one for a long span yet. He is making quite a study of the ceanothus, both wild varieties and garden hybrids. Herbaceous plants, vines and all classes of ornamental stock are included. An instructive and pleasant time is assured to all who call.

Geo. W. Smith, formerly of Howard & Smith, has purchased five acres of fine land close to the foothills west of Hollywood, on the Santa Monica boulevard. The land is practically frostless and at the first blush appears to be too valuable for nursery purposes, but situated as it is on a fine boulevard much used by automobilists, the advertising value will be great and the land's value will increase rapidly. Mr. Smith purposes erecting greenhouses and lath houses there, the whole to form a feeder for his Figueroa street store. The Wall street place he now occupies will be given up shortly. Mr. Smith reports trade as excellent all along the line and classes February of this year as the best in the history of his business.

J. Rolleri, of the California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co., has been in San Francisco, San Jose and Santa Cruz the last two weeks, looking over the green situation and incidentally looking up stock for the rapidly increasing business. Walter Garbett is in charge during his absence. The latter reports trade as excellent. They have taken practically the whole of C. Brazee's cut of daffodils this year and are now handling some magnificent tulips from this noted grower.

L. Lecluse, of Hollywood, and formerly of Nebraska, has joined L. Truxler at the University Nurseries, on Vermont avenue, where they intend going into the nursery and florists' business. Although this place has gone through some changes during the last few years, Mr. Truxler was established here for a long time and it has a good local reputation. Mr. Lecluse is a hard worker and doubtless they will succeed.

S. Murata, of Murata & Co., says his company is going to be better prepared to handle Easter business this year than ever before, having made large purchases of lilies and other stock for this date. This is one of the few concerns that report business better this year than last. Large shipments of roses, carnations and irises are being handled this week.

C. Lewis is still on hand at the store of the Freeman-Lewis Co., but intends starting on an eastern trip shortly.

George Watson is getting large crops of splendid carnations from the new houses at Covina junction. He is shipping large quantities of the old standard kinds as well as many of the novelties, as he finds he has more than his local trade will take care of.

Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind., left March 21 for home. Mr. Frey has again contracted with J. Dieterich for land for growing his Rainbow freesias next year.

H. W. Turner is growing a far greater number of roses this year than ever before for selling in young stock. Not only the indoor forcing kinds, but also the outdoor kinds are getting attention and he is making a big drive with the polyantha and other baby types. It is interesting in this connection to note what a number of roses

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Business in general continues rather quiet, though last week brought several good funeral orders and some shops had many dinner decorations. Flowers continue plentiful, though there is not such a flood of cheap stock as for some weeks previous. Daffodils are rather scarce and, while some late stock is still to come, they soon will be entirely off crop. Freesias also are going off, but late narcissi hold out well. Ranunculi and anemones are excellent and plentiful. Some fine ixias are appearing, with a large crop in sight. Sweet peas are a prominent feature this season, and some of the stock is fine. Carnations are good and plentiful, and nearly all rose growers are bringing in a large cut, and the demand is better than it has been. Good stock of all varieties moves well. Violets are on the wane, but they still are sufficient for local needs. This is a big lilac season, and the shipping demand helps to keep up the prices. Fruit blossoms are about gone, while many tamarack and heather blooms are seen. Tulips are plentiful and cheap, and only an occasional lot shows much merit. Many cut hyacinths are used. Few Spanish irises are seen as yet, but other varieties show up well. Large quantities of Easter lilies are moved, but there are too many of them to clean up readily. Many kinds of wild flowers are used in considerable quantities. Cattleyas are a trifle scarce, but are not in great demand. There is a large cut of phalænopsis and a fair supply of gardenias cleans up quickly. Valley is scarce. Peonies are fine and bring fair prices, though the crop is large. In potted stock there is considerable variety. The larger items include rhododendrons, lilacs, rambler roses and wistarias, as well as heather of all sizes. Small begonias are beginning to come in freely, and primulas of various types are keeping up to the average. Cut adiantum is in good demand, while Asparagus plumosus is coming in better. Plants for bedding are in strong demand at retail, and many florists are making this an important feature, handling a large variety of stock.

Various Notes.

Daniel MacRorie, president of the S. A. F., went east early in March, and A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., left last week. Both will attend the flower show at Philadelphia on behalf of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society.

Stephen B. Cooper, familiarly known as "Hiney," who for many years has been with Mark Ebel at Sacramento, has decided that he prefers the bay climate, and expects to locate in San Francisco.

Mark Ebel, who was in town last week, is boosting the celebration to be held at Sacramento May 11 to 13 for the opening of the Yolo Causeway, which will be a big thing for the florists. Arrangements have already been made with some of the Sacramento florists for the decoration of floats and vehicles for business houses, and it is understood that some of the San Francisco decorators will be employed for the occasion. Progress is being made for the Sacramento fall flower show.

Joe Proietti, of Hayward, is bringing in some of the finest tree peonies around the bay. He is beginning to cut a fine crop of ranunculi, for which he anticipates a strong demand.

Frank D. Pelicano has been shipping out a lot of dahlia tubers every day for several weeks, and has received some nice orders from the east, as well as from all over the coast. He says a most gratifying feature of the business is the promptness with which payments have been arriving.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have closed a deal for the purchase of a lot on Powell street, near Ellis, partly occupied by the Golden West hotel, at a reported price of $150,000. They held the property under a long lease, but as the owner desired to sell they decided to take it over, entirely as an investment.

C. Kooyman now is taking orders for Purity freesia bulbs, and has about a million that he expects to dispose of this year. The stock has been unusually fine.

Frank G. Cuthbertson, of C. C. Morse & Co., reports abundant evidence of the impetus given the flower seed business by the exposition, and with this and the sweet pea show coming on he says sales of Spencer sweet peas at the local store will break all records.

Podesta & Baldocchi are working out several improvements in the decorative features of their store.

B. M. Joseph's establishment on Grant avenue a few days ago received a rather notable order, being the first ever received by a Pacific coast florist from New York by telephone. The customer was a prominent New York banker, who had visited the exposition last year and had received a favorable impression of the San Francisco trade on visiting Joseph's store. Wishing to give his San Francisco friends a pleasant reminder of his appreciation of San Francisco, he just called up Joseph's on the phone from his New York office and gave a list of his friends, to each of whom he wished several dozen American Beauty roses sent. The flowers were delivered, of course, within a short time after the receipt of the order.

F. C. Bertrand, of Joseph's, is busy these days getting a large supply of baskets decorated for Easter.

E. James is sending in many small pots of Erica persoluta rosea, which

FREESIA PURITY

I AM ABSOLUTELY HEADQUARTERS

I have already booked orders for about half a million bulbs of Freesia Purity for this season, which is the best possible proof of the results obtained from my bulbs.

My stock is true, and absolutely reliable. Write for prices, and place your order now for July shipment.

Wholesale Florist and Bulb Grower, SANTA CRUZ, CALIF

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Even for March the weather last week was freakish and unusually disagreeable. Heavy rains interfered with outdoor work and delayed shipping from the nurseries. The general demand for flowers showed an improvement over the first half of the month and funeral work was unusually brisk. There was hardly enough stock to meet the calls. The first blooming hydrangeas have appeared, in white and light pink shades.

Club Meeting.

Although the weather was stormy, the meeting of the Portland Floral Society, held March 21, was well attended. Three new members were admitted. A request from one of Oregon's congressmen asking the society to endorse his bill for 1-cent postage on letters for local delivery was tabled as being of a nature outside the club's sphere of activities.

The president reported that since the last meeting the publicity committee had published five articles in the special garden sections of the Sunday newspapers; that the papers were glad to print such matter and that several articles were planned to appear later, when they will be most timely.

Manager Julius Dossche and Secretary F. A. Van Kirk of the floral center planned for the rose festival, June 6 to 9, reported that the festival governors were depending on the center for the chief attraction of the festival and had appropriated nearly one-third of the festival funds for that purpose. All contracts for stock to fill the spaces have been signed and special stock is under growth for them.

The growers' committee urged all members to furnish the committee's secretary with the names and addresses of their customers for entry in the record. Cases of delinquency in payment of due accounts should be reported promptly. Information as to the standing of anyone in the record will be given any member by Secretary Van Kirk.

Information was sought by members who had been asked for advice about subscribing to shares in Schoener's Scientific Gardens as an investment. The discussion brought out the fact that no one present had knowledge of the work at the gardens sufficient to form an opinion, and several speakers urged that all members visit the gardens frequently during the summer and see for themselves what is being accomplished.

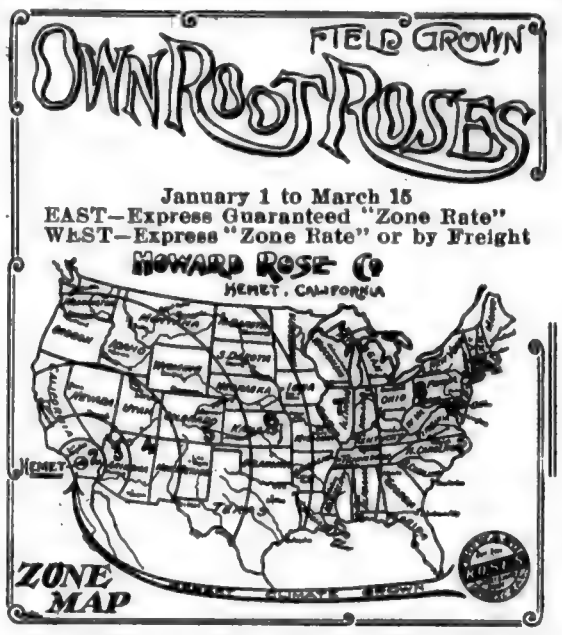
The first entertainment feature was a talk by H. E. Weed on the changes in plant nomenclature, as shown in the new volumes of Bailey's Cyclopedia of Horticulture. Changes in spelling, pronunciation, endings and even of family names was noted. The plant euonymus is now evonymus, as it was half a century ago. Most of the azaleas are now included in the rhododendron family.

Reports by growers on the relative costs of fir wood, coal and briquettes showed that there was not any noticeable difference in the expense of heating with any one of these fuels.

The question box brought the following queries and replies: Does a light frost harm young carnation plants? Yes, according to the experiences of several. Does Carbolineum Avenarius used on benches preserve the wood? It does, if applied when hot. Will the preservative injure plants? Apparently so in some cases; other cases show no ill effects. One case was cited in which it had stopped fungoid troubles in a cutting bench. Is it advisable to recommend early planting outdoors of dry canna roots? No; many are lost due to rotting of the eyes.

The president's desk was decorated with a vase of Saxifraga Megasea blooms brought in by G. Indermuhle.

"Scotty" exhibited a profound knowledge of plant names.



It was announced that Treasurer James Forbes had been honored by being selected as one of the judges of the rose exhibits of the American Rose Society at the show at Philadelphia. Also that Steele's Mastodon Pansy Gardens had been given a good write-up in the Oregon Journal, in the column describing noteworthy Portland enterprises.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

THE congestion on eastern railroads is imposing a serious hardship on nurseries in that territory. Shipments to the west are the only ones moving with the usual celerity and it even is difficult to obtain cars as wanted.

ALTHOUGH the planting of big orchards is not progressing at anything like the pace of ten or even five years ago, nevertheless the fruit tree specialist is kept fairly busy. The farmers are planting more fruit every year.

THE volume of orders on hand indicates that the average nurseryman will do well to get through any considerable part of the spring work. Zero in the third week of March at such places as New York and Philadelphia is not encouraging to the planter.

CALLS EASTERN STOCK MENACE.

The United States Department of Agriculture, through the federal horticultural board, has sent all eastern nurserymen an urgent request not to ship white pines, currants and gooseberries west of North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. This action has been taken in order to protect the white pine forests of the west from the white pine blister rust without, if possible, the imposition of a burdensome plant quarantine. At a conservative estimate, the value of the government and private holdings in these forests is $240,000,000. They would be in serious danger if the white pine blister rust, which now has gained a foothold in six eastern states and is suspected in the Ohio valley, should spread to the Rocky mountains. Gooseberries and currants are included in the department's request because they can carry the disease as well as the white pine itself.

At the same time, the department has issued a warning to the states within the range of the western white pines, of the danger of allowing nursery stock of these three kinds, from eastern nurseries, to enter their territory. Inspectors of all western states have been asked to notify the federal horticultural board of any shipments from points east of the states named. The reason for this action is that the white pine blister rust, a destructive disease to all white pines, occurs also in a different form, as a leaf disease on currants and gooseberries. These two plants, therefore, may carry the disease to new regions and infect local white pine. Like citrus canker and chestnut blight, the white pine blister rust was brought to this country on imported nursery stock, before the passage of the federal Plant Quarantine Act.

The department, in its letter to nurserymen, points out that if no shipments of these three plants are made from infected or suspected territory into the west, further action may be unnecessary. If, however, nurserymen ignore this request, it is practically certain that at an early date a federal quarantine, which will prohibit the interstate movement of these plants from the infected states, will have to be established.

GRASS UNDER MAPLE TREES.

We have trouble in keeping our lawns green under the maple trees. We have spaded, added manure, lime, bone meal, etc. The grass makes a good start, but dies out three or four months from the time of seeding. We have used shady lawn grass mixtures. What mixture would be the best to use? Our soil is heavy clay. F. W. H.—Pa.

Maples make so dense a shade that it is necessary to do some reseeding each season, especially where the low branches come near the ground. If you can keep the grass well watered below the trees in summer, you probably will have a sod eventually, but not otherwise. C. W.

The Market.

Trade continues to be good, although business has fallen off somewhat. There has been a steady call for funeral work, which has kept the florists busy. Carnations are not overplentiful and the prices continue high. Roses are in good supply and demand. Easter lilies are here in large quantities and are moving briskly. Cut tulips and daffodils are in abundant supply and in good demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful. Potted plants are selling well.

Various Notes.

Baldwin's store on Adams avenue is well supplied with fresh flowers from his greenhouses on Washburn street. Mr. Baldwin reports a busy week in

ROSE GROWERS

MME. PAUL EULER (Prima Donna)—You shouldn't be without it. A grand deep pink rose—darker, better form than the Russell—very fragrant and constant bloomer—always sells at highest American Beauty prices. $15.00 per 100, $125.00 per 1000. Order early.

MUM GROWERS

Here are two most desirable varieties

ALEX. GUTTMAN—A very early lavender-pink, comes in bloom middle of September. Exhibition size, foliage not too large; can be planted close. $35.00 per 100. And EMMA—A Garza type anemone double pompon, light pink—it's a dandy. You will make no mistake in getting these. Comes in about November 15, stays to December. $15.00 per 100. Plants ready now.

CARNATION GROWERS

LAURA WEBER is a most pleasing shade of salmon-pink—a high-grade bloom, remains strong till summer, does not fade out, always commands better than the highest market price. You can't go wrong on buying 100 or 250 cuttings, if you don't care to get 1000 or more. Prices, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. First come, first served. Order now.

Write us for further particulars. We have more good things coming!

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Stock is good and plentiful in the market, with the demand about the same as a week ago. Prices have dropped to a point where buyers almost dictate them. The shipping business is holding up nicely. Roses, including American Beauties, are in large supply and are of good quality. Carnations are more plentiful than they have been for some time. Easter lilies still are rather scarce. Many short ones are coming in, but they are not in the best of condition. Sweet peas are in heavy supply, that is, so numerous that it is utterly impossible to move all of them, even at the reasonable prices that prevail. Valley is experiencing a slow market, while orchids do not move at all. A fair quantity of small bulbous stock may be had. Most of it is in excellent condition. Other offerings include callas, snapdragon and mignonette. Leucothoe is experiencing a temporary shortage.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been having a large call for hanging baskets.

R. D. Ruttle and W. R. Miller's Sons, of Covington, Ky., have purchased delivery automobiles.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been getting in some excellent snapdragon and mignonette, which have been having a good market.

E. A. Foster is moving the A. Sunderbruch's Sons store to Fourth street, near Race street, the retail shopping district. The store has been at its old location for more than thirty-eight years.

Recent visitors were Daniel MacRorie, of San Francisco, and party; Mrs. Floyd Anderson, of Xenia, O.; Charles L. Baum and Carl Baum, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Julius Dilloff, representing Schloss Bros., of New York; H. Cheeseman, representing Ralph M. Ward & Co., of New York.

The death of George Tromey, which occurred last week, is recorded in this week's obituary column. C. H. H.

Overbrook, Pa.—Richard Edmonton has moved his greenhouses to Beechwood park.

Sunny Side, Pa.—W. W. Patterson has sold his greenhouses to White Bros., who will continue the business.

More Profit In Flowers

The sooner your cut flowers are marketed the larger your profits. The display which appeals will sell them. Every florist's experience confirms this statement.

If it were possible for you to compare the value of a refrigerator that really preserved with one that wasted stock and ice you would be astonished at the difference in dollars and cents during the year. The poor refrigerator which may have cost less at the start would show up mighty expensive in the end. Be sure—safe—get a

McCray Florists' Refrigerator

McCray construction is based on the most advanced scientific principles for proper refrigeration and perfect preservation.

Your delicate stock is kept at an even temperature of exactly the right degree where freshly chilled air is constantly circulating.

McCray Florist Refrigerators have beautiful plate glass doors and sides which permit an inviting and attractive display of the flowers. The compartments are of different dimensions to accommodate the various lengths of stems.

The outside woodwork may be had in any finish to conform with your store's interior decoration and arrangement. The linings may be secured in either bevel plate mirror or white enamel and are very easy to clean.

The florist business carries enough hazard without handicapping your success with an inadequate refrigerator. Why not investigate a McCray right now and get the whole McCray story.

THE BEST RED CARNATION

RESULTS ARE WHAT COUNT!

WINNER of the Silver Medal of the American Carnation Society, at Buffalo, 1915; also WINNER of the SAME MEDAL in the same class at ST. LOUIS, 1916; also of Silver Medal of S. A. F. and O. H., at St. Louis, 1916. It has never been beaten at any exhibition. The color is a most brilliant red. The size of the flower is 3½ inches. Stems 24 to 36 inches long, strong and stiff. We have never had a burst calyx, all flowers grading firsts; and, best of all, it is a constant bloomer, giving a steady run of flowers equal in number to the Enchantress family. It has a spicy odor, much greater than the average Carnation. It comes in full flower by the 1st of December and then continues steadily through the balance of the season.

Rooted cuttings now ready for delivery.

Price of the rooted cuttings is $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. We will bill 500 at the 1000 rate price.

Every cutting guaranteed strong and well rooted.

We have 1500 plants growing in our greenhouses at Hollywood, Cal., devoted exclusively to rooted cuttings.

Orders for Pacific Coast States will please be sent to our Western Branch, care of E. B. Washburn, 252 South Orange Grove Avenue, Pasadena, Cal.

LOS ANGELES NOTES.

for instance, are excellent, producing lovely foliage and such superb blooms as are seldom or never seen under glass. Mr. Turner reports the biggest shipping season he ever had.

Business continues brisk with the nursery department of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. and several new landscape contracts have been secured. Finely flowered plants of rhododendrons are now being sent in from the nursery on the Whittier road. These meet with a ready demand, both wholesale and retail. Preparation and planting of more ground is still going on.

The Los Angeles Floral Co. reports out-of-town shipping as keeping up remarkably well, though the city trade has not been so good last week.

The Redondo Floral Co. obtained a large shipment of lilacs from the Blumve ranch last week. These were tastefully grouped in the window of the store on Seventh street. As a border for the display, forget-me-nots, Cecile Brunner roses and white camellias were arranged in the new hand-carved Swiss vases. This window was greatly admired and much commented on by eastern visitors and Californians who have lived in the east, as it reminded them of their old homes where the lilacs flourish. And, speaking of lilacs, I have never seen them do so well in California as this season. Possibly the wet January kept the buds swelling and soft, but, whatever the reason, the result is most satisfactory.

H. Reeve Darling is making a good showing and says business is keeping well up to last year's high level. A splendid plant of Azalea amœna, three to four feet, adorned the window last week.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

show up well at the shops and meet a good demand. His rambler roses are quite an attraction, though he has sent in no large ones as yet.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. now is conducting the Fairmont Floral Co., of which it recently acquired control, under its own name. A number of improvements are being made in the store, including the construction of a mezzanine floor in the rear and some attractive decorative features. A formal opening will be held April 18, "ten years after" the big fire. It is expected that the store decorations for this occasion will surpass anything of the kind ever shown in San Francisco. The display already includes many examples of the company's finest stock, such as Pink Pearl rhododendrons and choice selections of a cut from 14,000 Phalænopsis Schilleriana plants. F. C. Jaeger remains as manager of the store. Frank H. Forrest, formerly of the old California Florist Shop, in the St. Francis hotel, is taking charge of the window decoration and looking after the front of the store. Ernest Stover, formerly with the Hannon shop, on Polk street, is a new member of the force.

A notable social decoration recently was executed by A. O. Stein for the ball to celebrate the debut of Miss Margaret Koshland, at the family home on Washington street. All decorations were designed to harmonize with the setting, which was modeled after the style of the Petit Trianon. The affair included an early dinner to 124 guests and a midnight supper for 144. The general decoration consisted of garlands and wreaths in the French style, of flowers in pastel shades, intertwined with electric lights and covered with butterflies. The tables were covered with blue satin in three shades and pink chiffon, delicately garlanded with baby roses of pink and blue chiffon. The stock used included heather, rhododendron and azalea blooms, hyacinths and roses. Several members of Mr. Stein's force were kept busy for several days on the job.

M. Poss, who recently took over the H. G. Hardy place at San Mateo, is getting a good start, and is making some extensive improvements to the place, with a view to growing a good deal of his own stock, as he understands both ends of the business. He now is setting out about an acre of outside stock and has work well under way on two greenhouses. S. H. G.

Our Specialty is Grafted Roses

WE grow many other young plants for the shipping trade, but "Grafted Roses" is the specialty. A visit to Cromwell will prove to you that we can back up our offers with stock that is of the highest quality. We are growing 700,000 this season, for we know that this year we will see much replanting that was not done last year. A good part of this quantity is already sold, and orders have been very gratifying.

If you are going to plant or replant, get in touch with us now. Give us a chance to give you the best plants that can be grown. Our prices are graded to suit the quantity, and the quality graded to be above competition. Write us now, or, better still, come and see what we have to offer.

EASTER PLANTS

Our stock of Easter Plants has never been so fine as this year; careful selection and good growing have enabled us to offer to our customers the finest stock of plants that can be seen anywhere, of good commercial sizes and at the right prices for good stock. Don't delay ordering, as good Easter stock will be scarce this year owing to the fact that some growers were afraid that they could not hold their stock back until the 23rd of April, while others only planted half their usual Easter stock, so they could grow their spring stock.

HYDRANGEA OTAKSA, still the leader of all Hydrangeas, 3 to 8 blooms to a plant, 6, 7 and 8-in. pots, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each.

FRENCH HYDRANGEAS, Gen. de Vibraye, Mme. E. Chautard, and Bouquet Rose, 6, 7 and 8-in. pots, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. We have one large house of 2,500 plants, foliage good and green, just timed right.

SPIRAEA GLADSTONE, grown from extra selected clumps, in 6 and 7-in. pots, $5.00, $6.00 and $9.00 per doz.

LILIUM GIGANTEUM, the best of all Easter plants; we have 8,000 grown as fine as you want them, in 5½-in pots, 10c per bud; less than 4 buds to a plant, 12c per bud.

AZALEAS. We have our usual large stock of this popular plant in large and small sizes and in the best popular varieties: Mme. Vander Cruyssen, we are exceptionally strong in this popular variety, in 6 and 7-in. pots, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. Vervaeneana, variegated, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. Mme. De Schryveriana, double variegated, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. John Llewellyn, double variegated, $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50 each. Niobe, double white, extra fine plants, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each.

RHODODENDRONS, John Walter, red, $1.50 and $2.00 each; Catawbiense, lilac, $1.50 and $2.00 each; Pink Pearl, extra fine, $2.00 and $2.50 each. Our Rhododendrons are all well budded, and we are sure they will give satisfaction.

DAFFODILS, Von Sion, the best pot variety; 3 double crown bulbs in a 6-in. pot, 6 to 10 flowers to a plant, $3.00 per dozen.

TULIPS, Murillo, pink; Tournesol, red and yellow, and Rubra Maxima, red, 3 bulbs in a 4-in. pot, $12.00 per 100.

HYACINTHS, Gertrude, Grand Maitre and La Grandesse, $12.00 per 100; 5 in a 6-in. pan, 35c each.

ROSE BUSHES, Baby Ramblers and Tausendschoen, 6-in. pots, 50c and 75c each.

DRACAENAS, Terminalis and Lord Wolseley, fine colored, 5½-in. pots, 75c each.

ASPARAGUS, Plumosus, 3-in., $5.00 per 100; Sprengeri, 3-in., heavy, $7.00 per 100.

NEW COLEUS

Yellow Trailing Queen

In introducing this valuable plant to the trade, we feel confident that it will make a place for itself. A sport from TRAILING QUEEN, another grand plant for boxes, vases, hanging baskets and bordering beds. It droops or hangs down 2 feet or more, not one little vine, but a clump of them. Center of leaves bright yellow, bordered with olive green, with deeply serrated edges, intermingled with yellow. Has all the good qualities of TRAILING QUEEN except color, which makes it a fine trailing mate. This is a very attractive novelty. Order now to work up stock for spring sale.

Nice bushy plants, 2½-in., 15c; $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100. 25 at 100 rate. By parcel post, 20c each; 3 for 50c; 7 for $1.00; $1.50 per doz.

PORTLAND NOTES.

Forty-ninth and Belmont streets. C. Tonseth handles the downtown store.

The high wind accompanying the thunder shower March 19 did some damage to Sam Roake's home at Clackamas, but did not damage the Rahn & Herbert greenhouses.

The issuance of a marriage license to F. V. Sanders and Mary E. Bodman confirmed the suspicions of the crew at the Clarke Bros. store, that "Felty" Sanders, one of their number, intended to get married. "Felty" denies the charge and says appearances are deceptive.

W. S. Van Doren, a florist of Post Falls, Idaho, visited Portland last week. He says business in his location has improved since the first of the year. He makes a specialty of roses in his greenhouse range.

The funeral of Geo. W. Bates, held March 23, was the occasion for the most elaborate display of floral offerings seen in Portland for some time. Nearly every downtown store had orders for it, but the most of the larger pieces were made by Clarke Bros. and Martin & Forbes. Orchids, valley, calla and Easter lilies, adiantum, violets and sweet peas were used so extensively that the market was cleared of them. Hundreds of roses, tulips and hyacinths also were used. A casket cover of valley, orchids and violets, with adiantum and plumosus, was one of the pieces from Clarke Bros.

Julius Broetje brought in some branches of Japanese cherry in bloom last week. They were seen at Max Smith's store.

Some splendid cinerarias are shown. Some of the best ones come from William Hoffmann.

E. R. Chappell reports business as being good at his store in the Broadway building.

Niklas & Son last week displayed some good single-bloom hydrangeas.

S. C. Shearer, of the Erie Greenhouses, says he met with no loss from the cold weather. His range is new and stood the weight of wind and snow well. S. W. W.

Madison, Wis.—A Moninger house, 25x100 feet, has been completed by G. W. Smith, of 2023 Sherman avenue.

DREER'S HYDRANGEAS

for SPRING and MEMORIAL DAY

SELECT STANDARD VARIETIES

These are all stored in coldframes in a dormant condition; the 5- and 6-in. pots are in prime shape for flowering for Spring and Memorial Day sales, while the 2- and 3-in. pots will be found profitable for growing on.

Avalanche. Large corymbs of pure white flowers; very free-flowering.

Bouquet Rose. Large trusses of well-formed flowers; rosy-amber, turning to bright pink.

E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size, color a most pleasing shade of pink which does not fade; growth vigorous.

General de Vibraye. Very large heads of bright rose; a splendid forcing variety.

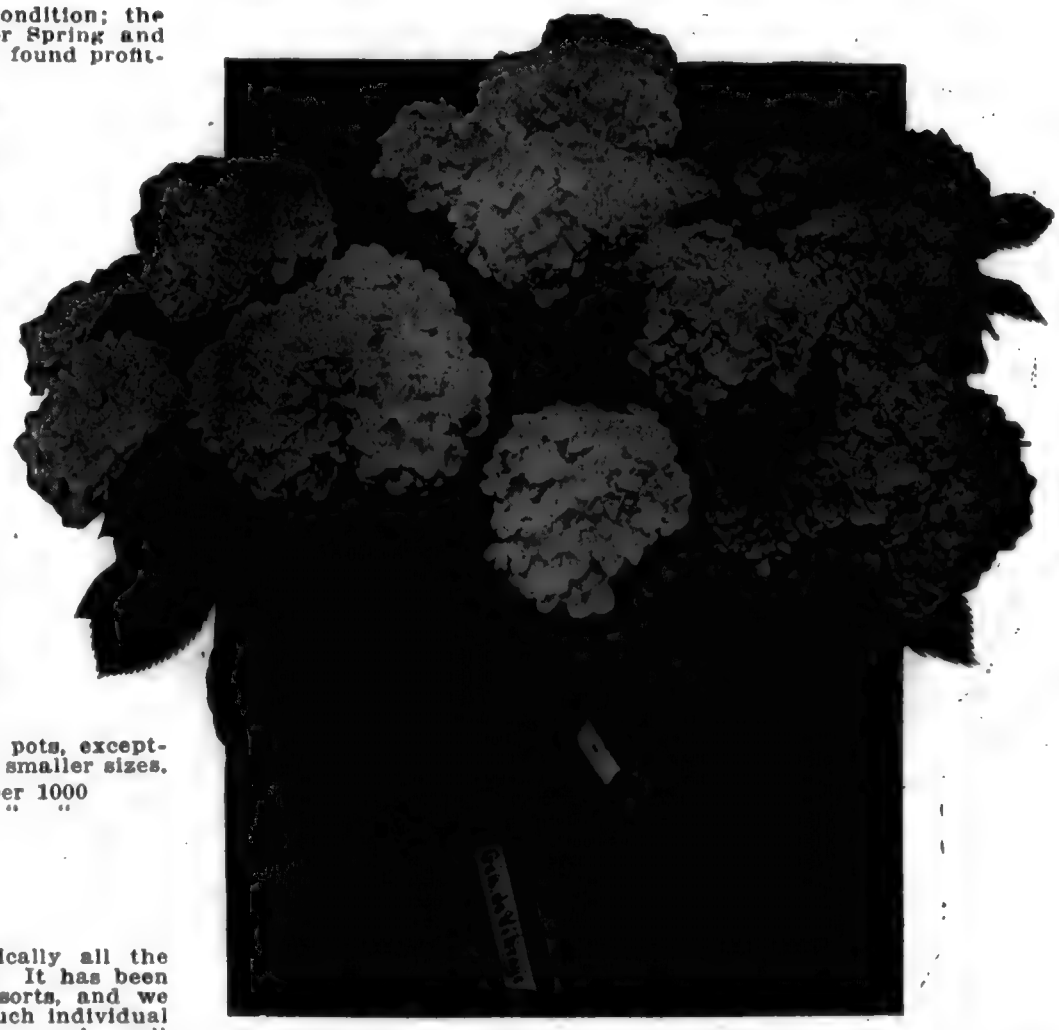
La Lorraine. Very large flowers; pale rose turning to bright pink.

Mlle. Renee Gaillard. Large panicles of milky-white irregularly dentated flowers.

Mme. Maurice Hamar. Large delicate flesh-rose color; a pleasing shade.

Mme. Emile Mouillere. One of the very best; very large flowers, frequently over 2 inches in diameter, of the purest white, with rosy-carmine eye.

Radiant. Splendid rose-carmine.



Ronsard. Very large individual flowers as well as trusses of a beautiful rose tint.

Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard. One of the prettiest; robust habit, medium-sized corymbs of bright rose-colored flowers.

Vieux-Chateau. A strong, upright growing variety with immense trusses of very large white flowers; these as they mature become suffused with a delicate rosy-carmine tint.

All of the above can be supplied in 2, 3, 5 and 6-in. pots, excepting E. G. Hill, which can only be furnished in the three smaller sizes.

New Hydrangeas

We have introduced to American commerce practically all the worthy French Hydrangeas in popular demand today. It has been our constant aim to discard superseded and inferior sorts, and we believe every variety in the sets following to possess such individual distinctive merit as will make it valuable. All plants are in well protected coldframes and will be kept dormant as late as possible in Spring.

Hydrangea Novelties for 1916

Directeur Vuillermet. Immense trusses of medium sized fringed good pink flowers.

L'Islette. Rosy carmine of medium size, very free, unusually promising.

Louis Foucard. Very free flowering rosy carmine.

Mme. E. Tabar. Very delicate rose color.

Mme. Legou. Distinct, large and imposing creamy white.

Mme. R. Jacquet. Compact heads of a pretty pale pink.

Mlle. Lucienne Chaure. Nicely fringed bright rosy carmine, strong grower, a good garden variety.

Mlle. Rene Plessier. Splendid tender rose.

Prof. A. Vezzin. White with delicate carmine suffusion.

Souvenir de Mme. Victor Raoult. Very large lively rose.

Souvenir de Monsieur Belot. Lively carmine-rose.

Ville de Chartres. Immense pure white of vigorous habit.

Price: Any of above Novelties, 2¼-in. pots, 25c each, $2.50 per doz., $18.00 per 100; one each of the 12 sorts for $2.50.

Hydrangea Novelties of 1915

Baby Bimbenet. Very dwarf, free and early, the plant becomes covered with large, compact trusses of silvery-rose flowers.

Beaute Vendomoise. Immense heads of white flowers tinted pink; the individual florets attain a diameter of 4 inches, and while it shows a tendency to a loose, open truss, this adds to its attractiveness.

Eclaireur. One of the most startling acquisitions, a very bright carmine-rose, the nearest approach to a red. We particularly recommend this.

La France. Very strong grower, with immense trusses of deeply fringed flowers of a delicate shade of rose.

La Perle. The grandest, largest and most refined white we have yet seen; flowers deeply fringed.

Lilie Mouillere. Similar to, but distinct from Eclaireur; a bright carmine-rose.

Louis Mouillere. A distinct and valuable variety, a fine shade of deep rose-pink fringed florets in trusses of immense size.

Mme. Auguste Nonin. An unusually attractive pretty pale pink in heads of large size.

Souvenir du Lieut. Chaure. Produces immense heads of bright rose-carmine flowers on bold, upright stems.

Price: Any of above 1915 introductions:
2-inch pots, $1.00 per doz., $7.00 per 100

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The market continues to be steady. The demand for roses, carnations and bulbous stock about equals the supply. Lilies and valley, however, are short in supply.

Various Notes.

The Cleveland party to the National Flower Show included M. A. Vinson, Fred C. Witthuhn, Walter Witthuhn, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Knoble, George Bate, Guy Bate, Herbert Bate, F. W. Ziechmann, John Kirchner and son, and Frank A. Friedley. Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Cook, C. F. Bartels and F. C. W. Brown left earlier in the week, and John Merkel left March 28. James Eadie and his son, Marshall, left March 27.

A. B. Barber has been appointed secretary of the Cleveland Florists' Club, to succeed Frank A. Friedley, and A. C. Fox, treasurer, to succeed Geo. W. Smith. Both Mr. Friedley and Mr. Smith resigned owing to the pressure of business. The club has increased from a membership of thirty-six to 160 during the last five years.

The cool weather of the last four weeks has retarded bulbous stock to the extent that there now is a prospect of holding it back for Easter sales. Lilies, rambler roses, lilacs, hydrangeas and azaleas are in extra fine condition this season. The outlook for a big Easter business is good. F. A. F.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Business has decreased somewhat, but still is good for the season. Stock of all kinds moves nicely, excepting violets and Beauties. The high prices seem to have weaned many from Beauties, and now these do not seem to move even at lower prices. Otherwise the market clears nicely.

Various Notes.

Everybody seems to have gone to the National Flower Show at Philadelphia.

A number of tradesmen on their way to the Philadelphia show, via Pittsburgh, stopped off and called on the trade. The following were among the visitors: Charles Baum and Karl Baum, of Knoxville, Tenn.; John Evans, of Richmond, Ind.; Charles Netsch, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Julius Dilloff, of Schloss Bros., New York; A. Lange, of Chicago.

Greenhouse Heating.

WATER BOILS OVER.

Last fall I installed a hot water boiler to heat about 800 feet of 2-inch pipes. As the greenhouses are located on a hill and the boiler shed is at the foot of the hill, I had to put the expansion tank on the highest point of the greenhouses, attached to the main feeding pipe. Everything works satisfactorily until the water gets quite hot; then it escapes through the expansion tank instead of returning to the boiler. Could I use a closed tank instead of an open one and would that prevent the loss of water, or is there a better way to remedy the trouble?

C. A. D.—Ohio.

Judging from the description given, it would appear that the simplest way to correct the difficulty would be to use a closed system, or to attach a mercury generator to the pipe leading to the expansion tank. However, if the size of the boiler and the number and size of the heating pipes are properly adjusted, there should be no serious trouble from this cause. If C. A. D. will furnish a more definite description of the system, with the capacity, or at least the grate area, of the boiler, and the number, size and arrangement of the pipes, we may be able to offer some suggestions which will lessen the tendency to "boil over."

STEAM FOR THREE HOUSES.

Will you kindly tell me how many feet of radiation will be needed in three houses, each 25x84 and twelve feet high to the ridge? The sides are four and one-half feet high and contain two feet of glass above two and one-half feet of wooden wall. The east ends of the houses are exposed; the west ends are protected by a lean-to. Will a 25-horsepower, low-pressure, return tubular steel boiler heat these houses to a temperature of 55 degrees? The outside temperature here seldom drops to 10 degrees below zero. I expect to use a gravity system for the returns.

C. F. B.—Ohio.

If each of the houses has two feet of glass in each side wall, we would use one 2-inch overhead supply pipe, running to the farther end of the house, and connect it by means of 1½-inch pipes with two coils, each containing five 1¼-inch returns, on the side walls, or a part of them might be under the benches. Nine returns would answer if but one wall is exposed. There will be less than 500 square feet of radiation in each house and there should be no difficulty in maintaining the temperature desired with a 25-horsepower boiler, although if a little larger boiler were used it would require less attention.

ABOUT MERCURY GENERATORS.

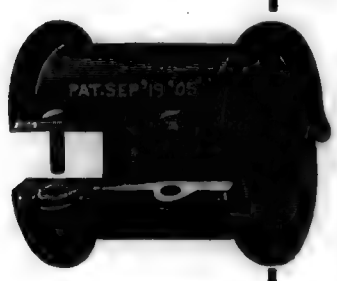
Please inform me in what way mercury is used to put water under pressure. Do we get more heat from the pipes when the extra pressure is thus applied? Will water heat more quickly when fresh than it will after being in the pipes for several months?

S. D.—Me.

There are now on the market several mercury generators, or circulators. They are connected with the pipe leading to the expansion tank, and result in placing the water in the system under pressure.

In an open hot water system, when the expansion tank is practically at the level of the piping, the water will be under the ordinary atmospheric pressure and will boil at 212 degrees, but if the expansion tank is elevated thirty-four feet the pressure will equal two atmospheres, or thirty pounds per square inch, and under that pressure water will not boil until it reaches 251 degrees, or 39 degrees higher than in an open tank system. Mercury is 13.6 times as heavy as water; hence, instead of using a column of water thirty-four feet high in order to secure an additional pressure of fifteen pounds, it may be obtained by substituting a column of mercury thirty inches high. This will make it possible to add 30 degrees to the temperature of the water in the system, and the efficiency of the radiating surface will be increased to that extent.

However, this does not imply that the efficiency of a given heating plant will be increased to that extent by merely placing the water under pressure by means of a mercury generator, or some similar device. The word "generator" is a misnomer, since the mercury apparatus does not generate heat. It merely makes it possible for the water to absorb and distribute a greater amount of heat, and before this can be done we must provide a boiler of sufficient heating capacity and must furnish an adequate amount of fuel from which the heat may be generated. From the fact that the water in a closed system may be heated to a higher temperature than in an open system, we can, of course, get more heat from it. This makes it possible to reduce the amount of radiation required, as compared with an open system.



As to the question whether water

"will heat more quickly when fresh than it will after being in the pipes for several months," from a practical standpoint that will make little difference, since the air found in fresh water is quickly driven out when it is heated, after which it will heat at the same rate as water which has been boiled for weeks and months.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Various Notes.

Miss H. B. Whitted left March 23 for the National Flower Show at Philadelphia. Monday, March 20, Mrs. Taylor, wife of the president of the Florists' Club and sister of Miss Whitted, had a narrow escape from asphyxiation. When going into the basement of her home she was overcome by escaping gas fumes. Mr. Taylor found her in extremis. She has recovered and is none the worse for the experience.

W. F. Holmes, of South Seventh street, is doing a splendid trade. He puts plenty of energy into the business and deserves great success. Smartly dressed windows are always a feature.

W. H. Bofferding reports great activity in his seed department.

With the change in the weather, the florists are preparing their hotbeds. I have already seen several ranges of hotbeds ready for filling.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. is fortunate in having a fine lot of azaleas for the Easter trade. These should sell freely.

"Watch these flowers grow green" was the motto displayed on vases of white carnations in several of the stores St. Patrick's day.

Thos. H. Hall, of Lyndale avenue, has a fine, varied stock suitable for his large retail trade. I hear that he contemplates an addition to his greenhouse range. If by the plow you would thrive, you must either lead or drive. Mr. Hall does both.

Prof. Le Roy Cady now is active piloting the university students through the various growing establishments. He could not choose a better time than the present. All spring stock is coming forward and it offers a fine example of the various methods of growing and caring for young plants. Theory is all very well, but an ounce of practice is worth a ton of theory. A sound blending of each produces first-class results.

The Florists' Club was represented by J. G. Taylor, its president, at the Minneapolis retailers' meeting, when a petition was sent to the authorities asking for the supervision of the sale of flowers and fruit on the sidewalks. I understand that some of the venders only use their own property and do things along sanitary lines, while others blockade the pavement and obstruct the traffic and do their business anyhow. A reform surely is needed.

The New York Florists turned their windows into a Dutch garden last week. It was ablaze with hyacinths, narcissi and tulips. The number of people who paused to admire it was a sure proof of its efficiency. Efficiency beats effervescence; effervescence loses essence; essence is the pith of business.

The local papers are having a fine time with the enlarged advertisements of the florists.

Max Kaiser, of the Merriam Park Greenhouses, probably has the best stock of Easter plants he ever had. Max does apply the "kultur."

Last week hyacinths in pots were a drag on the market. Carnations cost from $1.50 to $4 per hundred, for good whites. Spiræa plants are now appearing in the stores. They are always more or less risky as a crop, as the public are fickle as regards them.

F. E. B.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Wilson's Flower Store, of Painesville, O., had a splendid showing of plants and cut flowers in baskets during my visit.

For the opening of the Western Reserve National Bank, of Warren, O., about 4,500 carnations were furnished by Adgate & Son. Several dozen large plants in baskets were being "dressed" when I called.

C. R. Betts, of Meadville, Pa., will move his retail store to Park avenue, about April 1.

H. J. Krueger, of Meadville, contemplates adding two more 150-foot houses to his range this spring.

W. M. Deyoe & Co., of Oil City, Pa., had a special window of orchids and roses for the style show held there last week. Business continues good, keeping all hands busy.

At the Kay-Dimond Co. store, of Youngstown, O., business seems to be just one design after another, keeping the full force on the jump.

The florists' windows of Erie, Pa., did justice to St. Patrick March 17 by their unique displays of blarney stones, castles, Killarney's lakes, shamrocks and snakes. The sale of shamrocks, green carnations and other novelties was good, most of the florists being sold out early.

L. A. Eaton & Sons, of Conneaut, O., had a good showing of cinerarias, tulips and hyacinths last week. Business is reported as being the best for years.

Fischer & McGrath, of New Castle, Pa., report that business continues about the same. W. T. U.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24¼ inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Market conditions are good, and while no large supply of stock is coming in all that arrives is moved at fair prices. There was quite a demand for white of any kind, especially stock suitable for funeral work. Roses are in fair supply, with the demand taking nearly everything in sight. The larger grades sold rather under their value. White was shy, but pink was plentiful. Carnations still are insufficient to supply all demands. In bulbous stock tulips have shortened in supply and are not moving any too well. Daffodils are fewer, but their absence is not felt. The green situation is uncertain, smilax being poor and hard to secure, while asparagus is of poorer quality, decreasing in quantity and increasing in price.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held March 27. The attendance left much to be desired. The main topics were the National Flower Show and Billy Sunday. The club decided to attend the services of the evangelist in a body and will have 300 seats reserved. Robert L. Graham is in charge of arrangements and will notify all members of the time and the place to meet, so that members may enter the hall in a body. Arthur S. Richmond, Henry Betz and W. H. Jennings were elected to membership.

The new members' buttons were on hand and were distributed to those present.

Various Notes.

A large party left Baltimore March 29 to attend the National Flower Show at Philadelphia. There also were many who visited the show later, being able to go with the club.

The Seidewitz Flower Shop reports a busy week with funeral orders. William E. Seidewitz has started a kennel and breeding farm for collie dogs at Arlington. He won a number of blue ribbons at the recent dog show.

George S. Kalb, who has been confined to his home for some weeks, is able to be around again.

Mrs. Charles H. Cook has been confined to her home for three weeks with a bad cold, which settled in her head and affected her hearing. Under the doctor's care she is steadily improving.

Charles F. Feast and George Morrison were among those selected to act as judges at the National Flower Show.

Miss Bessie Whitehill has opened a store on Bolton street, near North avenue.

John Nuth motored to the Philadelphia show. Members of his party were James Glass, J. J. Perry and Edward Kress. W. F. E.

DIRT BANDS

Very soon every grower will be making free use of dirt bands for the growing of all plants. Certainly, no florist can afford to pass them by. They are time and money savers, producing better plants at less cost and with less labor. It simply is a question of getting the best band.

Our new READY-USE dirt band tells its own story. Send a postal for free samples and see how it does it. It comes to you ready to set the plant in, which means saving of very valuable time required to fold the ordinary strips of paper commonly offered for bands.

We make plain bands, too, from high-grade, hard finish stock. Samples will be sent. Compare them with others and put them to any test. It is not how cheap, but how good, is our motto.

PRICES OF PLAIN SQUARE DIRT BANDS.

The Market.

The Lenten season does not seem to affect business to any extent, for all plants and cut flowers are moving briskly. A large number of funerals has helped to make the demand for flowers strong. Spring has opened with warm days and warm rains. Trees are leafing out, the grass is green and the outdoor roses are budding. The rose and carnation crops are good and bulbous stock will soon be gone. It will be hard to hold Easter stock back, with the exception of lilies, which promise to be about right.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held April 12, at Miss Nellie Goodge's greenhouses.

C. L. Niednagel is cutting a large quantity of roses of fine quality.

The Blackman Floral Co. is having good cuts of roses and carnations. Business is good.

Karl Zeidler has had considerable funeral work of late. He has a large stock of spring plants.

Austin Wallace is cutting exceptionally fine carnations from solid beds. The plants are in fine shape.

Royston & Fenton report a good business in coleus. They have not had nearly enough of Brilliancy to supply the demand.

C. Morgan, of the Morgan Floral Co., at Henderson, was a recent visitor.

The Market.

Business has been good, considering the weather. The first day of spring was accompanied by a heavy fall of snow—the heaviest of the year. Plenty of good stock is on hand, with the exception of Beauties and smilax. Violets are in fine condition and plentiful. Sweet peas of all grades and varieties are shown, the best long-stemmed Spencers finding a ready market.

Various Notes.

The Wealthy Street Floral Co. had a fine display of plants and spring flowers last week.

Arthur F. Crabb has had several large funeral orders lately.

James Schols is the proud possessor of a new delivery car. Levi Slot has purchased a 5-passenger car for business and pleasure.

No money need be paid in advance and you need not keep the outfit if you are not perfectly satisfied that it is the best thing in its line. No other device mends SPLIT CARNATIONS so quickly and easily, without injuring the flower or impairing its keeping qualities. We have hundreds of testimonials like these:

"They are the best on the market. We have used them for five years."—Maumee Greenhouse Co.
"These Clips are fine."—Crabb & Hunter Floral Co.
"A safe proposition to send on trial."—Bird Forrest.
"They are certainly fine, they work like magic."—I. Dunford.

Perhaps the best testimonial of all is the host of growers, large and small, who send us their orders repeatedly for Clips and say very little about it to anyone. Can't we count you among our customers? Remember, it costs you nothing if you are not satisfied.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Last week was a combination of winter, spring and summer. The spring and summer trade among the florists and landscape gardeners is going to keep them busy, according to the present outlook. Stock of all kinds clears nicely; in fact, many growers find it impossible to fill the demand with their own production; consequently, surrounding cities are called on to help. Roses are especially scarce. All bulbous stock is in good demand, most of the growers already having disposed of their Dutch hyacinths and tulips.

As Easter arrives so late this year, it will find few hyacinths and tulips on the market. The same may be said of azaleas. Easter lilies with most of the florists are in prime condition and should prove good money-makers.

Various Notes.

The greenhouses of W. Ritter are being torn down, to make room for residences. It is rumored that the Heiss Co. greenhouses also will be removed, as the ground they now occupy has become of great value. The company owns some ten acres outside the city limits, where they intend to build an up-to-date range of houses.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.

The monthly meeting of the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society was held at Firemen's hall, March 23, President Alfred Walker presiding. After the minutes of the previous meeting were disposed of, the secretary read the proposed schedule for the rose show. After some corrections the schedule was adopted as read. J. Duckham, Henry Gibson and William Ford acted as judges of the exhibits and made the following awards: Society's ribbon for twelve tulips, James Bell; one potted hyacinth, J. Robinson; four pans of hyacinths, J. Robinson, special mention; vase of daffodils, Frank Kyle, honorable mention; vase of alliums, Frank Kyle, honorable mention; vase of antirrhinums, Frank Kyle, special mention; basket of string beans, Thomas Moore, special mention.

A lively discussion took place as to the methods of cultivating the stock on exhibition. It was moved and seconded that the chrysanthemum show be held November 9. The executive committee was recommended to prepare the dahlia schedule. The exhibits for the April meeting will consist of lilies, hydrangeas and schizanthus, in pots.

The Truth Shown Up About Raw and Prepared Humus

THERE are a lot of people being stung on humus. Being stung just because they seem to think all humus is practically alike. Or if there is any difference, it is only the difference in price.

They apparently totally ignore the fact that most humus in its unprepared state, just as dug from its watery bed, is generally injuriously acid. They lose sight of the fact that any humus that is sold from a dry sample, and delivered wet, is a mighty expensive way to buy water.

They seem altogether to fail to grasp the fact that raw humus has absolutely no plant foods added to make it a balanced fertilizer.

They ignore totally the fact that it takes four tons of our raw humus to make one ton of concentrated Alphano Humus, that has first been sun-dried and then further dried by expensive mechanical methods until 75% of the moisture is driven out.

They forget that a humus that is sold from a dry sample and then delivered in lumpy, chunky, water-logged shape, contains just one-quarter the plant foods that a dry analysis shows.

Come to Our Exhibit at the New York Show and let us tell you all the facts and give you all the figures about this important humus question.

Protect yourself against buying water at humus prices. Or buying humus that is low in plant foods and liable to be highly injurious because of its acidity.

PRICE

Our sun-dried, composted, acid-free, natural Humus, we will sell to you for $4.00 a ton, by the carload.

Our prepared Alphano Humus, with 75% of the water driven out, abundantly enriched with potash, nitrogen, phosphate and lime; and then inoculated with billions of nitrogen gathering bacteria, we will sell to you for:

$ 8.00 a ton by the carload in bulk
10.00 a ton by the carload in bags
12.00 a ton for less than a carload
5 100-lb. bags for $5.00.

The Market.

Although spring opened last week, the weather did not show it. Saturday, March 25, the market was cleaned up in many items and stock that seemed to be overplentiful was sold out. Beauties have not increased in quantity, but there is a change in their quality. Mrs. Russell is improving in color and is selling much better. A week ago the market found itself with an oversupply of white roses, but this week all the white roses available were used in funeral work. Carnations are arriving in a much better condition. The percentage of splits has decreased and the quality of the blooms in general has improved greatly. This is partly due to the increase of sunshine. The demand for double violets is normal and the supply does not exceed the demand. Single violets are not so plentiful.

Bulbous stock, such as jonquils, daffodils and tulips, has shortened considerably. The supply of daffodils is limited, while the demand is large. Sweet peas and freesias are clearing daily. Valley still clings to the short side of the market. Orchids have not made a decided change since last week. Easter lilies continue to sell fairly well and callas clear daily. Daisies, calendulas, mignonette and pansies continue to move, but are not cutting a large figure. Greens of all kinds have been moving nicely and the supply is about equal to the demand.

Various Notes.

Edward Slattery is attending the National Flower Show at Philadelphia.

Jerry Brookins, of Orchard Park, is picking a nice lot of sweet peas daily, for which he finds a ready market.

William Grever has been called to serve on the federal jury.

Emil Brucker is on the sick list.

Large preparations are under way for the flower and fashion show. Charles Schoenhut, who has been appointed chairman of the committee for the Florists' Club, reports that the florists will make the largest display of flowers and shrubs ever presented for public inspection. Many of the city's leading mercantile houses have taken space in the main auditorium. A. E.

The Market.

Business last week maintained a downward trend and slowed up to some extent. Early March 22 Milwaukee and vicinity were visited by the worst blizzard of the year. Traffic was tied up and telephone connections were sadly impaired, and this condition naturally put a quietus on business for a day or two. The stock kept on coming, however, and that is partly the cause of the abundance of stock of all descriptions. Shipping business is holding up well despite Lent, but it is quite dull locally.

Roses still are more plentiful than they were last week and there is a small surplus each day. The quality of the stock is good and real bargains are to be had in quantity lots. Carnations also are in abundance, but are cleaning up better than the roses. Prices are fairly good and this stock is moving well.

Violets are in prime condition and there are some exceptionally fine singles to be had. The fancy stock is bringing good prices, but those of poorer quality are hard to move at any price. There is a new crop of sweet peas coming on and it is producing some exceedingly fancy blooms. Some have stems from fifteen to eighteen inches long. The crop is moving fairly well and is not accumulating. The old crop of short-stemmed stock is not moving freely. Valley is about equal to the demand. The quality is good and it is cleaning out at good prices.

Green stock is showing no increase in quantity and still is much short of the demand. Bulbous stock is in good shape and is selling well. There is a possibility that some of this stock will last until Easter, providing the weather remains cold. This season has been an exceptionally good one for this class of stock and there is surely no complaint to be heard this year.

Various Notes.

Mr. Hunkel, who broke his arm February 22, had the cast removed March 25. It will be some time, however, before he can use it as well as ever.

Mrs. R. E. Miller, of the Racine Floral Co., was in town March 25.

A. MacDonald, manager of the Gimbel Bros. floral department, left March 28 on a short eastern business trip. He will take in the flower show and will be away about a week.

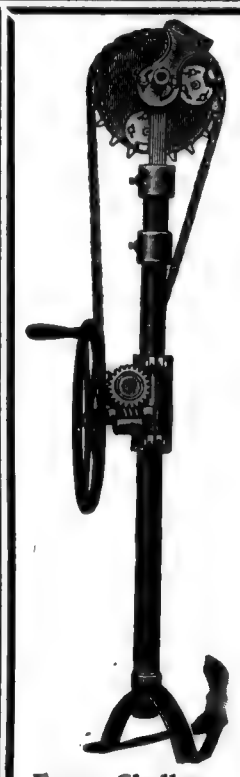
Garland Manufacturing Co.,
Des Plaines, Ill.

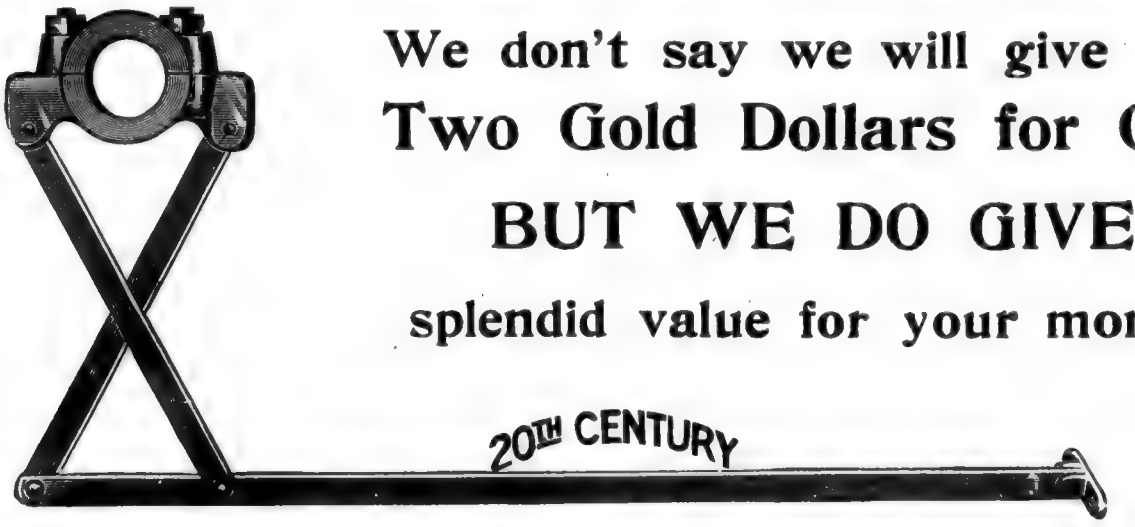
Corfu, N. Y., February 23, 1916.

Gentlemen:—



Will you please quote me price on 90 feet of Garland Cast Iron Gutter with drain and drip opening at one end? To be drilled for 16-in. width glass on one side and 12-in. on the other. This is to replace a wood gutter.

I am pleased to say that the 750 feet of Garland Gutter used by my father in the erection of a range of glass in 1902 is apparently in as good condition as the day it was put up.



Very truly yours,
DAVID J. SCOTT.

The Market.

Trade last week was brisk, owing to the large quantity of funeral work. Cut flowers have been plentiful, but not in oversupply. Roses are in good supply, especially in the finer grades of Shawyer, Russell, Ophelia and Killarney. The smaller varieties of roses sell well for corsages, which are in good demand.

Carnations are quite plentiful, especially in pink and red, the white having been picked closely for St. Patrick's day. Longiflorum lilies are in fine supply and move rapidly for funeral work. Valley is scarce, but the demand is not good at present. Sweet peas, primarily the Spencer varieties, are abundant. Violets, especially the singles, are plentiful. The quality of bulbous stock is fine. Dutch hyacinths, daffodils and single and double tulips sell especially well. Some fine Charles X lilacs are again on the market. Rambler rose plants move at a brisk rate, and spiræa and Pink Pearl rhododendrons are favorites. There are a few azaleas in the market at present.

Various Notes.

Miss Catherine Vesey, attending college at Delaware, O., is at home for the spring holidays.

The Flick Floral Co. had many handsome floral pieces for a large funeral last week. Among the pieces was a handsome casket cover composed of longiflorum lilies and Shawyer roses. A number of large standing wreaths and other designs also were sent.

Through misinformation it was stated in these columns that Miss Helen F. Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., was ill and intended to have an operation.

"AND DEPONENT SAITH FURTHER, AS FOLLOWS:"

Out of a great mass of testimonials in support of the excellent character of Cypress for greenhouse construction, we have singled these few for your consideration:

Arthur Cowee, Gladiolus Specialist, proprietor of "Meadowvale Farm," Berlin, N. Y., writes: "My houses are now ten years old and I have not yet been obliged to spend one dollar in repairing any woodwork, with the exception of some of the posts. My only regret has been that I have not used CYPRESS for the benches, which I think would have been cheaper for me in the end than using hemlock, which, of course, with us is very much cheaper per thousand."

That's the point—CYPRESS literally CHEAPER in the end. Mr. Cowee names the proper system—FIGURE THE COST BY THE YEAR.

John C. Moninger Co., Greenhouse Builders, Chicago, say: "We first began using CYPRESS exclusively for greenhouse construction in 1885, using it previous to that time in conjunction with pine. The greenhouses built with clear CYPRESS, free of sap, 21 YEARS AGO, are being used today by their owners, and the wood is found perfectly preserved and free of any decay or rot." Ask this prominent concern about the "cheaper" substitutes, and why they won't use them nor attempt to dump inferior values onto their customers.

The Dingee & Conard Co., Rose Growers, West Grove, Pa., say: "We have used CYPRESS lumber for greenhouse building for many years, and we find that there is no lumber we can secure so satisfactory for that purpose." Nothing in that about a "cheaper substitute," is there?

Bobbink & Atkins, Importers, Nurserymen and Florists, Rutherford, N. J., are not backward in coming forward: "We would say that CYPRESS lasts with us from two to three years longer than any other wood for table purposes, and ITS LIFE SEEMS TO BE ENDLESS WHEN USED IN ORDINARY GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION. We use CYPRESS solely in our plant tub department."

Wagner Park Conservatories, Sidney, Ohio, rise to remark: "We use NOTHING BUT CYPRESS in the construction of our greenhouses, as we find it the most economical, on account of it outlasting other kinds of wood." No comfort there for the "substitute" lumbers.

Bassett & Washburn, Growers and Wholesale Dealers in Cut Flowers, Chicago, testify:

"We formerly used hemlock and pine, but found that 2-inch stock lasted only about four years, while so far, we have had no 'Pecky' CYPRESS rot out in 10 or 12 years. We use clear CYPRESS for all our roof work, ventilators, etc., and it is very satisfactory. We think it is the only kind of lumber for the purpose." Not bad, is it?

"'PECKY' CYPRESS FOR THE BENCHES—NOTHING BUT!"

Draw freely on our Cypress Pocket Library—they are free. Vol. 3, "The Only Greenhouse Wood"; Vol. 22, "Cypress for Silos and Tanks," and Vol. 28, "Cypress for All Trellises and Arbors." Write for what you need, or hope to need, or ought to need.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business was about normal last week, the supply and demand being well proportioned. Funeral work continues good and furnishes most of the activity. There is an air of optimism among the growers and the dealers as to Easter business, and everybody is bending his energies in that direction.

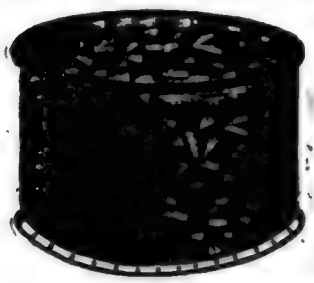
Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Reuter and George L. Stillman, of Westerly, were among the visitors to the National Flower Show at Philadelphia.

The Westminster Greenhouses furnished the table decorations for a large banquet at Infantry hall, March 25. About 500 carnations and 2,000 daffodils were used.

E. L. Lemery, landscape gardener of Woonsocket, has returned from Florida, where he has been for several weeks on business.

Joseph H. Burchard, a greenhouseman of Woonsocket, died last week at the age of 72. For several years previous to his last illness he was employed at the greenhouses of Drabble Bros. He is survived by his wife and an adopted son.



Secretary John J. Dunn, of the state board of agriculture, is having considerable trouble in securing men to fight the brown-tail and gypsy moths.

Ed. L. Gavitt, Westerly, is booking a large number of orders for outdoor work.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, addressed the Rhode Island Horticultural Society on "Gardens of Italy," at the March meeting. His lecture was illustrated with slides showing old and new world examples of these gardens. Preceding the lecture, the nominating committee submitted the names of Edward A. Burlingame and Charles W. Byer as trustees for five and two years respectively. They were unanimously elected. E. K. Thomas and Thomas Hope were appointed to make a report at the next meeting on the literature of gardening in the magazines, reports of the Department of Agriculture and the experiment station pamphlets.

Marion, Ind.—The cyclone that swept this section of Indiana March 21 did about all the damage it could do, and then some. Barns, sheds and fences were like chaff before the wind; three railroad coaches were blown off the tracks. The A. A. Hocker greenhouses near here are said to have been completely demolished. Neither a pane of glass nor a sash was left. The greenhouses will not be rebuilt. At the time of writing no word has been received from the Maple Heights Greenhouses, but a club house in that vicinity was badly wrecked. The greenhouses in the city did not suffer severely, having some protection from the terrific wind. The Marion Floral Co. range, on the edge of the storm, lost considerable glass from hail.

WHAT THE USERS SAY

Kirkwood, Mo., May 22, 1915.

Now that the firing season is over, and after a long cold winter, the coldest night being 6° below zero, I want to say I am well pleased with the No. 46 WATER TUBE STEAM BOILER and the No. 14 Hot Water Boiler. They are doing all you claim for them and more.

THIS STEAM BOILER I THINK IS A WONDER, a quick steamer, and holds the steam, the easiest boiler in the world to clean and to keep clean. The double steam trap system is working fine, keeping all the steam lines well drained.

The boiler tube system is the winner, the rapid circulation and even temperature obtained from this system is wonderful.

We are getting the best kind of results not only from the heating systems and boilers, but also from the roses.

(Signed) W. J. Pilcher.

Our WATER TUBE Steam Boiler has WATER FRONT, WATER SIDES, WATER BACK and is provided with immense SELF CLEANING HEATING SURFACES and circulating water tubes.

The WATER TUBE PRINCIPLE is adopted from the large water tube steam boilers used for power work; flue surface used in this manner is much more effective than fire tubes.

With the water tubes the water circulates THROUGH THE TUBES, while the OUTSIDE OF THE TUBES is exposed to the heated gases.

This boiler is the fastest steamer in existence—the hottest gases impinge against the crown sheet fire surface, then follow the downwards course along the smooth inside surfaces, leaving the boiler at the coolest part through the rear of ashpit base.

In this manner the fire travels along six surfaces, transmitting the heat to the thin water ways, at the two sides, the top, the front and the back of the boiler, also surrounding the water tubes.

No other boiler can equal it for fuel economy.

WHAT THE USERS SAY

Walton, N. Y., Jan. 10, 1916.

Your NEW No. 46 WATER TUBE STEAM BOILER is the finest steam boiler we have ever fired, and have fired eleven different makes before.

Your boiler keeps steam from 9:00 P. M. to 6:00 A. M. without attention in zero nights.

Before we had three boilers and could not control temperatures as easily as we can with yours. The water line is steady, and it holds its steam well. The little time consumed in cleaning same is wonderful, and we are very well pleased.

The other morning it went down to 4° below zero, and I fired the No. 46 Boiler at 11:00 P. M., had 10 lbs. of steam on with the draft half open, the houses all registering 48° to 52° and the rose house 60° the next morning.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

NATIONAL SHOW A GREAT SUCCESS

The fourth National Flower Show of the Society of American Florists, held last week at Philadelphia, has set a new mark for trade exhibitions in America. The best feature of it was that, now it is over, everybody is satisfied with the results achieved under the handicap of an inadequate building.

WHEN the National Flower Show closed its doors in Convention hall, Philadelphia, on the night of April 2, it had scored the greatest success in the history of flower shows in America. Not only was it the largest show ever held in America, but it had been seen by more people; not only had it cost more money than any previous show, but the funds necessary for a financial success had been obtained without recourse to the guarantors, who therefore will share in the profits of the show.

Of course it is too early to be able to state with authority what the outcome has been, but it is thought that, even with the loss of the first Sunday's anticipated gate receipts, the show had covered all expenses by March 30, leaving the gate of the last three days as possible profit.

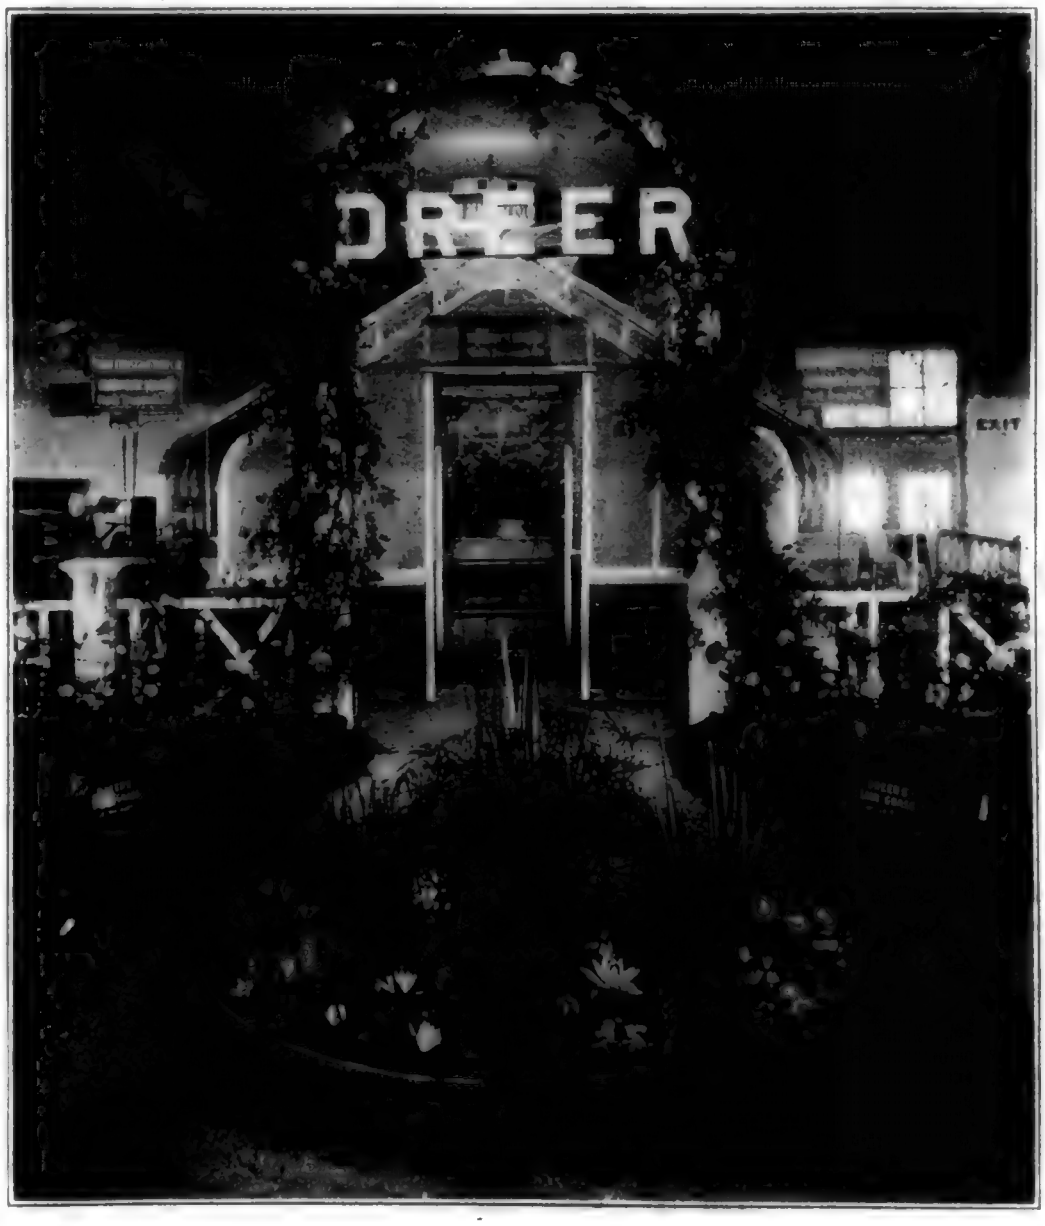
All Pleased.

But of far greater importance than a profit from the show is the fact that everyone connected with it is satisfied with the outcome. First of all, the Philadelphia public was pleased. The show occupied a larger place in the thoughts and conversation of the people of the city than has been the case with any previous national show, and the comment was unanimously favorable. The result is that much good was done the trade; floricultural interest was stimulated as never before. The benefits will be far-reaching.

Did Big Business.

Of second importance is the fact that Philadelphia florists and gardeners feel that the success achieved compensates them for their efforts, which were by no means slight.

And the exhibitors are pleased—they all did business. Those who bought trade space and sought orders nearly all say they found the effort profitable in spite of the high cost per foot made necessary by the inadequacy of the building to accommodate all comers. In many cases it is reported that the orders booked constitute the best record thus far made at any trade exhibition or convention and this report comes from some who looked to the public for their orders as well as from those who sought the patronage of the trade visitors. The number of trade visitors exceeded anything heretofore known, but the attendance of florists fell off after New York day, instead of increasing, as had been expected.



The effect of magnitude and excellence in the show unquestionably grew on one with each succeeding day and at the close each trade visitor was ready to subscribe to the verdict that every shortcoming in the exhibition could be traced to the unalterable condition of overcrowding growing out of the deplorable inadequacy of the building; that, this handicap considered, the management had done extremely well, taking advantage of every opportunity and surmounting every obstacle in the best possible way.

The Attendance.

The crowd that filled the hall each day until the doors closed Sunday evening, April 2, continued to be a marvel to all. That such immense numbers of people would go to a Philadelphia show was almost past local belief. So great was the press in the building that Thursday evening the doors were closed for a time to prevent overcrowding. A device of the management to have the show open to all on the second Sunday, April 2, was successful. An associate membership badge in the S. A. F., good from April 2, 1916, to April 2, 1917, was put on sale at the hall and at four downtown stores until Saturday night, April 1. These badges, with two American flags crossed on a button with a scarlet ribbon attached, were sold at 25 cents each. Nearly 5,000 were sold. Every respectable looking person was let in free Sunday, April 2. The crowd was enormous. Conservative judges estimated that the receipts for the last three days were profit over all expenses, or, as they tersely expressed it, were velvet. It was gratifying.

bureau has been quite clearly demonstrated. Great credit is due to Chairman Cowperthwaite and his capable corps of assistants for the way in which their work was done. People were shown the exhibits they wanted to see, introductions were given, the show wheels were made to move smoothly. Everything was done that could be done for each and every one who asked. And, of course, there were funny incidents. The first man who called asked, "How can I make a million dollars?" To which Mr. Cowperthwaite instantly replied, "Get a job in the mint." A perplexed lady inquired, "Where are my mother and sister?" "Describe them please, madam, and one of us will try to find them." A man telephoned to know whether he must remove his hat in the show, explaining that he was bald and would take cold with his hat off. He was told to come with his hat on and they would be glad to see him. So it went—a spirit of good humor prevailed at this bureau, even under trying conditions.

One or Two Things.

The sale of the wonderful collection of acacias from Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., which was made public March 31, was a pleasant surprise, the more so as the plants are to remain at Philadelphia. The purchase was made by William Kleinheinz, for Joseph E. Widener, at a price said to be $3,000.

The greatest crowds on the closing day were at the aquarium exhibits, especially that of Franklin Barrett, and at the Dutch garden of the Henry F. Michell Co. Long lines of people moved slowly past both exhibits.

Philadelphia florists supported the show by paying $11,000 for 44,000 trade tickets.

The committee on premium list has every reason to be proud of its work. Practically every class filled. The only exception was in the section prepared for the American Gladiolus Society, which brought out not one exhibit.

Someone played a practical joke on Mark Palmer Mills April 2, who was "arrested" at Convention hall for violating the Sunday law. It looked pretty serious to Mr. Mills for a moment, but he soon found it was a joke and recovered his usual air of cheerfulness.

A. A. Pembroke asks that it be stated that he was awarded the sweepstakes silver medal in the classes for 100 carnations on his vase of Pink Sensation, although the official list of awards supplied to The Review and published last week stated Mr. Pembroke to have received the bronze medal.

C. Wurst is gardener to Louis Burk, Olney, Pa., and John Hobson is gardener to E. A. Schmidt, Radnor, Pa. In last week's list of awards at the show the names of gardener and owner were transposed.

The exhibitors believe a free show, like that of Sunday, is a mistake, as it encourages the undesirable visitors.

A meeting of the National Flower Show committee was held in the headquarters in the Widener building April 3. It was announced that the profit on the show will be between $8,000 and $10,000. The attendance of the eight days the show was open to the public is estimated at 150,000.

Sweet Peas.

The arrival of the sweet peas March 29 brought additional strength to the show. They were staged in three separate positions. A central group on the main floor was filled by the exhibit of William Sim, of Cliftondale, Mass. This group was circular in form, composed of some seventy-five vases, rising to a height of five feet in the center. There were twenty-five blooms of one variety in each vase. Such sweet peas were a revelation even to the experts. Mr. Sim carried off a large number of the first prizes from a strong field of competitors. Nearby was the exhibit of Gude Bros. Co., of Washington, D. C., choice blooms, beautifully arranged with ferns. The main body of exhibitors had their displays on the staging above, displays that were most creditable to the American Sweet Pea Society and to themselves.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co. had a fine table of all their choicest varieties of sweet peas, carefully labeled. Their exhibit attracted much attention and was in perfect condition on the closing day.

The awards follow:

Corsage bouquet of sweet peas—Forrest Flower Shop, first; Gude Bros. Co., second.

The Rose Displays.

There were three entries in the class for a display of cut roses to be shown in 200 square feet of space March 30. They were from A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; the Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., and the F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y. The displays were all tastefully arranged and gave the judges food for careful thought.

The prizes were awarded as follows:

Display of cut roses, covering 200 square feet—A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., first; Jos. Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., second; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., third.

The Carnation Display.

March 31 was the second carnation day. There was only one entry in the class for display of not less than 1,000 or more than 1,500 blooms, arranged for effect, Edward A. Stroud, of the Strafford Flower Farm, taking first with an exhibit that was accorded a place of honor near the entrance. William Kleinheinz and the Cottage Gardens Co. made particularly fine exhibits in their respective classes.

The awards were as follows:

PRIVATE GROWERS.

Vase of carnations, not to exceed 150 blooms—Wm. Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa., first; Miss Ann Thomson, Merion, Pa., second.

COMMERCIAL GROWERS.

Display of carnation blooms, covering 150 square feet—Strafford Flower Farm, Strafford, Pa., first.

Vase of carnations, not to exceed 300 blooms, one or more varieties—Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., first.

RETAIL FLORISTS' EXHIBITS.

Table decorations, carnations being the principal flower used—Forrest Flower Shop, Philadelphia, Pa., ninety points; Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., eighty-eight points; London Flower Shop, Philadelphia, Pa., eighty-six points; L. P. Vollers, Philadelphia, Pa., seventy-eight points.

Basket arrangements, carnations being the principal flower used—London Flower Shop, ninety-three points; L. P. Vollers, ninety points; Forrest Flower Shop, eighty-two points.

The Retail Florists.

As the show progressed the retail florists came out strongly. Sweet peas, baskets and tables March 29; table decorations March 30 and carnation displays March 31 drew and held admiring throngs of people all day and all evening. Gude Bros. Co., of Washington, D. C.; J. M. Nitzschke, of the Forrest Flower Shop; the London Flower Shop, Ludwig P. Vollers and Charles Henry Fox all showed beautiful examples of artistic work that were highly praised.

In the art gallery the cards of Louis Burk, Victor I. Ridenour and Elmer W. Gaehring were added to those named last week.

The retailers have cause to be proud of their part in the exhibition.

Following are the awards:

Corsage bouquet of roses—Ludwig P. Vollers, Philadelphia, Pa., first; Forrest Flower Shop, Philadelphia, Pa., second.

Bride's bouquet of roses—Forrest Flower Shop, first; Ludwig P. Vollers, second.

Basket bouquet of roses—Charles Henry Fox, Philadelphia, Pa., first; London Flower Shop, Philadelphia, Pa., second.

Table decoration of roses—Forrest Flower Shop, first; London Flower Shop, second.

Bouquet of miniature roses—E. H. Slattery, Buffalo, N. Y., first.

Philadelphians and Sunday Closing.

S. S. Skidelsky points to the following editorial from the Public Ledger as indicative of the attitude of the majority of Philadelphians on the matter of closing the show on Sundays:

THE IMMORALITY OF FLOWERS.

The Flower Show must be a wicked thing, of course, or the laws of Pennsylvania, stupidly interpreted by local authority, would not have closed it to the public on Sunday afternoon—the one time when most of the people were able to go to see it. To every visitor, it may safely be said, this gorgeous exhibition has been a revelation of the beauty and the glory of the flower world. Yet all day long while thousands from far and near pleaded at the doors for a chance to see them these flowers wasted their loveliness on the deserted interior of the Convention hall simply because a blue law, the mortmain of the crass and narrow attitude of bygone times, decreed that it is wrong to go to any form of entertainment on Sunday for which one has to pay. The course for the people of any community thus fettered to take is to do away with a statute that sins against the light by forbidding flowers or music or pictures or any other source of moral and spiritual elevation on Sunday or any other day. It is farcical to pretend that we are civilized when we submit to such a preposterous imposition while legislatures exist to reflect the will of the people of today and not the decision of dark ages of bigotry and superstition.

The Banquet.

Five hundred persons gathered in Horticultural hall Wednesday evening, March 29, when the Philadelphia Florists' club entertained the visitors to the National Flower Show. About 300 of those present were visitors. The remaining 200 were club members and their wives or daughters. About one-third of those present were ladies. The banquet was held in the main hall, where all the big shows and balls take place. The speaker's table was placed parallel with the stage. From it, at right angles, ran five long tables. The decorations were beautifully arranged by J. J. Habermehl's Sons. The dinner was excellent and well served. The menu was:

Grape Fruit
Mock Turtle Soup
Olives Celery Radishes Almonds
Baked Shad With Cucumbers
Fillet of Beef Mushroom Sauce
New Potatoes Peas
Orange Sherbet
Terrapin Dressed Snapper
Tomato Salad
Cheese and Crackers
Vanilla Ice Cream and Fresh Strawberries
Rolls Coffee Fancy Cakes
Great Bear Spring Water

Despite the danger of being waterlogged, the wets showed a fine spirit by coming in number. One after another they glanced at their menu cards, only to be confronted by "Great Bear Water." Sherbet was a mild form of olive branch, which was accepted, and they added much to the pleasure of the evening by their hearty good will. George Burton presided. On his right sat Mayor Thomas B. Smith, who arrived punctually and made the first speech. The mayor spoke with regret of the necessity of closing the show Sunday. The law was clear and there was nothing to do but to enforce it. In his speech Wm. F. Gude discussed this portion of the mayor's address, sharply condemning the blue laws in so far as they affected the closing of a flower show and urging that no sermon could teach a better, truer, purer lesson than bureau has been quite clearly demonstrated. Great credit is due to Chairman Cowperthwaite and his capable corps of assistants for the way in which their work was done. People were shown the exhibits they wanted to see, introductions were given, the show wheels were made to move smoothly. Everything was done that could be done for each and every one who asked. And, of course, there were funny incidents. The first man who called asked, "How can I make a million dollars?" To which Mr. Cowperthwaite instantly replied, "Get a job in the mint." A perplexed lady inquired, "Where are my mother and sister?" "Describe them please, madam, and one of us will try to find them." A man telephoned to know whether he must remove his hat in the show, explaining that he was bald and would take cold with his hat off. He was told to come with his hat on and they would be glad to see him. So it went—a spirit of good humor prevailed at this bureau, even under trying conditions.

One or Two Things.

The sale of the wonderful collection of acacias from Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., which was made public March 31, was a pleasant surprise, the more so as the plants are to remain at Philadelphia. The purchase was made by William Kleinheinz, for Joseph E. Widener, at a price said to be $3,000.

The greatest crowds on the closing day were at the aquarium exhibits, especially that of Franklin Barrett, and at the Dutch garden of the Henry F. Michell Co. Long lines of people moved slowly past both exhibits.

Philadelphia florists supported the show by paying $11,000 for 44,000 trade tickets.

The committee on premium list has every reason to be proud of its work. Practically every class filled. The only exception was in the section prepared for the American Gladiolus Society, which brought out not one exhibit.

Someone played a practical joke on Mark Palmer Mills April 2, who was "arrested" at Convention hall for violating the Sunday law. It looked pretty serious to Mr. Mills for a moment, but he soon found it was a joke and recovered his usual air of cheerfulness.

IMPRESSIONS OF A BOSTONIAN

AT THE NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Overcrowding Deplorable.

The day I arrived in the Quaker City, March 28, to see the National Flower Show rain was falling in torrents, but even in the downpour it was apparent the approach to the hall was attractively planted, something impossible at either the New York or Boston national shows. Michell's hyacinths stood up bravely.

First impressions of the show were decidedly unfavorable. The terrible overcrowding seen on every hand got on one's nerves. Good plants there were in abundance, but few could show their individuality. Groups of noble stove and greenhouse foliage plants had quantities of low subjects, such as tulips, hyacinths and even crocuses, pushed below them, or forming decidedly incongruous borderings for them. Miscellaneous groups of flowering plants contained many beautiful plants, but there were in some cases distressing mixtures of hard woods, soft woods, annuals and bulbous subjects. The lack of space was responsible for much, but not all of these incongruities, such as did not exist except in small measure at previous national shows in New York and Boston.

Show Grew on One.

It was impossible, owing to the crowded conditions and narrow aisles, to form any true conception of the show from the floor. From a casual walk around, the exhibition seemed small compared to its two predecessors, but a view from the orchestra stand and balcony gave one a much better idea of the magnitude of the show and, in spite of the crowded condition of everything, the longer one walked around the show the more it grew upon one.

It is safe to say that there was more material shown than at either Boston or New York and that to display it properly a hall treble the size would not have been too large.

Mostly Local Exhibits.

The local management cannot well be blamed for the congested conditions. They had no conception that there would be such an outpouring of exhibits and the problem at future national shows will be not so much to procure sufficient exhibits as to properly stage them.

The commercial and private growers around Philadelphia certainly did nobly and deserve every praise for the great sacrifices made on behalf of the show, especially in view of the fact that they did not get anything like the exhibits from New York that might have been expected, perhaps owing to that city running what many seemed to consider an opposition show a week later. That New York's show was not popular with Philadelphians could easily be seen.

Roland's the Best Exhibit.

Coming to the individual exhibits, a common query propounded at such shows is, What was the finest exhibit there? On that point there could be but one opinion. It was the matchless group of acacias from Thomas Roland. At Boston and New York Mr. Roland had the finest groups, but at Philadelphia he eclipsed all former efforts. His specimens of pubescens, heterophylla, pulchella, cultriformis, grandis, Drummondii, verticillata, Lowii, Ayerii, armata, hispidissima and other varieties were as nearly perfect as possible. Such exhibits, taken a distance of 330 miles, entail a heavy sacrifice on the exhibitor's part and are worth a big retaining fee for any show.

Dreer's Roses.

Dreer's garden of hybrid tea roses came second in point of merit. The flowers were of magnificent quality, specially fine being Laurent Carle, Mme. Caroline Testout, Duchess of Wellington, Lieutenant Chaure, Earl of Warwick, Lady Mary Ward, Gustav Grunerwald, Pharisaer, J. J. L. Mock, Chateau de Clos Vougeot, Mme. Leon Paine and Mme. Melanie Soupert. Beautiful as this display was, it would have been better and more educational if the colors had been blocked. The tendency nowadays is to have beds of one variety, not mixtures. The labels, green with white letterings, were too subdued to be read with ease. The garden, however, was a most beautiful feature, easily the most educational of the trade exhibits.

The Rose Gardens.

In the competition for the best rose garden, the Robert Craig Co. and A. N. Pierson, Inc., made splendid exhibits. Personally, I would have given first place to the Pierson exhibit, as it was really a rose garden and a delightful one. The Italianesque effect of the Craig exhibit was altogether too heavy for my taste, and the fountain far too large, although the exhibit was a beautiful one.

Palms and Stove Plants.

Palms and stove and greenhouse flowering plants were well shown. The 30-foot specimen of Caryota urens and Phœnix Canariensis from William Kleinheinz were noteworthy. They secured the National Association of Gardeners' silver medal for the finest exhibit from a member of that association.

Specimen flowering plants were only moderate. Rhododendrons and azaleas were not equal to those seen at the New York National Show three years ago. Schizanthus, cinerarias, cyclamens, etc., were not equal to New York or Boston. The cyclamens and cinerarias were inferior to what we have at our regular Boston shows.

The Orchids.

Orchids made a notable display, fully as good as New York had three years ago and decidedly better than Boston had six years ago. Much the finest group was that from J. Goodier, gardener to C. G. Roebling. A few of his finest plants were Dendrobium Luna, Cypripedium Woodrow Wilson, Cattleya Mossiæ Reineckiana, Cypripedium concolor, Odontoglossum Uro-Skinneri, O. crispum, Cymbidium Sanderæ, Miltonia Phalænopsis alba, Cymbidium Gottianum and C. Paulwelsii and the pure white Dendrobium nobile Ashworthianum. Louis Burk's group was also an imposing one. Julius Roehrs Co. had an attractive display, the specimen of Sophronitis grandiflora being finely flowered. Lager & Hurrell, W. A. Manda and others made fine contributions to this section.

Miscellaneous Plants.

Bulbous plants were well done, especially the Darwin tulips. Groups of flowering plants contained much good material, but were so terribly overcrowded that they compared unfavorably with those seen at New York. The display of hardy evergreens, including topiary yews and boxes from W. A. Manda, Michell's, Dreer's, Andorra Nurseries, Thomas Meehan & Sons and others were remarkably good. Thomas Long's new and rare fine foliage plants contained some gems.

Aside from Dreer's rose garden, the Dutch garden of the H. F. Michell Co. was the most attractive of the many fine trade exhibits.

A good word must be said of the aquarium display. This drew a constant crowd of visitors who seemed to greatly admire the beautiful and fantastic forms of the lion heads, telescopes, Japanese goldfish, etc.

Hadley a Revelation.

The display of cut roses was far ahead of that seen at previous national shows and was pronounced by many the finest ever seen in America. It was sad to see such magnificent flowers so hopelessly crowded. American Beauties were grand, but Hadley was the feature of the show. This beautiful rose, as shown by the Joseph Heacock Co. and A. S. Burns, Jr., was a revelation to many. Ophelia came next in popularity. Some of the finest, on 5-foot stems, came from J. H. Dunlop, in Canada. Killarney Brilliant was much the finest of the Killarney class. Lady Alice Stanley, as shown by John Welsh Young, was grand. Radiance, Russell and Hoosier Beauty came next in favor.

Carnations and Sweet Peas.

The carnation display was fine in quality, but less in quantity than I had expected. The New England growers captured the cream of the prizes. Pink Sensation and Cottage Maid loomed up among the large varieties, while Matchless, Pink Delight, Beacon, Gorgeous, Benora and Baur & Steinkamp's new cerise pink seedling were noteworthy among the others.

Sweet peas made a wonderful showing March 29. The advance made in the winter Spencers is remarkable. William Sim captured most of the firsts in a strong competition. The display of these was much better than at New York three years ago.

Two Commendable Features.

A distressing feature to many, but one which gave peculiar pleasure to the writer, was the absence of tobacco smoke in and about the exhibition. An-

MAX SCHLING.

THIS Viennese relates it of himself that when he came to America, in 1898, he worked at eight jobs in the first fourteen months, but what he doesn't tell is that in those few weeks he learned all there was to learn at those many jobs. He was acquiring familiarity with the language and with New York ways of selling flowers. Then, at 26, he started a retail flower business for himself. In these sixteen years he has had just one job, that of doing today a little better work than he and his staff did yesterday. Schling is temperamental, the artist—you'd know that to look at his portrait. He started life as a sculptor, but took up gardening and landscape work and as a youth laid out some of the finest estates in Bohemia. Since Alfred M. Scheider joined him as the business manager of the firm his work has made the store adjoining the Plaza hotel one of the best known in New York.

this great exhibition which was closed to the people on Sunday. J. Otto Thilow was toastmaster. His happy manner of presenting the speakers added much to the pleasure of the evening. There was music and song and wit and good comradeship throughout. The gathering broke up about midnight.

The program of toasts was:

Chairman, George Burton, President Florists' Club of Philadelphia.
Toastmaster, J. Otto Thilow.
Our City, Hon. Thos. B. Smith.
The Ladies, Edw. James Cattell.
Our Honored Guests, Daniel MacRorie, President S. A. F.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

["How to Grow Roses," by Robert Pyle. Published by the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa. Twelfth edition, revised and enlarged. Contains 121 pages, with many illustrations, fifteen of which are full-page colored plates. Bound in cloth. Price, $1.]

"How to Grow Roses," in this case, means how to grow them outdoors. The book is not written expressly for commercial growers, for the author states at the beginning: "It is the amateur's rose garden, especially, that we have had in mind when writing the following pages." Still, any member of the trade who has neglected the subject of outdoor rose growing, and wants enlightenment on it, may find that this little book is an excellent "first reader." Why should not a treatise for amateurs, written by a commercial expert, be suitable for the commercial beginner? In this instance the elementary facts are presented in a clear and attractive style, a style that is acceptable to both amateur and professional. The illustrations, both plain and colored, are good. In all its details the little work is so excellent a sample of book-making that one is not surprised to find at the end the imprint of the McFarland press. For sale by The Review at the publishers' price.

WORK OF THE ROSE SOCIETY.

The President's Address.

In opening the meeting of the American Rose Society at Philadelphia last week, President Pennock spoke in part as follows:

For some years the society has worked mostly along commercial lines and as such it has appealed to the commercial man more than to the amateur. The rose industry of this country is a large one and must not be lost sight of and at the same time the amateur is another phase that cannot be lost sight of, as he is becoming more and more of a factor each year. Not only is his work a benefit and an inspiration to the commercial man, but it also is popularizing the rose as no other means can or will. The amateur, I feel, is the one we must look mostly to in increasing our membership and bringing the society to a standard and more on a level with the National Rose Society of England, which has a membership of over 6,000, and is a flourishing society. I want to make a strong appeal for the amateur, believing a large amateur membership is the only way we can bring the society to that state of efficiency which every member, whether active or associate, wishes it to attain.

A month ago I had a visit from Dr. Robert Huey about this same amateur business and, by the way, Dr. Huey ceased being a member of this society on account of its offering the amateur so little, but I am glad to say he is again with us. He brought with him a letter from W. E. Davis, a rose enthusiast of New Haven, with a strong appeal for the amateur in our society, asking that this matter be taken up in a vigorous manner at our annual meeting.

We have with us today a number of members whom we shall be glad to hear from later, members who are authorities on roses. I think that, with the assistance and the material we have among our members, we can map out a campaign that will give such value to every member that we will have no trouble in securing new members. Let us hope that this time next year we will have a membership of more than 1,000.

Sources of New Members.

Along the lines of publicity we are doing all the society at this time can do financially, and I believe that we are getting splendid results for the money we are spending. An increased membership and a better treasury balance will enable us to offer our members more in the way of literature and general rose information, giving them such value that they will feel an increase in the associate membership dues during the next few years thoroughly justified. Let every member, whether active or associate, strive to help our publicity campaign, to increase the membership and give us a society worth while.

I note with pleasure that we are having more societies affiliating with us each year. I believe it is only a matter of time when a great many of these affiliated members will not feel satisfied to be simply affiliated members but will want to be something more, either associate or active members. Should not the secretary of each affiliated society have a voice in the Rose Society the same as an active member? I make this as a recommendation. These affiliated members will mean new friends who will join with the old in making this society a tower of strength, and make it truly national in scope and character as well as in name.

We believe our friends, the catalogue men, could be instrumental in bringing in new members in large numbers by making mention of the Rose Society in their catalogues, setting forth its aims and purposes—points that would appeal to the amateur.

This Year's Rose Annual.

This year's Rose Annual, which has been so ably edited by J. Horace McFarland, is not only a credit to the society but also a treatise on roses invaluable to every member, whether commercial or amateur rosarian, and will, we are sure, make for new members wherever it goes and add new life to our society.

In circulating the Rose Annual, it will only go with a membership, either life, active, associate or affiliated. We consider the Rose Annual too valuable a book to be sold just as an edition, and it should be well worth the price of membership in the society. In the annual each year the aim will be to give to our members literature that will be an inspiration and a real help to them, articles from the pens of recognized authorities, making it a book to be treasured and kept as a rose authority.

Possibilities of Test Gardens.

The American Rose Society in establishing test gardens in various parts of the United States is working out a feature that will become a most valuable and far-reaching asset to rose growing. These test gardens are now established at Washington, at Hartford, at Cornell University and at Minneapolis.

A committee has been appointed to look after and take charge of each garden. The plan is to have at least five plants of a kind in the case of teas; two of a kind in the case of climbers; every known variety that can be obtained, not only from this country but also from foreign parts. Accurate records are to be kept as to how they flourish, the climatic conditions, the amount of bloom and whatever statistics as to temperature, soil, etc., may be deemed necessary by the committees in charge.

Anyone contemplating the growing of a certain variety, for instance, in the same climate as Washington, might refer to the appropriate test garden reports and see how that variety has done, whether it was hardy, whether it was able to stand the hot summer, and so on. These records, as summarized each year in the annual, will become invaluable.

These test gardens as they will be established from time to time in the various cities of the United States and Canada will make one of the many interesting features fostered by the Rose Society.

Better Judging and Registration.

The official scale of points for judging outdoor roses, as adopted by the Rose Society some years ago, has been thought by some of our rose enthusiasts to be insufficient and not covering the ground completely. Dr. Huey, Jesse A. Currey and Geo. C. Thomas, Jr., have had some correspondence on this subject and have made up a scale of points which they consider makes a better scale to judge by.

Accurate registration of roses is an important matter. We can go back only a few years and find incomplete and at times inaccurate records of roses of American origin. The Department of Agriculture at Washington has under way the compilation of a record of roses of American origin and sports, and with the registration as kept by the American Rose Society we believe we will have records better and more accurate than those gotten together in any other way. The renaming of roses, whether of American or foreign origin, is to my mind a pernicious habit, and one that the American Rose Society is not at all in accord with, believing that it does more harm to the rose than good. With this aim in view the society at one of its executive committee meetings appointed Robert Simpson, H. O. May and Robert Pyle to study the matter.

For Disease Prevention.

It has occurred to a number of those interested in roses, particularly those interested in the society's future, that we should have a department of plant pathology, where information could be gotten by the members who are troubled with rose diseases of any nature or of any character, whether the roses be indoor or outdoor-grown, and advice as to how to handle these diseases and how to avoid a recurrence of them. A great many rose lovers, particularly the commercial men, know how to cure certain diseases, but they do not always know the fundamental principles, or what causes these diseases; if they did know they could probably handle them in much better shape. How many of the amateurs would welcome a suggestion of how to prevent their roses from mildewing or from suffering from diseases! They generally know what to do after the roses are diseased, but a much better way would be to prevent the disease in the first place.

What we would like to do would be to establish a fund to take care of such a department and do it on a basis so that it would be profitable to every rose grower in the United States and Canada, and I feel that every rose grower, if for nothing else, should be a member of the Rose Society to help a department of this nature, feeling that he would get back in returns far more than he ever invested.

There is not a grower in this country but who would give money, and liberally, if he could prevent black spot, mildew, or any of the many other diseases which rose plants are subject to. If we had this department on a solid footing we believe it would be only a matter of time when experiments could be made that would eliminate most of the diseases—possibly not eliminate them but remedy them to a great extent. So the department, no matter what it would cost, instead of being an expense would be a saving to the rose business as a whole.

THE KOTTMILLER WINDOW.

There are two general styles of window decoration, that in which attention is centered on one or two high-class articles by having only a little stock in the window, and that in which the window is filled as full as can be without crowding. The window that is full is said to have selling qualities superior to the window that is artistic but does not show much stock. The way A. Kottmiller, 426 Madison avenue, New York, likes to decorate his window for the metropolitan crowds is shown in the accompanying illustration.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

EASTER STOCK IN THE SOUTH.

When Easter comes late in the season, as it does this year, growers in the south are up against a hard proposition. From the outlook at present it seems that all the Dutch bulbous stock will be over, with the exception, perhaps, of some of the double tulips. Von Zions are in full bloom in the frames, with no hope of lasting. Even late varieties of narcissi, like Emperor, etc., are showing buds above the soil covering. These may as well be lifted and placed in a frame in a shady place or else artificially shaded to keep them as cool as possible. Azaleas, which have stood in a protected coldframe all winter, are beginning to show color. It will be possible to hold these if they are not too far advanced. Those far advanced may as well be brought inside to flower as soon as possible. Spiræas should have their flower spikes well above the foliage now to be ready on time. Do not neglect to keep these plants well supplied with water. The buds on the hydrangeas now should be well advanced; in fact, almost showing color. Two weeks in cool quarters will greatly improve their finish. Lilies, at the time of writing, March 24, should have their buds about one inch long. A night temperature of 65 degrees will make them right, with plenty of time to harden them off before required. Any plants not so developed may be brought in on time by giving them 70 to 75 degrees at night and 80 to 90 degrees during the day. In this case keep the house moist by spraying frequently.

CARNATIONS IN THE SOUTH.

The bright, warm, springlike weather proclaims the time at hand to apply a little shade to the houses. For this purpose I have found nothing better than a thin wash of whiting, applied to the inside of the glass with a brush. This will stay on all summer and is easily washed off with the hose when the time comes to remove it. A good top-dressing of manure at this time will prolong the season of blooming. Red spider and thrips are apt to appear in force unless measures are taken to check them. Use the salt spray for red spider, and one of the tobacco sprays, at least weekly, for thrips. Pay particular attention to the routine of good culture, such as keeping the houses and beds clean and free from other feature worthy of even more commendation was the absence of intoxicants at the delightful and enjoyable banquet, held in beautiful Horticultural hall. In these respects Philadelphia has set a shining example for other cities. W. N. Craig.

"How to Grow Roses," in this case, means how to grow them outdoors. The book is not written expressly for commercial growers, for the author states at the beginning: "It is the amateur's rose garden, especially, that we have had in mind when writing the following pages." Still, any member of the trade who has neglected the subject of outdoor rose growing, and wants enlightenment on it, may find that this little book is an excellent "first reader." Why should not a treatise for amateurs, written by a commercial expert, be suitable for the commercial beginner? In this instance the elementary facts are presented in a clear and attractive style, a style that is acceptable to both amateur and professional. The illustrations, both plain and colored, are good. In all its details the little work is so excellent a sample of book-making that one is not surprised to find at the end the imprint of the McFarland press. WORK OF THE ROSE SOCIETY.

The President's Address.

In opening the meeting of the American Rose Society at Philadelphia last week, President Pennock spoke in part as follows:

For some years the society has worked mostly along commercial lines and as such it has appealed to the commercial man more than to the amateur. The rose industry of this country is a large one and must not be lost sight of and at the same time the amateur is another phase that cannot be lost sight of, as he is becoming more and more of a factor each year. Not only is his work a benefit and an inspiration to the commercial man, but it also is popularizing the rose as no other means can or will. The amateur, I feel, is the one we must look mostly to in increasing our membership and bringing the society to a standard and more on a level with the National Rose Society of England, which has a membership of over 6,000, and is a flourishing society. I want to make a strong appeal for the amateur, believing a large amateur membership is the only way we can bring the society to that state of efficiency which every member, whether active or associate, wishes it to attain.

A month ago I had a visit from Dr. Robert Huey about this same amateur business and, by the way, Dr. Huey ceased being a member of this society on account of its offering the amateur so little, but I am glad to say he is again with us. He brought with him a letter from W. E. Davis, a rose enthusiast of New Haven, with a strong appeal for the amateur in our society, asking that this matter be taken up in a vigorous manner at our annual meeting.

We have with us today a number of members whom we shall be glad to hear from later, members who are authorities on roses. I think that, with the assistance and the material we have among our members, we can map out a campaign that will give such value to every member that we will have no trouble in securing new members. Let us hope that this time next year we will have a membership of more than 1,000.

Sources of New Members.

Along the lines of publicity we are doing all the society at this time can do financially, and I believe that we are getting splendid results for the money we are spending. An increased membership and a better treasury balance will enable us to offer our members more in the way of literature and general rose information, giving them such value that they will feel an increase in the associate membership dues during the next few years thoroughly justified. Let every member, whether active or associate, strive to help our publicity campaign, to increase the membership and give us a society worth while.

I note with pleasure that we are having more societies affiliating with us each year. I believe it is only a matter of time when a great many of these affiliated members will not feel satisfied to be simply affiliated members but will want to be something more, either associate or active members. Should not the secretary of each affiliated society have a voice in the Rose Society the same as an active member? I make this as a recommendation. These affiliated members will mean new friends who will join with the old in making this society a tower of strength, and make it truly national in scope and character as well as in name.

We believe our friends, the catalogue men, could be instrumental in bringing in new members in large numbers by making mention of the Rose Society in their catalogues, setting forth its aims and purposes—points that would appeal to the amateur.

This Year's Rose Annual.

This year's Rose Annual, which has been so ably edited by J. Horace McFarland, is not only a credit to the society but also a treatise on roses invaluable to every member, whether commercial or amateur rosarian, and will, we are sure, make for new members wherever it goes and add new life to our society.

In circulating the Rose Annual, it will only go with a membership, either life, active, associate or affiliated. We consider the Rose Annual too valuable a book to be sold just as an edition, and it should be well worth the price of membership in the society. In the annual each year the aim will be to give to our members literature that will be an inspiration and a real help to them, articles from the pens of recognized authorities, making it a book to be treasured and kept as a rose authority.

Possibilities of Test Gardens.

The American Rose Society in establishing test gardens in various parts of the United States is working out a feature that will become a most valuable and far-reaching asset to rose growing. These test gardens are now established at Washington, at Hartford, at Cornell University and at Minneapolis.

A committee has been appointed to look after and take charge of each garden. The plan is to have at least five plants of a kind in the case of teas; two of a kind in the case of climbers; every known variety that can be obtained, not only from this country but also from foreign parts. Accurate records are to be kept as to how they flourish, the climatic conditions, the amount of bloom and whatever statistics as to temperature, soil, etc., may be deemed necessary by the committees in charge.

Anyone contemplating the growing of a certain variety, for instance, in the same climate as Washington, might refer to the appropriate test garden reports and see how that variety has done, whether it was hardy, whether it was able to stand the hot summer, and so on. These records, as summarized each year in the annual, will become invaluable.

These test gardens as they will be established from time to time in the various cities of the United States and Canada will make one of the many interesting features fostered by the Rose Society.

Better Judging and Registration.

The official scale of points for judging outdoor roses, as adopted by the Rose Society some years ago, has been thought by some of our rose enthusiasts to be insufficient and not covering the ground completely. Dr. Huey, Jesse A. Currey and Geo. C. Thomas, Jr., have had some correspondence on this subject and have made up a scale of points which they consider makes a better scale to judge by.

Accurate registration of roses is an important matter. We can go back only a few years and find incomplete and at times inaccurate records of roses of American origin. The Department of Agriculture at Washington has under way the compilation of a record of roses of American origin and sports, and with the registration as kept by the American Rose Society we believe we will have records better and more accurate than those gotten together in any other way. The renaming of roses, whether of American or foreign origin, is to my mind a pernicious habit, and one that the American Rose Society is not at all in accord with, believing that it does more harm to the rose than good. With this aim in view the society at one of its executive committee meetings appointed Robert Simpson, H. O. May and Robert Pyle to study the matter.

For Disease Prevention.

It has occurred to a number of those interested in roses, particularly those interested in the society's future, that we should have a department of plant pathology, where information could be gotten by the members who are troubled with rose diseases of any nature or of any character, whether the roses be indoor or outdoor-grown, and advice as to how to handle these diseases and how to avoid a recurrence of them. In some sections of the south the young plants are already set out in the field, and everywhere in the south should planting out be finished before Easter. A good early start in this is necessary if you would have strong plants at housing time. Prepare the ground thoroughly by plowing, disking and harrowing, getting it as fine as possible. If the ground had no cover crop, spread a good coating of manure before plowing. After plowing add a top-dressing of about three tons of ground lime per acre. Have the young plants well soaked before planting out and be sure to avoid deep planting. Let the top of the balls of the plants be merely level with the surface of the ground. Rains are infrequent in many sections of the south, but if you can manage to get the planting done just before a good rain you are over the worst difficulty. Sixteen inches between the rows is the usual width, with the plants set ten inches apart in the rows.

OUR NEW ENGLAND TRAVELER.

At Framingham, Mass.

At the William R. Nicholson range, carnations are the leading specialty, although a variety of other stock is grown. The establishment never looked better than this season, the carnations being specially fine. Pink Delight and Alice are both grown as light pinks. The plantings of Alice will be doubled here next season. Matchless looked uncommonly well and, while somewhat slow in winter, is always in crop. White Wonder also is grown in quantity and is well liked. Beacon carried an immense crop, but at present bursts badly. Some Belle Washburn will be tried next season. In deeper pinks, Pink Sensation, Mrs. Ward, Good Cheer and Peerless Pink are grown. Mrs. Akehurst will be dropped. Benora showed up well. Mr. Nicholson has rooted a nice batch of a pure white sport. Pocahontas and Fenn are grown as crimsons, but this will be the last season for Fenn. A seedling from Pocahontas is quite brilliant and just the color the market needs.

Yellow marguerites are grown in quantity here. A pale yellow form is being selected as being likely to take well. Mignonette is always superb and this year is no exception to the rule. Snapdragons, myosotis, Rose Queen sweet peas and Gypsophila elegans, and such Memorial day crops as double feverfew and candytuft, are also grown.

I have never seen the Godfrey calla better flowered than here. It is grown on narrow shelves along the sides of the large carnation houses. These are grown mostly three tubers in an 8-inch pot and up to March 9 had averaged more than eight flowers per pot, with hundreds of flowers and buds in sight. The flowers were just as large as any of the old type and much purer in color.

S. J. Goddard.

At S. J. Goddard's, Pink Sensation looked well and, for a large variety, was blooming quite freely. Rosette appeared to be Good, but will be dropped in favor of Rosalia. Pink Delight and Alice are both grown, but the last-named will be dropped and Dorner's Nancy will be planted next season. Some Gloriosa is still grown and found to pay well. Yellow Prince was not bursting as at some other establishments. Beacon looked splendid, with hardly any burst flowers. Good Cheer is being carefully selected and will be tried again. Mr. Goddard has a long bench devoted to his own crimson seedlings and they are a fine lot. The best one has been named Doris. This has been seen under number at some of the leading exhibitions.

Considerable general stock suitable for retail trade is grown here. I noted some fine standard fuchsias and geraniums; also good batches of cyclamens, marguerites, mignonette, snapdragons and English primroses.

J. T. Butterworth.

Orchids are the feature at the J. T. Butterworth place and anyone at all interested in these plants can spend an hour or two profitably there, as they are well grown and seem to thrive better in houses not of the most modern type. Odontoglossums were in splendid health. O. crispum was carrying some grand spikes. A batch of Miltonia vexillaria looked extremely healthy. Cymbidium Sanderæ, with its beautiful erect spikes of pink flowers, carried numerous spikes. I counted nineteen flowers on one plant. Other cymbidiums were carrying numerous spikes. A fine plant of Cattleya Thayeriana superba carried fifty flowers. The cattleyas, cypripediums and other orchids all looked remarkably well. Dutch bulbous stock is heavily grown here. Walter T. Ware is well liked as a white-winged, large trumpet variety of narcissus. Murillo and La Reine are the favorite tulips. A double form of Narcissus Campernellii rugulosus was pretty and proves to be a wonderful keeper. In the carnation house Alice, Matchless, Beacon, Benora and Champion are grown.

John A. Nelson.

No one should visit Framingham without calling on John A. Nelson. He grows about 40,000 carnations and they are in grand condition, carrying an immense crop of flowers. Owing to the long spell of dark, cold weather, some varieties are bursting more than usual, but this trouble is now passing. It is hard to single out any special kind for mention where everything is so well grown, but Pink Delight, Alice, White Enchantress, Ward, Enchantress, Benora and Matchless, which are the leaders, are all splendid. Ward is doing specially well, and Alice is steadily improving as the days lengthen. A splendid lot of young stock was noted. Some sweet peas and snapdragons are practically the only other flowers grown here.

Burlington, Vt.—W. E. Peters has leased the store at 128 Church street and will hold a formal opening April 15.

Newton Center, Mass.—Paul J. Kent, formerly employed by John C. Clark, has been appointed manager of the Cotton greenhouses.

Portland, Me.—Miss Bertha F. Lougee, formerly of the Portland Flower Store, has opened a store of her own at 647 Congress street.

Cumberland Center, Me.—L. J. Miller, H. P. Sweetser and M. A. Blanchard have reorganized and incorporated the Sunnyside Greenhouses.

Hanover, Mass.—Axel Sorenson, who has been with the Hanover Greenhouses for a number of years, has moved to Marlboro to go into business on his own account.

Lynn, Mass.—John M. Barnett and Walter H. Danforth, who have grown dahlias during the last ten years, have announced their intention of engaging in a general florists' business.

Pittsfield, Mass.—The Viale Floral Co. has made contracts for the erection of three greenhouses at Lenox avenue and Wahconah street. An office building and workroom also will be erected.

Lowell, Mass.—Bids for the submission of shrubs and trees for Larcom park were as follows: J. J. McManmon, $114.20; Whittet & Co., $90.65; Haynes, the Florist, $85.40. The last-named was awarded the contract.

Newport, Vt.—Two greenhouses, a dwelling house and two barns, owned by J. Farrant, recently were destroyed by fire. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

Plantsville, Conn.—A. C. Strom, of New Britain, has purchased the greenhouses formerly operated by Olson & Lunden, at a price of $6,000. Mr. Strom has plans for building several new houses.

Stoneham, Mass.—Plans are being made by Everel K. Farr for the erection of a King house this spring, 42x142 feet. The new house will be planted to carnations and sweet peas. Mr. Farr's stock is marketed by the Boston Coöperative Flower Market.

New Bedford, Mass.—At the monthly meeting of the New Bedford Horticultural Society, the executive committee was instructed to make schedules for the flower shows to be held this year. There will be four shows, peony, rose, dahlia and chrysanthemum. As a result of a campaign for new members, thirty-seven were voted in.

Pittsfield, Mass.—When the Flower Shop wants an F. T. D. window it notifies the telegraph company. In a short time the telegraph salesman calls with a load of "props" for the window, including a telegraph outfit, desk, miniature poles, wires, etc. The company figures that any window that advertises F. T. D. service advertises the telegram.

FUNGICIDES FOR FLORISTS

THE APPLICATION of fungicides, as I stated in a previous article, in The Review of February 24, has probably been the most highly developed phase of disease prevention in plant pathology, but in the greenhouse the use of fungicides, especially those which discolor the foliage, is limited.

Remember that the application of fungicides is not a "cure-all." Therefore, use them only when experiments have shown that they can be applied with beneficial results. Not long ago, when a disease troubled your plants, you were advised to spray with Bordeaux mixture or some potent fungicide, but, fortunately, such advice is now in disfavor.

Also remember that fungicides are used as a preventive and not as a cure. The only diseases that can be cured are the surface mildews, where the fungus is purely superficial. You can keep disease from spreading if you apply fungicides at an early stage.

Among the fungicides suitable for use in the greenhouse are the following, with the methods of preparation:

Bordeaux Mixture.

Bordeaux mixture is the standard fungicide for the control of certain diseases. It was introduced into this country from Europe in 1887 by the United States Department of Agriculture, but has been modified to some extent. The mixture giving the best results in the greenhouse is one made from four pounds of copper sulphate (blue vitriol), four pounds of quicklime (not air-slaked), and fifty gallons of water. Where small quantities are needed the equipment should consist of a 50-gallon barrel, two tubs of a capacity of at least twenty-five gallons, two buckets, and a paddle for mixing. In one tub place twenty-five gallons of water and dissolve in it four pounds of copper sulphate, by suspending it in a coarse sack just below the surface of the water. In the other tub carefully slake four pounds of quicklime, using only sufficient water to have the lime, when thoroughly slaked, in the form of a thick paste. When cold, dilute to twenty-five gallons. Then the solutions are ready to mix. After stirring well, pour a bucket of each simultaneously into the barrel, allowing the streams to come together. Continue this process until the entire amount is made; then stir the mixture and strain into a spray-tank.

Smaller Quantities of Bordeaux.

When fifty gallons is not needed, a smaller quantity may be conveniently made by using stock solutions.

A stock solution of copper sulphate is made by dissolving one pound of copper sulphate in one gallon of water. A stock solution of quicklime is made by weighing out a definite quantity and slaking it with a small quantity of water. After the lime is thoroughly slaked and cooled, enough water is added to make a solution containing one pound of lime per gallon of water. These solutions, if kept in covered vessels to prevent evaporation, will remain good for a long time. In preparing the Bordeaux mixture from stock, measure out the proper quantity of your solution of copper sulphate and dilute it with half the quantity of water needed. In a similar manner measure the lime from stock, and dilute with the other half of the water, but in separate vessels, and mix as outlined above.

Bordeaux mixture is effective for leaf-spots and several of the rusts on greenhouse plants.

Ammoniacal Copper Carbonate.

Ammoniacal copper carbonate consists of a solution made by dissolving copper carbonate in ammonia in the following proportions: Copper carbonate, six ounces; ammonia, about three pints; water, fifty gallons. Dissolve the copper carbonate in the ammonia, using no more ammonia than is positively necessary; then add the water. If the solution is too strong or not properly mixed, some injury may result, in the burning of the tender leaves. The strong solution made of copper carbonate and ammonia can be kept for some time in stoppered bottles and diluted with the proper quantity of water as needed. Unlike Bordeaux mixture, this fungicide will not discolor the foliage and, therefore, is preferred in some cases. This solution is effective in the control of the black spot of roses, other leaf-spots, and several rusts.

Potassium sulphide is particularly effective in the control of certain mildews and rusts. Like ammoniacal copper carbonate, it does not discolor the foliage. The constituents are as follows: Potassium sulphide, three to five ounces; water, ten gallons.

Flowers of Sulphur.

Flowers of sulphur is the best known fungicide for the control of surface mildews, like that of the rose. The sulphur may be dusted over the plants, through a cheesecloth bag or bellows, so as to fairly cover the leaves with the yellow powder. This method can be used where the mildew is scattered, but when the whole house is affected a paste should be made of sulphur and water and smeared on the steam pipes. The fumes arising from the sulphur on the pipes are effective in killing the mildew.

Another paste, made from one-fourth lime, three-fourths sulphur and a little water, is just as effective and will remain on the pipes longer. Sulphur burners and vaporizers can be used in the summer, when steam is not available. In using the sulphur burner it must be borne in mind that the sulphur fumes produced by this method are of a different nature from those produced by the steam pipe and vaporizing methods, and are more liable to injure the young foliage if applied too strong.

A new form of sulphur, known as atomic or precipitated sulphur, has appeared in the market. This sulphur, which is in a finely divided state, mixes well with water. A paste of any proportion can be made up easily.

Lime-sulphur, a spray used of late years as a fungicide in orchards, has not been given a trial in the greenhouse. However, it appears to have some possibilities.

All the chemicals required for the various preparations can be obtained from your supply house or any drug store.

Maple Heights Greenhouses, Marion, Ind., After the Recent Storm.

INDIANA STORM (PICTORIALLY).

Record was made last week of the cyclone of March 21 that swept the country near Marion, Ind., and of the devastation and wreckage strewn in its wake. The terrific force of the wind is demonstrated by the fact that three railroad cars in the center of the storm were lifted off the tracks. The A. A. Hocker greenhouses near Marion were said to have been completely demolished, neither pane of glass nor sash was left, and the Marion Floral Co., on the edge of the disturbance, reported a heavy loss of glass from the hail that followed the blast. The Maple Heights Greenhouses, at some distance from Marion, are considered to be a total loss. After the cyclone the houses looked as if they had passed through deluge and war. The accompanying illustration gives an idea of the extent of the damage. The west section of the connecting houses was almost even with the ground and the east wing was badly twisted and wrecked. All the stock, of course, was exposed and frozen. David Rudicel, the proprietor of the Maple Heights Greenhouses, is protected to some extent by insurance.

Along in B. C. a Greek philosopher one day pronounced the following, or words to the same effect: "The elements are man's best friend and his worst enemy." The sage certainly hit the nail squarely on the head.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

A summer temperature last week created almost a summer market. The cut flower market did not wake up until Saturday. Then came the "clean up" and a general interest that was encouraging, though it was at the sacrifice of values. The big buyers of both New York and Brooklyn were again much in evidence.

Shipments of roses are heavy and the short-stemmed grades of all varieties were disposed of as low as $10.00 per thousand. The high-grade Beauties and Hadley were barely steady at the quotations given. Present top prices are only for the selected stock.

Carnations are abundant. Most of the arrivals are superb, but prices are rapidly falling and few indeed sold at or above $2 per hundred. Many thousands were distributed Friday and Saturday at $10 per thousand. Lilies still are held at the low figures of the last month and give no indication of the speedy coming of Easter. Valley fell from 4 cents to 2 cents, little of it going above that figure. There seems to be a great surplus and the street merchants are not slow to take advantage of it. Sweet peas, too, are coming in a daily flood and only the best are salable in the retail stores. The medium and lower grades sell only through the sidewalk channels. The street men also are depended on to relieve the congestion of violets, the quality of which is fast retrograding. The late Easter will find few salable. Nothing but the best selected stock touches 25 cents per hundred. Gardenias also are in endless supply and so become the street man's specialty.

A few of the best cattleyas touched 50 cents April 1, but 35 cents seems to be the generally accepted top for the selects. In bulbous stock, tulips still command good prices for the choice varieties. Narcissi are abundant and now come the southern daffodils, selling at $5 per hundred bunches. Not much freesia is seen. Calla lilies are abundant, as are daisies, pansies, forget-me-not, lilac, mignonette and other seasonable flowers.

The windows of many of the wholesalers are made interesting with flowering plants for Easter.

Various Notes.

The International Flower Show is on this week at the Grand Central Palace and is the principal subject for conversation in trade circles.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club, April 10, will be attended by many out-of-town visitors who are here attending the flower show. The officers extend a cordial invitation to all florists in the city on that date to come and enjoy a social two hours.

Among those who will lecture in the Saturday afternoon series at Bronx park are the following: Arthur Cowee, April 22; Maurice Fuld, April 29; Richard Rothe, May 6; Arthur Herrington, May 13; J. Otto Thilow, June 3.

The New York visitors to the National Flower Show at Philadelphia all enjoyed their trip exceedingly and many remained for the banquet and the closing days of the great exhibition.

The plant auctions are drawing larger audiences at every sale.

R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., lectured April 5 before the Garden Club of Short Hills, N. J.

C. Brown, Jr., son of the Belnord florist, is back from the European war. He was in the ambulance service and his reminiscences are most interesting.

Goldstein & Futterman seem much encouraged with their success to date.

The Cut Flower Exchange held its monthly meeting April 1, at the office of W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., the secretary, in Long Island City.

D. C. Arnold & Co. have added two to their office force and the cut flower factory at Hempstead is turning out large shipments of carnations, with Mrs. Arnold the favorite variety.

J. J. Coan says his business has been more than satisfactory from his opening.

Charles Millang's new plant store at 50 West Twenty-sixth street, directly opposite his cut flower headquarters, is open and stocked.

Samuel Woodrow has several large landscape contracts for this spring. The retail store at 37 West Twenty-eighth street is stocked for Easter and the force of salesmen increased.

Guttman & Raynor have added a new auto to their facilities in good time for the Easter trade.

The florists' chauffeurs' ball April 1, at Bryant hall, was largely attended and a great success.

The Bowlers' Scores.

The results of last week's contests of the New York Florists' Bowling Club, March 30, were as follows:

Player	1st	2d	3d
J. Donaldson	162	154	186
C. W. Scott	169	174	180
J. Fenrich	162	149	165

J. Austin Shaw.

Charles A. Dards, who recently laid down the cares of business after many years of activity in the New York retail field, is en route to Japan on a pleasure trip. The business now is under the management of H. Perry, who has been right-hand man for Mr. Dards for some years.

FUNGUS ON SPRENGERI.

We have had considerable trouble from a fungus-like web that attacks our Sprengeri sprays every time we have a good crop. It usually starts in several places and spreads rapidly. We try as much as possible to avoid wetting the sprays. Any suggestion will be appreciated. G. F. C.—Tenn.

If this is a fungoid affection, give the plants a spraying with Fungine, an excellent remedy for all fungoid trouble. Use at the rate of a quart of Fungine to ten gallons of water. I would apply this as soon as any of the fungus is seen. C. W.

FOOD FOR CALLAS.

In feeding callas should fine bone or bone meal be used? H. G.—O.

Fine bone will be the best for using on the surfaces of the pots for your callas. The roots will devour this greedily. Use some bone meal in the compost when potting. C. W.

Richmond, Va.—The home of Charles Thompson, Libby avenue and Cary street, was destroyed by fire March 19, entailing a loss of $8,000. The fire originated in the basement, from a leaky oil stove.

Greenville, S. C.—J. Melvin Clark, managing director of the Graceland Greenhouses, owned by the Greenville Cemetery Association, says that approximately 25,000 lily bulbs will be required by that concern next season.

Houston, Tex.—Valued at $1,800, but not for sale at any price, a pure white cattleya with a yellow center recently was displayed in the Boyle & Pendarvis store. Mr. Boyle is said to have discovered this variety at an altitude of 7,000 feet, in South America. It is to be known as Cattleya Boyleana.

Shreveport, La.—At a recent meeting of the Rotary Club, A. J. Manheim, of the Manheim Floral Co., gave a lengthy talk on the florists' business, varieties of bulbous stock, lilies, roses, etc. The newspapers printed a large part of the speech the next day.

New Orleans, La.—Among the exhibitors who have taken space at the forthcoming spring flower show are Charles Eble, C. W. Eichling, Henry Kraak, Abele Bros., Steckler Seed Co., Max Scheinuk, Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., Claude Ory, A. Verlinde, A. Dameran, H. Doescher, H. Mische, F. Dormay and Frank Reyes. The show will be held at the Athenæum, under the auspices of the New Orleans Horticultural Society. The Louisiana Anti-Tuberculosis League is the beneficiary of the show.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Bertha Riessen Buechel.

Mrs. Bertha R. Buechel, wife of Edward Buechel, of the Riessen Floral Co., St. Louis, Mo., died March 30, at the Lutheran hospital, St. Louis, where she had been confined for the last three weeks. Her death was a shock to many of the local trade, as it was not generally known that she was sick.

Mrs. Buechel was born forty-six years ago in St. Louis. For twenty-five years she was in the employ of the Michel Plant & Bulb Co. and learned the business under the tutorship of John Davidson, who now is with Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Riverton, N. J. A few years later she took a position with the Elleard Floral Co., on Broadway, which now is the location of the Riessen Floral Co., as head of the design department. Some years later she opened her own place a few doors away from the Elleard Floral Co., where she met and married Edward Buechel. She subsequently bought out the Elleard Floral Co. and continued the business with her husband.

Mrs. Buechel was known to all in the St. Louis trade as a woman who knew how to manage a florists' business and her work was always of the highest order. She is survived by her husband, her mother and two brothers. The funeral took place April 2 from her late residence, 3434 South Jefferson avenue, to the St. Marcus cemetery. A wealth of floral emblems filled the home. Members of the St. Louis Florists' Club, of which Mr. Buechel is a member, attended. J. J. B.

E. J. Sheap.

Edward J. Sheap, vice-president of S. M. Isbell & Co., died at his home at Jackson, Mich., March 24 and was buried at Woodland cemetery March 26.

Mr. Sheap was widely known among the seed trade, as for many years he had charge of the wholesale growing end of the Isbell business and was brought into personal contact with the buyers for nearly every prominent house in the county. He had a thorough knowledge of the business, born of many years of study of its problems. His was a quiet, kindly nature that won warm friends and the announcement of his death has brought Isbell & Co. many expressions of regret.

Frank Buffington.

Frank Buffington, of Fall River, Mass., died unexpectedly March 18, in his seventieth year. He was stricken ill, presumably from heart failure, while in his greenhouses, and, though he succeeded in reaching his home, death followed fifteen minutes later. Mr. Buffington's death, following so closely upon the sudden demise of his brother, W. A. Buffington, came as a particularly sad blow to the surviving members of the family.

Mr. Buffington was born in 1846 in the house in which he died. He never married. Born of Quaker parentage, he was reared under the strict precepts of that denomination. In his childhood he acquired an interest in growing flowers and later, when starting his florists' business, he was signally successful. He imported heavily from Europe early in his business career and frequently was asked to act as judge at flower shows. Twenty-five years ago, as a guest of a Mexican railroad company, Mr. Buffington visited Mexico and collected rare specimens of floriculture. His business will be continued. The surviving relatives are a sister, Mary E., and a nephew and niece, William H. Buffington and Mrs. A. E. Ferguson.

Bertha Riessen Buechel.

Frederick G. Laker.

Frederick G. Laker, of Salt Lake City, Utah, and a member of the firm of Laker & Son, died March 21, at the age of 36.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

A feminine visitor to the National Flower Show called the writer's attention to a silver medal she wore. It was awarded to her father by the Royal Horticultural Society of England at the great exhibition held in London in 1851. David Bochet was the name; it may sound familiar to some of our Scotch confreres.

William Tricker, of aquatic fame and of Arlington, N. J., told a story of an enthusiastic visitor who declared that Pharaoh's daughter was gathering the lotus when she discovered Moses among the bulrushes of the Euphrates. By the way, Mr. Tricker has leased the old Jersey City reservoir for the purpose of growing aquatic stock.

Julius Roehrs, of Rutherford, said the most popular orchid would be the odontoglossum if it were not so difficult to grow in America.

Arthur Loveless, of Lenox, Pa., brought specimens of selected Queen Alexandra stocks that fairly made the old-timers gaze with wonder.

William Wunder, of Pittville, Pa., was an exhibitor in the carnation classes and remarked that it was a far different race from when he won the world's championship some years ago as a sprinter.

Dana R. Herron, of Olean, N. Y., reluctantly abandoned the banquet on receipt of news from his home that there was danger of flood.

Herbert Anderson, in charge of the H. A. Dreer exhibit, commented that the most popular rose in the splendid collection seemed to be Pharisaer; that is, if it were possible to make a single selection. It was appropriate that King should erect a greenhouse for the queen of flowers.

John H. Dunlop, of Toronto, accompanied by his son, Frank, left for New York to meet the dukely Connaught family, who are expected to visit the New York flower show. Mr. Dunlop is partial to Manhattan, for it was there, I understand, he first saw the light. He reciprocates by coming to the Quaker City and carrying off several first premiums for some grandly grown Canadian stock.

William E. Cahill, of the Roman J. Irwin staff, New York, has become much interested in "seed tape."

John A. Evans, of ventilating machinery fame and of Richmond, Ind., says his latest achievement is in a sartorial direction.

As an item of interest B. Frank, who runs three flower stands, tells me he pays a rental of $1,000 per annum for a window space 2x6 feet, with a small basement, at the corner of Twelfth and Market street. W. M.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THE indications are there will be none too many vincas this spring. The demand has increased amazingly the last couple of years.

NOW is the time to arrange for the Easter annex, or the downtown store that is to make it possible to double your sales April 21 and 22.

AMONG newer American roses, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Mrs. Russell, Ophelia and Radiance all are winning their way in England, where they are succeeding under glass as well as in the open ground.

THE Rotterdam, the biggest boat running between Rotterdam and New York, has been laid up. If the reduction of shipping space keeps on it will be difficult to move bulb and plant imports this season.

THE American Dahlia Society has issued No. 2 of its series of bulletins, a pamphlet of eight pages edited by Secretary Dick. The society's classification of dahlias and a list of the society's members are included.

C. W. JOHNSON, Morgan Park, Ill., secretary of the American Chrysanthemum Society, last week issued that organization's annual volume, containing the proceedings of the fourteenth annual meeting at Cleveland last autumn, list of varieties disseminated in 1915, tabulated scores, the seedings examined by the judges last season, which were published in The Review at the time; list of members and much other information of special interest to chrysanthemum growers.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

THREE YEARS.

Baer, George, New Hyde Park, N. Y.

TWO YEARS.

Curtis, C. W., Irondequoit, N. Y.
Begnal, H. M., Waterbury, Conn.
Long, Walter P., West Grove, Pa.
Brazee, Chas., Wilmington, Cal.
McDowell, J. A., Mexico City, Mexico.
Western Orchid Co., Alameda, Cal.
Craft, Mrs. Edward, Blue Rapids, Kan.
Burns, J. P., Bellevue, Wash.
Cole Bros., Peoria, Ill.
Thomas, G., New Orleans, La.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

WATCH US GROW.

The Classified ad section of The Review makes a new record again this week. With twenty and one-half pages of the "Little Wonder Workers," as one subscriber called them, the department this week is nearly two-thirds of a page ahead of last week and a page and one-half ahead of last spring's best record.

The department grows because the ads pay the advertisers big returns.

"WHO STILL WANT PLANTS."

Here's how seasonable stock moves when it is advertised in The Review:

The small ad in The Review made my rose plants disappear faster than the fresh baked pototo pancakes did when put on the lunch counter in a Milwaukee saloon, and they certainly went fast enough! Kindly discontinue my ad or I will be broke paying all the postage returning checks to the florists who still want plants.—W. H. Amling, Maywood, Ill., April 3, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

FLOWERS ARE SMILES.

Smile a little, smile a little, as you pass along,
Not alone when life is pleasant, but when things go wrong.
Do not make the way seem harder by a sullen face;
Smile a little, smile a little, brighten up the place.

It is on the card of the Boston business man who wrote to Penn the Florist the letter from which the following is taken:

Flowers have always seemed to me to be smiles in colors, and the following incident seems to support my belief:

I always wear a buttonhole from choice, and use a certain elevated station from necessity. The elderly, sad-faced ticket chopper must have noticed me, for on a recent stormy morning when my coat was buttoned closely around my throat, he abruptly blurted out, "I see you ain't got it today!"

As I turned back, I knew at once what he had missed. Then I unbuttoned my overcoat and showed him the flowers smiling up at him, and remarked, "I got you that time." The smile that spread over his face amply repaid for the brief delay.

The girl at the ticket window told me later that it was the first time she had ever seen the old man smile. Best of all, he keeps it up, for every time I pass the ticket chopper, he smiles—not at me, but at the flower.

Here's an inexpensive way to promote smiles in a world that takes itself much too seriously.

Sincerely,
Harry F. Merritt.

TO TRACE DELINQUENTS.

A bill that, if enacted into law, would be of great aid to merchants in locating delinquent debtors who leave for parts unknown without advising their creditors of prospective destinations, has just been introduced into the House of Representatives by Congressman George R. Smith, of Minneapolis. This bill (H. R. 10399) provides "That postmasters and others in the postal service shall not give to unauthorized persons information concerning mail matter, provided, that this shall not prohibit postmasters from giving information as to the addresses of patrons of their offices to such persons as are known to desire the information for lawful and proper purposes." The bill has been referred to the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads. C. L. L.

NEW YORK'S SPRING SHOW.

The spring show of the New York Florists' Club and the Horticultural Society of New York opened at the Grand Central Palace during the afternoon of April 5 for a week's run. While in an incomplete state at the time of this writing, it is apparent that the show will be an excellent one and a large attendance of the public is anticipated, as the press work has been the best thus far obtained for a show in New York city. The trade visitors will be entertained by the Florists' Club at its annual dinner, with which will be combined a dance, Saturday evening, April 8, at Hotel Biltmore.

The New York exhibition opened promptly on time and is the grandest show ever staged in America. The weather is perfect and there were a thousand waiting at the doors for the opening hour. Every foot of space is occupied. The show includes phenomenal pot grown stock, a fine display by the park department, four grand rose gardens, three rock gardens, five gardeners' groups of 300 square feet each, five great orchid banks, one bulb garden occupying 500 square feet, beautiful exhibits by leading retail florists, numerous trade exhibits and many special features. It is estimated the attendance will be 150,000. C. H. Totty.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Chicago market conditions, while far from satisfactory, are much better than they were a week ago. To say that demand is sluggish would be to convey an erroneous impression. To say that demand is in abeyance would more nearly express the true state of affairs. For while both conditions may bear the same appearance, there is an impalpable something about the latter that makes itself felt. This something is abroad in the market now. The shipping business, however, pursues the even tenor of its way, undisturbed by froward local winds.

Really good Beauties are arriving on the market in such numbers that no difficulty is experienced in filling the largest orders. This has quite naturally had a tendency to lower prices. Other roses are in good supply and they are not clearing at satisfactory prices. Moreover, it cannot be said that this or that variety leads in demand, for it is necessary to push all varieties alike most assiduously. Prices average the lowest of the year to date.

Carnations are in only fair supply, but it is gratifying to note the small proportion of splits. Small as the re-

EASTER is drawing near, and you cannot afford to delay ordering your Supplies. The best thing to do is to jump on the train and spend a day in the market—you are positively sure to pick up something that will more than pay your expenses. But the next best way is to send Randall an open order—to leave the selection to us. Many hundreds of florists always buy their Baskets that way, and we guarantee satisfaction in all other lines as well. Just write us a letter telling what the goods are for and about what price you want to pay—our expert department managers will make selection for you—guaranteed to please.

ceipts are, though, the demand is scarcely strong enough to handle them. The white and red varieties receive the most frequent call. Enchantress still hangs. Calendula, snapdragon and mignonette are moving indifferently well. A few gladioli have made their appearance. Valley is again clearing. There is a large supply of Easter lilies, and though there has been as yet no heavy demand for them, they are giving a reasonably good account of themselves. Of callas there is a large number and they are moving nicely. Single violets are clearing, but doubles are moved with difficulty if at all. Sweet peas still enjoy a fair degree of favor. Daisies, on the other hand, are not clearing as they should. Jonquils, too, though in good supply, are inclined to be slow. There are few good daffodils to be found on the market, but of soft, inferior stock there is more than enough. Freesias are about done for. Tulips, too, are nearly at an end. The scarcity of cattleyas continues, and though the demand is not great it cannot be satisfied with the available supply.

With the exception of smilax, the supply of greens is sufficient to meet the demand, which, regulating itself by the general market, is more satisfactory than it was a week ago.

The Weather in March.

March was not a bad month for the growers. Although there were alternate warm and cold spells, the average temperature for the month was nearly normal. Also, the precipitation was about as usual. The snowfall was five and one-half inches. Sunshine was four per cent less than normal, being only forty-nine per cent of the possible. It was windy, even for March, the total movement being 11,396 miles, which, of course, increased the drain on the coal bins.

Various Notes.

During his period of convalescence Charles Erne, of Erne & Klingel, has visited a considerable number of growers to get a line on Easter prospects. He says an extremely large percentage of the lilies this year will be short in stem, that carnations will not be in the usual supply, that bulbous stock and violets are about gone, but that rose crops will be excellent.

W. E. Tricker will leave April 9 for St. Paul, where he will take charge of the greenhouses of Holm & Olson, in which pot plants exclusively are grown.

Following the National Flower Show at Philadelphia Guy W. French moved over to New York, where another big show opened April 5. The E. C. Amling Co., April 3, packed and dispatched to him a fine lot of Mrs. Russell with which it is hoped, fortunes of now brings in the cut twice daily. The other addition to the fleet is a beautiful big Locomobile touring car for the county chairman's personal use.

The Alpha Floral Co. surrendered its charter at Springfield April 3 and was dissolved, the business of the company having been sold to Johnson & Chronis following the death of George Economopolos. Julius Schnapp is in charge of the store.

Felix Reichling, who handles the orders at Peter Reinberg's, comments on the strength and widespread character of the demand for Beauty bench plants. He says orders have come from seed stores and flower stores all over the country, whence the stock is passed on to the public for garden planting.

N. J. Wietor points with pride to Carnation Rosette and says that, judging it by its performance for Wietor Bros., one scarcely could ask for anything better in its color. The plants, he adds, are green to the ground and give every indication of going right along as long as they are asked to do so.

Word comes from C. L. Washburn, who is in Pasadena, that O. P. Bassett is as spry as ever, in spite of his advanced years (he was 81 March 31), and that E. B. Washburn has his hands full with the palm department. Mr. Washburn expects to return to Chicago the end of this week.

Charles A. Mathes, until recently perennial grower at Western Springs, has taken charge of the greenhouses and grounds of Gustave Pabst, the Milwaukee brewer, at Oconomowoc, Wis.

Killing two birds with one stone, Frank M. Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., visited the National Flower Show last week and also New York city and eastern manufacturing centers, whence come florists' supplies. He returned April 3, to be in the store during the spring opening now in progress.

You would not think it, but W. N. Rudd celebrated his fifty-sixth birthday while at the National Flower Show. He was born March 30, 1860.

March was the thirteenth month since A. T. Pyfer & Co. took over the wholesale house of the Chicago Carnation Co. Mr. Pyfer says that, far from being unlucky, the thirteenth month

PLAIN FACTS

Would it sound strange to you if we made the statement that we would rather accept fewer additional orders to our already greatly increased shipping business?

Let us explain—it is not that we will have insufficient stock to take care of the big Easter rush nor that we believe in sitting still and waiting for business to be brought to us, but we do believe, if necessary, in accepting fewer additional orders and taking care of those we do accept in the right way. That is, in the way which will mean a satisfied customer, and a friend, who will be coming back for more stock.

We are not spending our good money on this ad in an endeavor to secure all the orders that will be placed this Easter, but to let you know that we are going to be in position to take care of more business than ever before. Of course, we want to take on new accounts, but we want a chance to satisfy them, so that we can make a friend, as well as customer. Therefore, we do not think we are asking too much when we request you to get that Easter order in early, and let us show you just what KENNICOTT SERVICE plus KENNICOTT QUALITY CUTS really means. Then you'll know the reason why our business has been making such a consistent growth month by month, year by year.

You ought to know by this time, from past experience, that talk is cheap—we do not believe in making a big noise and then falling down. What we want is repeat orders. We are telling you facts, we will try our best to help you out in a pinch; but the orders booked ahead naturally must be taken care of first.

Please do not misunderstand these statements, for we do not want you to think that we have not the source of supply that a large house must have to take care of one of these big rushes, but past experience has proven to us that an order given to us a little ahead of time is more apt to give us a new, regular account than one sent in the last minute.

Send that order in as soon as possible and we will show you what KENNICOTT SERVICE and KENNICOTT QUALITY CUTS are. We have the stock; in fact, will have much greater supply than ever before, as we now have many big ranges of glass backing us that we did not have last Easter and our business at that time was the largest we ever handled for a like period.

showed a highly gratifying increase over March of last year. It was their first chance to compare records.

While attending the National Flower Show last week, Ed Enders, veteran of the C. A. Samuelson staff, took a look at the leading stores in Philadelphia and New York, obtaining several ideas that shortly will be worked out in the Michigan avenue window.

The spring season calls for an annex to Winterson's Seed Store and this year a vacant double store was found at 55 and 57 East Lake street, where import stock is being unpacked. Mr. Degnan is specially pleased with the quality of the boxwoods.

An attack of neuralgia has been taking the joy out of life for C. W. McKellar. It has been a week of pain.

After a successful trip in the west, A. F. Longren, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., arrived in the city March 31. He left April 4 for the east.

The Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting tonight, April 6, at the Morrison hotel. The silver punch bowl will go to the lucky member this night.

A belief is entertained by Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, that there will be a scarcity of carnations for the Easter and Mothers' day trade. His belief is founded on the fact that whereas there is usually a glut of carnations at this season of the year, they are now on the short side of the market.

A large increase in the volume of business has forced the Johnson Basket Co. to seek larger quarters. A fine location has been found at 323 and 325 West Randolph street, where business will be transacted from this time on.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business remains good, with a fine stock of flowers on hand. This market is well supplied with roses of every description. Shawyer, Hoosier Beauty, Ward, Ophelia and White Killarney roses are of exceptionally fine quality. Carnations are in good supply and of good quality. Some of the finest sweet peas ever seen here now are available at the commission houses. Valley, forget-me-nots, daisies and snapdragons are in good supply. Tulips and narcissi, in fact, all bulbous flowers, are quite plentiful, possibly excepting hyacinths.

Various Notes.

The Flower Growers' Corporation has opened a more spacious store at 35 John R. street. The salesroom now is on the ground floor. This concern is the headquarters in Detroit for Shawyer roses and cattleyas.

Charles Plumb has a fine stock of plants for Easter, particularly roses and spiræas, and his lilies are in fine shape. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Plumb have been in the east for two weeks.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

"I can buy" has replaced "We are getting," by which it may be understood that the buyers are doing the talking now. Of course, the buyers generally do the talking, that is their right, only they are exercising it more freely as the quantity of flowers increases. The sellers do not talk much now; they just hustle to market their stock as fast as it comes into bloom. Their ability to do this depends first on themselves and second on the stock. Really choice carnations have held up rather well. Sweet peas have not; neither have roses. The quantity of these two kinds of flowers, particularly the peas, has increased. A great many are marketed at excellent prices, but a good many more realize little. There sometimes are flowers that reach the market in poor condition; sometimes they come at a poor time. In either case, they disappoint grower and wholesaler. Of the other flowers it may be said that the heavy supply of sweet peas and, to a lesser extent, of roses, has affected their price. There are, of course, exceptions. Valley is quite scarce. Easter and calla lilies command fair support. Cattleyas are to a certain extent in a class by themselves, but the general run of other flowers is rather depressed. Opinions differ as to the why and wherefore. Some say that the National Flower Show has a bad effect on business for the moment, but that it will stimulate the demand later. Others assert that business is suffering a temporary lull before the pre-Easter revival, which is sure to come. The demand for Asparagus plumosus is excellent.

The National Flower Show.

The local press to a great extent voices public sentiment; it is warm in its praise of the National Flower Show. It has touched the hearts of the people as nothing of the kind has ever done before, and deservedly so. Censure in no mild form is meted out to the management for admitting people to the show free on Sunday, April 2, after selling a large number of half-price tickets for that of the closing day. This certainly was an error. Sunday should have been a half-priced or a free day, but not both at the same time. In the great English shows there are certain hours when a high price, say 10 shillings, is charged and obtained. There are certain other hours during the same day when a low price, say 2 shillings, is charged and obtained. These hours are clearly advertised beforehand. The former are favored by the aristocracy; the latter by the democracy. They do not conflict. It is unfortunate that in our great show just closed, the greatest in the history of this country, an error of this kind should have been made. It lays us open to the charge of trickery, which would be unjust, but we cannot say that it is unfounded.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The April meeting of the Florists' Club was held in Horticultural hall, Tuesday evening, April 4. The American and the New York Florists' Club flags graced a large and enthusiastic meeting. There was much rejoicing over the successful outcome of the show and show matters were discussed.

Three experts led the discussion on new roses: Stephen Mortensen, of Southampton, Pa., who read a most interesting paper that gave much valuable information; Martin Samtman, of Chestnut Hill, who gave an extemporaneous talk full of wit and wisdom and talent and fun that pleased his audience; Edward Towill, of Roslyn, who spoke briefly of his favorites.

There were surprisingly fine rose exhibits by Myers & Samtman, C. H. Totty, R. Scott & Son, W. A. Leonard, August Doemling, Edward Towill and Stephen Mortensen.

Easter Plants.

Encouraged by its success at the National Flower Show, the Robert Craig Co. is devoting all its energies to finishing off a splendid lot of Easter plants. There are 15,000 lilies in one house at Norwood, that are likely to deserve the kind words of Robert A. Craig. The roses, Tausendschon, Lady Gay, Hiawatha, excelsa and Dorothy Perkins, promise well. With them are a great collection of the baby types, which have nearly grown themselves into one class higher, and of good hybrids. The hydrangeas are a striking feature, both French and Otaksa. Spiræas, so scarce in many places, are plentiful here, while azaleas have made their reappearance after a season's absence. Highly colored crotons and dracænas and well grown ferns, while not strictly Easter plants, are given important places in the Easter offerings.

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT

for the best and most practical display of Cut Flower and Plant Baskets shown at the National Flower Show.

We received the only award given in our line at the Show, which should convince all concerned of the superiority of our line over all others, as all the leading houses of the country displayed at this show.

Further comment is unnecessary. If you have not had the good fortune of seeing this line, let us send you a small assortment. State if Combination Plant Baskets, Pot Baskets or Tumbler Baskets are wanted. Each Basket is numbered, which will enable you to re-order by number.

goods likely to come until the war is over. Some of these goods were shipped as long ago as 1914. They include mats, moss wreaths, baskets, etc.

H. Bayersdorfer has been showing his friends medals received in Cincinnati in 1873, Philadelphia in 1876, at the Centennial Exposition and at the first S. A. F. meeting, in 1886. His concern's basket folder has just been issued.

Fred A Steinhoff has canceled his lease for a store in this city, which was to have been opened April 1.

Alvah R. Jones has returned to his desk after a week's illness.

It is understood that Robert Kift is planning a little surprise for his friends.

E. P. Nieman has returned to Denver. While here he visited his friends and former employer, Robert Crawford, Jr.

"Heaven can't be any nicer than this," was the graphic way a workman in the Rice Co. factory described the National Flower Show.

George Burton has been drawn for federal jury duty, beginning April 10.

FLORISTS' REVIEW
When Writing Advertisers

No. 4708

WE HAVE been building florists' refrigerators for 15 years, and it has been our aim to build only the best in every way. Within that time our business has grown rapidly, until today, what was at the start a very small shop is a large and completely equipped and perfectly organized factory. Our success in the making and marketing of Florists' Special Refrigerators has been very gratifying, and we attribute this success to a thorough and practical understanding of the requirements of florists, as well as to a fixed determination to excel in this particular line of manufacturing.

We exercise the greatest care in the selection of all materials entering into our goods, and each and every part is thoroughly inspected by our experts. In this way we are able to make refrigerators which not only appeal to the eye for their beauty of design and finish, but which excel in every other way.

To establish the reputation we enjoy has required careful study of the florists' special needs and constant guarding against imperfect workmanship and the use of inferior materials; to maintain this reputation shall ever be our constant aim, and we promise to all the utmost satisfaction.

week was good, despite Lent. There were a number of large decorations and funeral work has been heavy. Roses, carnations and daffodils have been in good demand. Valley continues poor and the sale is draggy at $5 per hundred. Lilacs have been selling well. Gardenias are more plentiful than they have been, but continue to bring $3 per dozen. All of the orchids still are from the north and are not so plentiful as formerly. Easter lilies continue to bring $10 and $12 per hundred. There is enough locally grown stock to supply the demand. Southern jonquils are flooding the market. These are of fine quality, but there are too many to find a ready sale. Sweet peas of fine quality have been coming in by the wagon-load. The price has declined, but the growers are moving large quantities. The street men are purchasing Spencer peas by the thousands, offering them in competition with the storekeepers at almost unbelievable prices.

There has been a bad break in the carnation quotations. A few specials bring $4 per hundred, but aside from these the prices scale down to what the buyer chooses to offer. The quality is good. There continues to be a shortage of Beauties and they are holding up in price, with the demand good. Snapdragon is extra fine and is selling readily at $6 to $10 per hundred.

Various Notes.

Postmaster William F. Kasting, of Buffalo, N. Y., spent several days in Washington last week, coming here at the conclusion of the Philadelphia flower show. Although here on official business of the Post Office Department, Mr. Kasting had time to visit a number of the stores and make the rounds of the greenhouses.

John McCabe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. McCabe, of Good Hope road, Anacostia, D. C., has been exonerated from blame for the death of Mrs. Margaret Everly, whom he ran down while driving an antomobile delivery wagon. The accident occurred on Pennsylvania avenue, near Seventh street, southeast, as young McCabe was driving his parents home from their stand in the market. He was driving well within the Senator Sheppard has introduced a bill in Congress looking to the appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose of enabling the Department of Agriculture to study and control the diseases of cotton, potatoes, truck and forage crops and drug and related plants.

More than a score of visitors called at the store of the Gude Bros. Co. last week. They came from all sections of the country. Included among them were E. W. Ehmann, of Oroville, Cal.; Elizabeth Hayden, Kansas City, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati; Walter Gott, St. Albans, England; James Forbes, Portland, Ore.; C. C. Stulb, of Stulb's Nursery, Augusta, Ga.; Harry R. Brown, of Lynchburg, Va. A miniature bowling alley in the display window of the Gude Bros. Co. is attracting considerable attention. The display marks the holding here of the annual bowling tournament of the Atlantic Coast Bowling Association, of which William F. Gude is president. The whole is surrounded by Rambler roses and other flowers.

The window display contest to be held here under the auspices of the Washington Chamber of Commerce has been postponed until April 13. The Gude Bros. Co. and Z. D. Blackistone are among the florists who have signified their intentions of participating in the contest. C. L. L.

The Market.

Business is in a healthy condition, though it is somewhat quiet just now, due to Lent and the stormy weather. Within the last ten days large numbers of potted rose bushes in full bloom have appeared in the market and have proved quite popular. Cut roses were more plentiful, American Beauties being abundant. Ophelia, Ward, Sunburst and other popular varieties, some of which have been scarce of late, now are arriving in quantities sufficient for requirements. The prices consequently are somewhat lower, although they keep up fairly well. Carnations are plentiful and fine quality flowers are selling at reasonable prices. Sweet peas are abundant and cheap. The quality is all that can be desired. The Spencers seem to be the most popular, few of the older varieties coming into the market. The supply of valley is increasing and the price is receding slightly. There is a flood of bulbous stock, but the quality is fine. Marguerites are good and play a part in the window displays. Easter lilies are fine and more plentiful than they have been. Pansies and other spring flowers, as well as pussy willows, are seen in the flower shops in much larger quantities.

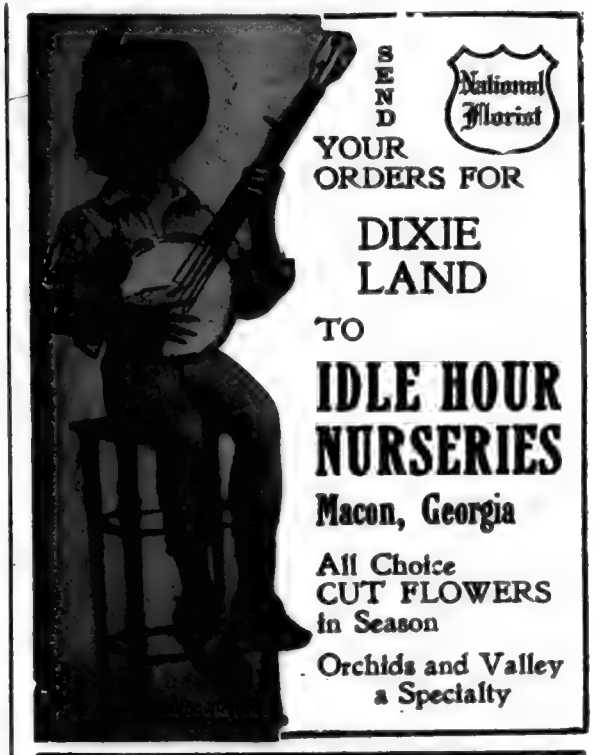
planting, on account of the lateness of the season. Usually his customers begin to purchase two or three weeks earlier than the present time.



Philips Bros. report that business is quieter than it has been, though fair considering that it is Lent. They enjoy a lively sale of potted plants.

M. Gahr reports that business thus far this year has been far greater in volume than that of the first three months of last year, which augurs well for good business during the rest of the year.

Henry A. Strobell reports that business is good, though a trifle dull during the last few weeks.

The J. J. Wilson Seed Co. reports a large demand for gladiolus bulbs. While spring is opening up somewhat late, the spring business is satisfactory so far.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Fair business was reported for last week, funeral work keeping things moving at a brisk rate. The supply of stock is short and prices are above the normal. Retailers and growers are particularly interested in the rapidly approaching Easter. Although the day is somewhat later than usual, the season is about four weeks behind. Violets will be especially shy; lilies will be plentiful and of good quality and roses and carnations will be in good supply. Bulbous stock will be plenteous and moderately priced.

Various Notes.

James Hockey was confined to his home last week with an attack of the grip.

John T. Burke and Robert E. Burns, of Burns & Burke, are two of the purchasers of the Hillsgrove Trotting park.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was represented at the National Flower Show at Philadelphia last week by Robert Johnson, Lawrence Hay, Joseph Koppelman, Albert Holscher and Eugene McCarron.

Everett C. Potter, of Auburn, has been elected president of the Providence Market Gardeners' Association. The other officers are: Henry E. West, O. R. Peck, George K. Tinkham. The executive committee consists of Eugene W. Peck, Gardner Kelley, Joshua Vose, George A. Fenner and Cosmo Dacchiolia.

J. H. Cushing, of Quidnick, has sold the Quidnick Greenhouses to Shuman, Earle & Lamont, the sale including the land and buildings as well as the business. Mr. Lamont has been associated with Mr. Cushing for several years, the latter retiring because of ill health.

Peter S. Byrnes, of Wickford, was in Philadelphia last week attending the National Flower Show. W. H. M.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The cut flower situation was satisfactory to the retailers last week, but not so to the wholesalers or growers. Stock was plentiful. The great abundance of all grades of stock arriving daily forced prices down in order that the stock could be disposed of. The low prices applied only to thousand lots. Business last week was not brisk for the retailer on account of the rainy, cold and damp weather.

In looking over the various markets daily, I found excellent roses in all varieties at all times. Killarney, as usual, was the bulk of the supply. Not many good Beauties are seen of late, and fancy Russells and Hadleys seem to have taken their place. Carnations are fine, but the supply far exceeds the demand. In these, Enchantress has the call. Sweet peas are magnificent, but the big supply of these has forced the price too low for the quality of the stock. Other stock, such as tulips, lilacs, snapdragons, valley, lilies, Dutch hyacinths and orchids, holds its own in price. All greens sell well, owing to the shortage of smilax.

Various Notes.

All florists belonging to the union met March 30, at the public library. The bosses of the various retail establishments were invited to attend. A heated discussion took place regarding the number of working hours and extra pay for overtime. Nine working hours per day and extra pay for overtime for all members of the union was decided on. The meeting was well attended and all were pleased with the outcome.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its regular meeting April 13. This meeting will be especially interesting, for those who attended the National Flower Show in Philadelphia will tell of their trip. All chairmen of committees for our spring flower show will be on hand to hear about the recent great show.

April 12 Mrs. J. J. Beneke will entertain the Lady Florists' Home Circle at her home, 3648 Humphrey street.

At the wholesale establishment of H. G. Berning, Otto Bruenig is superintending the making of florists' wooden easels, for which this concern finds a good local and shipping demand. The cut flower department was loaded to the top all the week.

The committee appointed at the last meeting of the Florists' Club to devise plans to organize a state florists' association, met March 31 at the home of W. S. Wells, who is chairman, to prepare a report. It was decided to send Mr. Wells to Kansas City to lay the matter before the club there.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Weber, Sr., will leave this week for a ten days' stay at French Lick Springs, where Mr. Weber will take a much needed rest before the Easter rush begins.

The monthly conference of the officers of the Florists' Club will be held at the home of W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, April 6.

Among those of the local florists who attended the Philadelphia National Flower Show and have returned home are Jules Bourdet, president of the Florists' Club, and F. C. Weber, Jr., secretary of the Retail Florists' Association. They report a great show, having learned of and seen many new things.

Oscar Ruff, head of the C. Bergstermann floral establishment, on South Grand avenue, says trade has been quite good for Lent. Blooming plants meet with a good demand daily.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. received large consignments of fine quality stock last week. All seasonable stock arrived in large quantities. Fancy Darwin tulips had a big demand.

The Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., at Delmar and Taylor avenues, and John Boerm, near neighbors, report that business in cut flowers and decorations has fallen off since Lent began, but that blooming plants are selling well.

Paddy Patton is batting 300 in the comedy league. He always has something new to spring on the unsuspecting customer, who always enjoys the pranks played by Paddy.

The greenhouse range of Werner Bros., Clayton, Mo., is producing some extra fancy cut stock. The rose crop is large and fine. The carnations, tulips and valley are among the best. A house of lilies is in splendid time for Easter. Thomas Peterson and Paul Roper keep this place in fine shape.

The Shackelford Nursery Co. will be in fine shape for Easter. Horace Lloyd, head of this company, says that there will be a large quantity of cut outdoor bulbous stock from now until after Easter.

Mrs. Diemer, head of the Diemer Floral Co., on South Broadway, says she has had an extraordinarily good business in large funeral designs.

Grimm & Gorly featured dollar boxes of cut flowers, some boxes containing twenty-five roses. Advertisements in the daily papers brought considerable business for them. Marion Uhlschmidt, manager of the east side store, is buying quite heavily in this market and says that plenty of good stock on hand makes business better.

The John Steidle greenhouses, at Olivette, Mo., are producing a fancy cut of roses and carnations, which are consigned to H. G. Berning.

Mrs. Bertha Buechel, wife of Edward Buechel, of the Riessen Floral Co., died last week. A full report is given in this week's obituary column.

J. J. B.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Owing to the warmer weather with which we have been favored, flowers have come along with a grand rush and prices, as a result, have broken badly nearly all along the line. The spring-like weather has given opportunities which have been lacking for a long time for the handling of cut flowers along the streets and temporary stores have sprung up in many places. This all helps to relieve the congestion, and if street fakers were only allowed to ply their vocation there would not be much of a surplus. American Beauties have taken a decided drop. Few buyers are now willing to pay over $25 per hundred for long-stemmed stock. Hybrid teas of all kinds are in oversupply. Prices, however, have not changed much from a week ago. Ophelia, Killarney Brilliant, Hadley, Stanley, Russell and Sunburst are leaders. Carnations are druggy and prices are low. The quality is the best of the year.

Sweet peas are arriving in tremendous numbers and prices have taken a considerable tumble. The winter Spencers are now of superb quality.

There still are some single violets, but they are nearly over. Prices on these are about the same. Bulbous stock is in heavy supply. Some Spanish iris, anemones and ranunculi are now included. Low prices have been the rule for both lilies and callas, as low as $4 being accepted. Except for pink flowers, the demand for snapdragons is not at all good. For lily of the valley prices hold up well. Yellow marguerites have taken a big drop. Formet-me-not is hard to sell; so are calendulas and mignonette. Gardenias are now quite abundant. Of Cattleya Schroederæ there is an ample supply, but there are fewer other orchids now coming in. Asparagus still sells well.

Various Notes.

The attendance at the Philadelphia show from here was large, equaling that at New York in 1913. All were well pleased with the show and enjoyed the trip immensely. A large proportion of the cut flower prizes came this way, particularly in the sweet pea and carnation classes.

Alfred N. Eaton, of South Sudbury, has a grand lot of carnations this season. Especially fine are White Wonder, Matchless, Pink Delight and Mrs. Ward.

William Hannan & Son, of Dorchester, are the largest local growers of Easter lilies. This season they have nearly 50,000 plants and about all will hit it right for Easter.

For the Gardeners' and Florists' Club field day with the W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass., April 8, members and friends are asked to take subway trains at 1:15 p. m. at either the Washington or the Park street under station, going via Cambridge tunnel to Harvard square and transferring there to the Waverley cars. tions should plan to reach Waverley as near 2 o'clock as possible.

John McFarland has nearly 10,000 lilies in prime shape for Easter. All are giganteums. He will force spiræas, stocks and other Memorial day flowers, later following with chrysanthemums.

Robert T. McGorum, of Natick, has a fine lot of snapdragons and yellow marguerites, in addition to roses, in which he specializes. Of these Ophelia, Hadley, Killarney and White Killarney are now the leading producers.

W. S. Phelps, of Lexington, is cutting a fine crop of the beautiful Delphinium Belladonna. Delphinium Chinensis he will be able to cut during the present week. He cut his first Spanish iris some days ago. Of these he has 20,000 planted in solid beds. Of the earliest batches grown in flats not over fifty per cent of the bulbs will flower, but every bulb will flower when planted in solid beds.

Heavy cuts of lilies are coming in from the Mishawum Flower Co., of Woburn; E. D. Kaulbach & Son, of Malden, and R. P. Peterson, of Saxonville.

In one of Penn's windows April 1 a large group of Lilium myriophyllum made a beautiful show. Rambler roses in variety and baskets of roses filled another window.

N. F. Comley, of Lexington, states that single violets with him will last until the middle of April. He has three large houses of sweet peas coming along for Memorial day. Of carnations he has a heavy cut. Quite a number of his houses are devoted to lettuce and cucumbers.

Neil S. Boyle, of Malden, had numerous visitors at his greenhouses April 2 to inspect his giganteum lilies. Of these he has 10,500 in prime condition for Easter. In his rose houses Ophelia looked particularly well; also Double White Killarney, Sunburst and Hadley. Mr. Boyle plans to pull down one or two old houses this season and replace with a large modern house.

William Sim made a notable showing at the Philadelphia National Show, winning twenty-one firsts and one second for sweet peas, in strong competition, capturing among other prizes one of $100, a gold medal and a silver cup. His pansy display and polyanthus in pots all attracted much attention.

The attendance at the New York show this week from here is comparatively light. The Philadelphia show gave local men about all the spring exhibition they need and the passing of the snow brings a tremendous accumulation of spring work.

March, 1916, set several records. One was in the snowfall, which amounted in the aggregate to thirty-three inches in fourteen days. A year ago the same month was absolutely dry, not a trace of snow or rain falling. Total precipitation was 3.21 inches. The mean temperature was 31 degrees, or 4 degrees below the normal. So far we have had seventy-six inches of snow this winter, but in western Massachusetts, in the Berkshire hills, as much as 134 inches has fallen. Spring planting and digging of nursery stock will start in earnest this week.

From the Montgomery Co., Hadley, Mass., the Boston Rose Co. is receiving large shipments of Hadley, Ophelia, Russell and Sunburst roses of grand quality. Hadley was the star among the roses at the late Philadelphia show. The Montgomery Co. will build a rose house 40x500 feet this season.

At the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, April 18, F. A. Smith, principal of the Essex Agricultural School, Danvers, Mass., will lecture on "Orcharding."

B. A. Snyder & Co., of Boston, have bought an interest in the Gaedeke & Co. greenhouses, Nashua, N. H. W. N. C.

McNaughton, Wis.—Greenhouses are being erected near here by A. J. White, of 1629 Hyde Park boulevard, Chicago.

Pen Argyl, Pa.—Walter Garland has placed an order with the King Construction Co., of North Tonawanda, N. Y., for a 50-foot extension to one of his greenhouses.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20 to 22, 1916.

THE death of E. J. Sheap, of S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich., is recorded in the obituary column this week.

IF the outdoor tulips bloom in only the same percentage the forced stock has, a lot of seedsmen and florists will find themselves in an embarrassing position.

THE Holland growers have not done well with spiræa in either of the last two years. Exporters have had poor trade, have paid low prices and quantities of stock remain unsold.

THE withdrawal of the Rotterdam, the largest boat plying between a neutral European country and New York, is reported on another page of this issue. It has been carrying great quantities of plants and seeds.

WHOLESALE seedsmen in Australia report an unusual demand for seeds for export, but are unable to accept any large percentage of the business because of crop failures. Also, shipping space is almost unobtainable.

THE prospect of obtaining German seeds this season becomes steadily poorer. In addition to what Britain does to stop the traffic, the German government has prohibited the exportation of about everything affecting the food supply of the German people.

THE mail-order seed houses have about given up hope of a record season. March in some instances has turned out twenty to thirty per cent behind last year and the volume of orders receded slightly in the last ten days of the month, with continued recession as is usual in April, rather than the recovery that was hoped for.

THE Western Canners' Association, at its recent meeting at Chicago, took action to establish a publicity bureau in charge of Secretary George W. Drake to counteract what the canners consider highly undesirable publicity. It will be recalled that it was Secretary Drake who telegraphed D. M. Ferry & Co., protesting at its recent advertising reflecting on canned vegetables.

AN indication of how the country feels on the subject of preparedness is seen in the reply of an Ohio farmer to a communication from his representative in Congress, asking whether he wanted any of the government's free vegetable and flower seeds. The farmer sent a postal card on which was written in large, bold letters: "Cut out this graft; we want battleships, not seeds."

WALDO ROHNERT, the Gilroy seed grower, was a visitor in San Francisco last week. Mr. Rohnert reports conditions good as to the seed crops around Gilroy and says the growers all report a fine contract business, as the whole world seems to be looking to California for seeds this year. Inquiries are coming from localities that have never purchased much from California before. The heavy rains, he says, did some damage in low places, but there is still time to resow some of these spots.

that shipments of seeds, fertilizers and fertilizing materials, also agricultural implements destined to local points in New England, and not for export, shall be accepted and forwarded promptly. All existing embargoes are modified to this extent.

OBJECTIONABLE SEED LAWS.

New seed laws have been passed in Kentucky and New Jersey within the last few days.

The New Jersey seed law is quite unsatisfactory to the seed trade. It requires labeling agricultural seeds, mixtures of such seeds, and vegetable seeds. The label on the first two classes of seeds mentioned, briefly stated, calls for the name of the seed and, if a special variety or strain of such seed is used, it must be the true name; percentage by weight of purity or freedom of such seeds from foreign matter, or from other seeds distinguishable by their appearance; percentage of germination; the number per pound of the seeds of noxious weeds, if present, in excess of one seed in each five grams of the agricultural seed; the name of the seller.

The vegetable seeds must have a label stating the name thereof and the percentage of inert matter if in excess of five per cent of the total weight of such seeds, and the name of the seller.

The administration of this law is turned over to the board of managers of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station and its appointee, the seed analyst, who are not public officials and are not responsible to state control.

The seedsmen have felt aggrieved, also, by the unhappy methods of the proponents of the bill in driving it through the New Jersey legislature.

The Kentucky bill is rather a close copy of the views of the Association of Official Seed Analysts in respect to uniform state seed bills. The bill affects agricultural seeds and requires a label stating the name of the seeds, name and address of the seller, the approximate percentage by weight of purity, meaning freedom from foreign matter or from other seeds; the approximate percentage by weight of the different species of foreign seeds when sold as mixtures and so labeled. The bill affects agricultural seeds requiring a statement of the approximate percentage of germination as shown by laboratory tests. No agricultural seeds containing more than one of the certain named noxious weed seeds to 2,000 agricultural seeds shall be sold.

Garden and flower seeds in sealed packets must be labeled with the approximate percentage of germination and with the year in which the packet was filled. Curtis Nye Smith.

SEED CORN TESTS.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture is issuing repeated warnings to farmers to test all seed corn. It is declared that the seed corn situation is probably more serious now than it has been for years. On account of the late, cold season and the heavy frosts in the early part of last October little corn, especially in the northern half of the corn belt, ripened naturally and at the time of the first hard frosts much of it still contained a large amount of moisture.

"Testing seed corn is always a wise precaution," said Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Vrooman, "but this year

A REMINDER!

¶It is time to sow seed of Snapdragons for summer flowering. Plants will now grow more rapidly, keep ahead of disease and soon make choice stock for benching or bedding. It doesn't pay to use stunted or hard-stemmed plants. Our several varieties are the best that grow. Choice seed of our original Silver Pink at $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Garnet, White, Yellow, Buxton and fancy mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00.

¶Splendid plants of all of the above varieties, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000. Free cultural directions. All orders cash or C. O. D.

¶We grow Snapdragons, but other good things that we have are Dirt Bands and Pots. See our ad of Bands on page 106.

it is a necessary one. A number of seedsmen who have well constructed seed houses report that they find the early picked seed tests satisfactory, but the seed picked later, even if properly dried, is unsatisfactory. One test in northeastern Nebraska showed ninety per cent of the early field-picked seed to be good, while only sixty-eight per cent of the crib-selected seed germinated. In many sections of northern Iowa and Illinois the percentage of good seed is much lower, even when the seed was picked before frost and properly dried, while seed picked from the wagon at husking time, or from the crib, is practically worthless as seed. One reason for this is that many farmers in this section are raising corn of a large variety which requires a full growing season, and this corn did not ripen before the early frosts.

"Under these circumstances testing each ear is simply good insurance. One ear of corn will produce about five bushels if all the grains grow. With corn at 60 cents a bushel, planting a dead ear or an ear that will produce only weak, unproductive stalks, means a loss of $3. If you catch only one bad ear your testing has paid you a good day's wage. If you catch the average number you've saved a week's pay in an afternoon."

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Kallen & Lunnemann, Boskoop, Holland.—A carefully compiled catalogue of peonies and phloxes; it is excellently printed on a good quality of paper and contains several full-page illustrations. The peonies, which are said to be classified according to the rules adopted by the American Peony Society, occupy thirty-five of the total thirty-nine pages.

David Herbert & Son, Atco, N. J.—Tenth annual catalogue of dahlias, cannas, chrysanthemums, peonies, phloxes, bulbs and bulbous roots, flower seeds and raspberry plants; a well illustrated book of twenty-four pages and cover. Contains a good representation of both new and old varieties of dahlias, the firm's specialty.

Fraser Nursery Co., Inc., Huntsville, Ala.—Surplus list, and list of boxed lots in cold storage, for nurserymen and dealers only. This catalogue, says the company, "shows revised counts of our entire surplus at Huntsville, also preliminary list of stock in cold storage at St. Louis, Rochester and Philadelphia."

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.—"Bulletin of Unsold Stock, for the Trade Only," offering roses, perennials and general nursery stock, including seedlings and other small stock for nursery planting; also pot-grown French hydrangeas.

Wilhelm Pfitzer, Stuttgart, Germany.—Wholesale catalogue of vegetable, grass and flower seeds; an accurate, well arranged, illustrated book of ninety-six pages, printed in the German language.

Q. Van den Berg & Sons, Heemstede, Holland.—An excellent wholesale catalogue of bulbs, finely illustrated with full-page plates, most of which are colored. The book is comprehensive, accurate and well printed; it contains eighty pages, besides the colored and halftone inserts.

Van Gelderen & Co., Boskoop, Holland.—Wholesale catalogue of rhododendrons, azaleas, roses, bay trees and other decoratives, herbaceous plants and general nursery stock; is well printed on good paper and contains fifty-four pages, besides the illustrations, which are in the form of four full-page inserts. Among the items of special interest to florists are the pot-grown shrubs for forcing

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The supply of all kinds of seasonable stock is large and is easily able to take care of all present demands. Roses of all kinds, including American Beauties, are plentiful and generally are of a high quality. Carnations, too, are more than abundant and of good quality. The cut of Easter lilies is heavier than it was. These meet with a good demand. Sweet peas are in heavy supply; that is, larger than for actual needs. Lily of the valley, orchids and violets have a poor market. Some fine jonquils, daffodils and tulips may be had. Other offerings include callas, snapdragons, mignonette and Dutch hyacinths. Greens, with the exception of smilax, are plentiful.

Various Notes.

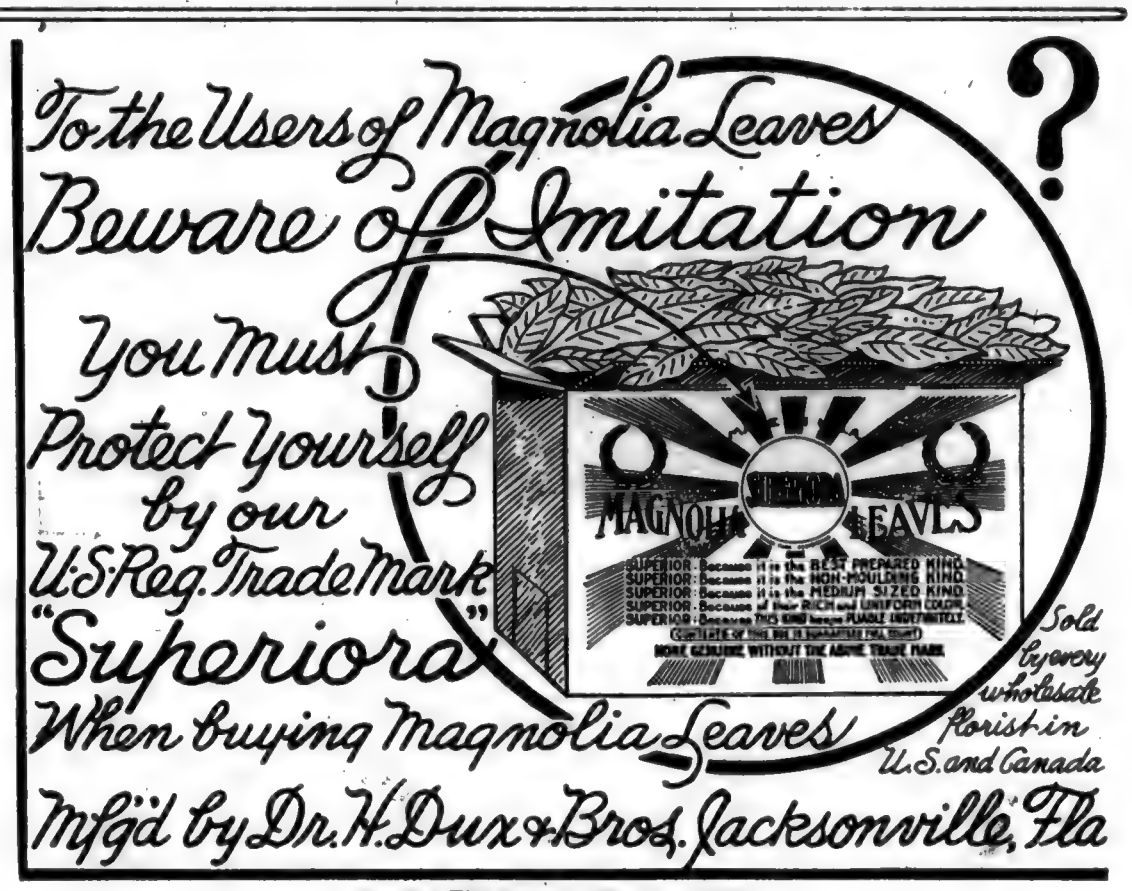
The regular meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held Monday, April 10.

C. E. Critchell has been having an excellent lot of plumosus and Sprengeri from the south.

Thomas Windram, of Cold Springs, Ky., is sending in a heavy cut of carnations.

George Klotter has been cutting some excellent mignonette.

Fred Gear is displaying in his windows an excellent assortment of seasonable blooming plants.



Hardesty & Co. had a large quantity of funeral work for the Davis funeral.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

San Luis Obispo, Cal.—William Zoeker has started a florists' business here and is busily stocking up his place.

Berkeley, Cal.—W. H. Wolters, of the Ashby Nursery, who has grown a general line of nursery stock, plans to erect a greenhouse this summer and grow pot plants, especially ferns and cyclamens.

Glendale, Cal.—Miss Margaret Ellen Boal has about 7,500 plants of Ulrich Brunner roses and plans to specialize in this one variety as an outdoor rose for cut flowers. It is her ambition to have her place known as the Million Rose Farm.

Pocatello, Idaho—W. A. Staley, for many years a member of the S. A. F. and in business here during the last seven years, died February 27, at the age of 53. He was born in Pennsylvania and conducted a business at Meadville, Pa., before moving to Pocatello, where he established the Pocatello Floral Conservatory. Mrs. Staley, who survives him, has sold the business to J. E. Tarr, who will continue it under the same name, with C. Westergaard as manager.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

A scarcity of outdoor flowers, especially carnations, developed in the latter part of last week, owing to the effect of a hailstorm. Hail is not common here and the size of the hailstones was above anything seen in southern California for a great many years. Early in the present week an unusual amount of funeral work developed, owing to the death of several prominent citizens. Taken altogether, the week must be classed as good, though not much above the average for this time of year.

Roses are still coming in nice shape in all the hybrid tea varieties. Beauties are not quite as good as they were. Spanish irises and fine tulips are among the best new offerings in the bulbous line, while a number of Easter lilies are in. Much of the Easter stock will be over this year before the day arrives, especially if the weather should turn hot, as it is liable to do at any time. Orchids are somewhat on the scarce side; so are valley and other flowers suitable for corsage bouquets. Sweet peas are beginning to come in more plentifully. Good plants are scarce, though some early spiræas are helping out a little.

Various Notes.

A visit to the establishment of H. W. Turner showed everything in the best possible shape and stock plentiful, though selling as fast as produced. The newer types of baby roses are especially interesting, as almost every day brings out some new phase of their beauty. Replanting has begun earlier than usual this season, in order to get some of the newer kinds well established early in the season. Mr. Turner has practically rebuilt his dwelling house; the improvements include new hardwood floors, a new bathroom with all modern electrical fittings, an electric cooking stove and all new decorations throughout.

At the store of the L. A. Floral Co. business is reported brisk. Fred Sperry has been a little under the weather with stomach trouble, but is around again and has started on a circular trip to Pomona, Redlands, San Bernardino and other points. As seen on the map this does not look like much of a circle, not even two-thirds of a circle, but Mr. Sperry did not say when or by what means he would return to the Angel City.

The California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co. is evidently out for business. Not only has this firm secured the output of some of the largest growers of cut flowers in this section, but it has gone largely into the supply end of the business. A look through the recently arrived shipments from Europe and the east reveals a wealth of novelties in baskets and other supplies seldom seen in this vicinity. Spirited buying and an unequaled facility for handling large stocks have had the effect of locating under one roof practically everything that a retail florist needs.

Passing the Bradbury home at Duarte the other day, I looked in at this fine place, which is now in charge of John Robertson, recently nursery foreman for the Germain Seed & Plant Co. Much of the planting is of a semi-natural style and some excellent effects have been obtained by blending wild and cultivated shrubs. There are a number of choice foliage plants in the greenhouses, including rare forms of marantas, philodendrons, anthuriums, dracænas and others. In other houses melons, tomatoes and other crops are grown in the European style. Lilacs are in fine shape on the grounds; so, also, are many conifers.

The Armstrong Nurseries, at Ontario, are always interesting and Mr. Armstrong reports an excellent year's business. There is a choice collection of conifers, while all classes of young stock for lining out are in good shape.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. has the contract for planting the home grounds of Miss Kathryn Williams, the noted moving picture actress.

Wright's Flower Shop is showing an unusually fine lot of stock, including many of the newer roses. A splendid showing is also made with the white forms of moth orchids, or phalænopsis, which are becoming more and more popular as corsage flowers.

W. Armacost & Co., of Sawtelle, are going to double their stock of orchids this year.

H. R. Richards.

and funeral work is the only department that holds its own. Some of the growers report more business from the smaller shops in residential districts than from those downtown. Wild flowers are a prominent feature, brodiæas being added to the list last week. Forget-me-not does well, and stocks, marigolds, etc., are becoming more plentiful. Some poeticus and a few freesias and daffodils are offered and there is a heavy cut of ixias, anemones and ranunculi, which have been fairly well received. Carnations are good and bring fair prices for the season, and sweet peas are doing a little better. Violets are rapidly going off crop, but are not missed. Hyacinths are going out, while tulips are in great supply, with really fine stock the exception. Spanish iris is coming in better and will soon be plentiful. The market is overloaded with lilac, though it is rather popular. Peonies are magnificent and with abundant offerings are largely crowding orchids out as a display feature. There are enough cattleyas to meet current demands and phalænopsis is almost too plentiful. The cut of gardenias is good and does not move as fast as it did. Easter lilies are a little scarce at the moment and a few callas are moving. There are many lilies ready to bloom. Valley continues scarce, but the little appearing is good. The market is fairly flooded with cheap roses and the average stock is so good that really fine lots move slowly. Baby roses are now in ample supply. Pot stock wins considerable attention. Rambler roses are fine and fairly plentiful. Wistaria is about at its best and there are many fine rhododendrons. Many good spiræas have appeared and more of them are expected soon.

Heather of several varieties is popular.

Horticultural Society Dance.

The dance given by the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society March 25 was the most interesting event in which the society has participated since the last S. A. F. convention, and H. Plath and his able assistants of the dance committee are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts to give the members and their guests a good time. The assembly hall of the Red Men's building was secured for the occasion, and the dancers, numbering about 200, were just comfortably accommodated. There was a large showing of the members of the society, especially of the younger members, many of whom are seldom seen at the meetings. Most of the older folk brought their families and the Ladies' Auxiliary was well represented. A few of those who are usually prominent in the work of the society were conspicuous by their absence, notable among them being Daniel MacRorie and A. J. Rossi, who had gone east for the flower show. But the "dancing set," including many guests, were out in force, and all had a most enjoyable time. J. A. Axell presided over the punch bowl, the ingredients of which were compounded according to a secret recipe confided to him by Mark Ebel. The bowl was the center of attraction for a small but select crowd of male "wallflowers," who made up for their lack of dancing ability—or agility?—by their fluency at swapping yarns or talking shop. The younger dancing crowd, and some of the older ones as well, kept the orchestra going until well after midnight and enjoyed every minute of the time.

In view of the success of the dance, it is expected that increasing interest will be taken in the picnic. D. Raymond, who is looking after this matter, has arranged for the picnic ground at Pinehurst, across the hills from Oakland on the Oakland and Antioch line, and it is expected that July 30 will be the date chosen.

Various Notes.

G. Podesta, a grower located on San Bruno road, recently suffered the loss of two houses of asparagus through a peculiar accident. A gas main in the street sprang a bad leak and the gas found its way to a gopher hole, through which it gained access to the houses, and the plants were killed before it was detected. The gas company has offered to compromise, and two growers were selected to appraise the loss. While the matter at last account was not entirely settled, it is expected that he will be paid about $500 for the loss.

C. Kooyman is again getting a nice cut of long American Beauties, which sell well in spite of the general glut in the rose market.

Mr. Wilcox, of Council Bluffs, Ia., and Mr. Miller, of Farmington, Utah, who has been spending several months in southern California, made a visit to San Francisco last week and spent some time at the E. W. McLellan Co. nursery.

The E. W. McLellan Co. now is getting a heavy crop of ixias and ranunculi and most of it is exceptionally fine, long stock.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. had a striking window decoration last week, which they styled "Tulip Time in Holland." The window, carpeted with moss, was profusely decorated with tulips of many fine varieties. The central figure was an extremely pretty wax girl, dressed in conventional Dutch garb, with ornamental buckets of tulips slung from her neck yoke. Above, several wooden shoes served as hanging vases for more tulips, and a rustic picket fence, supporting rambler roses, formed the background.

The Sacramento Florists' Society held its annual banquet March 27, at the Travelers' hotel, in that city. The pincipal matter for discussion was the projected fall flower show, in which they are all taking a keen interest, and a number of other matters of general trade interest. With the show to work for and look forward to, it is expected that the Sacramento florists will keep closer in touch this season than for a long time past.

Official recognition of the Marin Flower Pageant in May has been taken by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, the Commercial Club and the Rotary Club. The flower show committee now has its final premium list ready and has prospects of many interesting entries. P. H. Eckelmann is manager and F. C. Burns secretary. There are two classes open to all and two classes open to amateurs only.

Oakland's newest flower shop was opened about a week ago by W. I. Macdonald, who was formerly a partner of Seulberger's, and has had long experience in the business. The store is located at 1731 Broadway, opposite the post office, and is considered by many who have visited it to be the finest shop in Oakland.

Mrs. R. F. Darbee says the violets now are about gone, after an active shipping season. She is shipping a good deal of spring stock, including ranunculi, anemones, lilacs and Easter lilies. A novelty in the shipping line has been French nosegays, made up of forget-me-nots, etc., for which there has been quite a demand. S. H. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Unless all signs fail, the opening of spring came last week, more than ten days behind schedule. Business for the week was quite satisfactory along all lines. Quantities of first-class cut stock came in and were disposed of at normal prices. A few stores make a specialty of carnations, making cuts of 10 cents or more below standard prices. Usually the grower has to stand the greater part of the price reduction. In potted plants cinerarias, azaleas and hydrangeas lead.

Various Notes.

John Willius, lessee of the Pfunder Greenhouses on East Forty-Ninth street, suffered considerable loss of stock from freezing during the severe weather. One house filled with asparagus green collapsed and glass was broken and blown out in many places all over the range. Stock which was not killed was stunted so that it will not be productive this season. The buildings are so decayed that permanent repairs are not practicable.

August Zitzewitz has found sale for all the obconica primroses he grew. His heating plant is not sufficient for service during weather like that of last winter, but he has managed to come through with some first-class stock.

A. Byron, of Oregon City, and Joseph Bitz, of Jennings Lodge, share honors in growing most of the sweet peas now seen at the flower stores.

Thomas Ellingham is having a good cut of carnations and asparagus green, with which his entire range is now filled. He can take care of the place preferably by the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., and carried on in a businesslike manner. This would be much the better plan to pursue, as it would then be national in its scope and not confined to any one state.

ROSE SOCIETY'S WORK.

The Secretary's Good Work.

At the annual meeting last year a committee was appointed to look into the grading of roses, and the naming of those grades. Its findings, I trust, will be adopted by the society.

In conclusion I want to add a word of praise for our secretary, who has labored all these years unselfishly and untiringly with the thought always of what was best for the society. He has spent time and money for the society wherever and whenever needed, and has been one of its mainstays, taking hold of the secretaryship when no one wanted the job and when the society was almost down and out. To him we owe, I believe, more than to any other one person, the bringing of the society to where it is today. Let us hope that our society can be put on a financial basis that will allow us to pay our secretary a salary in the future and that every member will work for a larger and better society. This is the wish of your president.

It Pays

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade? Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results. —Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

The transient rate for space is $1 per inch per insertion. Those who have stock to offer all or a considerable part of the year around should write for contract rates.

NOTICE

To all American Nurserymen and Seedsmen desiring to keep in touch with commercial horticulture in England and the continent of Europe: Your best means of doing this is to take in the

Horticultural Advertiser

Our circulation covers the whole trade in Great Britain and the cream of the European firms. Impartial reports of all novelties, etc. Paper free on receipt of 75 cents, covering cost of postage yearly. As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalogue or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

THE nurseryman who has idle moments now never will be busy.

J. G. HARRISON & SONS, nurserymen of Berlin, Md., have opened a display and sales room at 931 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, with F. A. C. Vosters in charge.

THE office of the landscape department of the P. J. Berckmans Co., which is not at the nursery, but downtown, in the Chronicle building, was burned out during the recent big fire there, most of the records as well as the equipment being lost. The fire did not, however, in any way affect the company's nursery business.

THE Federal Horticultural Board, in connection with the notice published in this department of The Review for March 30, is asking the trade in the east to sign the following pledge: Receipt is acknowledged of your circular letter of March 22, 1916. In consideration of similar agreements by other eastern nurserymen and your withholding for the present the establishment of a domestic quarantine on account of the white pine blister rust, I hereby promise and agree not to ship or cause to be shipped any white pines, currants or gooseberries west of the line indicated therein.

BIGGEST BOAT WITHDRAWN

The Holland-America Line has laid up the Rotterdam, the largest boat plying between Rotterdam and New York.

The announcement is of more than passing interest to the trade because nearly all the imports of plants and seeds now come via Holland and the withdrawal of the largest carrier will still further cripple a service that has been inadequate to supply space for the prompt and safe shipment of perishable commodities. The reason for withdrawing the big ship, while not announced in this country, is thought to be the rising danger of loss at sea because of the operations of submarines. Insurance has so risen that covering the Rotterdam recently has cost $90,000 per trip for that item alone.

NEW ENGLAND EMBARGOES.

The counsel of the Seed and Nursery Trade Association April 3 had a conference with the railroad officials of the New York Central and New Haven railroads and also with the Eastern Freight Accumulation Conference concerning the lifting of embargoes on seeds and nursery stock.

As readers of The Review were heretofore advised, the New Haven embargo on seeds was lifted March 1 and March 28 a permanent order against embargo on seeds was made. On the same road, March 31, the embargo on nursery stock was lifted.

The New York Central lines and Boston & Albany have lifted embargoes on seeds and nursery stock.

The Boston & Maine also has no embargo on seeds or nursery stock. The Pennsylvania has cooperated in the lifting of embargoes.

It is of the greatest importance that seeds and nursery stocks shall go forward promptly, as the planting season is at hand. The railroad officials have shown an earnest desire to assist in this movement. If any seedsman or nurseryman finds any delay in shipments, telegraph his complaint at once to the vice-president in charge of traffic of the NURSERYMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

The Reconstruction Plan.

With the advent of spring there comes a reminder to nurserymen everywhere that the forty-first annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30.

Unusual interest attaches to this announcement. At the Detroit meeting last year a new constitution was adopted, the object sought being to enhance the value of the organization to members. Article 2 of the new constitution states that the object of the association shall be to promote the general interests of its members: First, by relaxation from business; second, the cultivation of personal acquaintance with others engaged in the trade; third, the exhibition of fruits, flowers, plants and manufactured articles used in the business; fourth, the exchange and sale of stock; fifth, to promote, by all means in its power, increased knowledge and use of nursery products among the people. The association as it exists today under the reconstruction plan occupies a unique position before the trade and it is evident that the men whom the association expects to retain or to secure as new members will think more of their membership because of the action referred to.

Memberships.

Secretary John Hall has sent to members a folder telling of the arrangements and plans for the convention at Milwaukee. Secretary Hall makes an earnest request for the renewal of memberships and the enrollment of new members. Included with the folder is an interesting article by J. R. Mayhew, entitled "Why I Should Retain My Membership in the American As-

OUR AIM: To grow and sell the kind of plants we would like to buy ourselves. To pack them to reach you in the best possible condition.

TERMS—Our terms are 3 per cent discount for cash with order, 2 per cent for cash in ten days, or thirty days net. Cash or satisfactory references must accompany orders from parties not known to us. If plants or seeds are wanted in a hurry, send cash if you are not known to us or there will be delay while we look up the references. Express is the most satisfactory way of shipping plants. Carriage charges to be paid by the buyer. Three plants at doz. rate, 25 at rate per 100, and 250 at rate per 1000.

PACKING—All our plants are carefully packed in light weight boxes or packages. Usually we remove most of the dirt but use plenty of damp moss about the roots. We make no extra charge for boxes or labor of packing.

GUARANTEE—We do not warrant in any way, express, or implied, the contents or the description, quality, productiveness, or any other matter of any seeds, bulbs or plants sold by us, and we will not in any way be responsible for the crop. If the purchaser does not accept these goods on above terms, no sale is made thereof, and he must return them at once, and money will be refunded.—Wm. Toole & Son.

Telegraph or telephone orders from parties known to us will receive immediate attention.

We call your attention to our fine stock of the popular Delphinium Belladonna, of which we have a large stock of extra fine plants.

Plants in Paper Pots—For those who want the plants to sell over the counter, or who wish to receive them in especially attractive condition, we would be pleased to quote prices on any of the above varieties shipped in paper pots. The plants are dug in the spring, potted up in clay pots and transferred to paper pots for shipping. In this way they are in especially good shape for selling in stores, and will transplant readily for late planting jobs. Ask us about them.

TOOLES' PANSY PLANTS—We make a specialty of growing strong, stocky transplanted greenhouse grown pansy plants for the trade. Our own superior strains of seed are sown in the greenhouse early in January and transplanted as soon as needed. They are hardened off in cold greenhouses or in frames out of doors before shipping. Our method furnishes a superior plant that is bright and fresh and will give the very best satisfaction. We guarantee delivery in good condition to any part of the country, because of our special system of packing in light, secure packages. Plants with strong roots in bud and blossom, $1.40 per 100; $12.50 per 1,000. Plants ready April 15 and after. Sample on request.

TOOLES' PANSY SEED—Send for our wholesale price of American grown pansy seed, produced on our own farm. A strain of superior merit.

sociation of Nurserymen,'' in which Mr. Mayhew tells of the larger scope given the association's activities and the increased benefits to members.

The association embraces two classes of members, viz.: Active, or voting members, who are actively engaged in the nursery business; associate, or non-voting members, embracing horticultural implement makers, dealers in supplies and those in allied trades. The fee for active members is $5 plus a sum determined by the size of the active member's business, and for associate members $10. This includes two lines for name and address in the Badge Book, the official roster of the association membership. Members are privileged to advertise in the Badge Book; the cost of doing so is trivial.

Convention Facts.

As usual, the program for the convention will appear in the Badge Book, which will be mailed about the first week of June. The make-up of the program was placed in the hands of Lloyd C. Stark, whose experience furnishes a guarantee of a program of quality. T. J. Ferguson has charge of all arrangements and what of entertainment there will be. The space assigned for exhibits at the convention is more than ample. Intending exhibitors, including nurserymen, lithographers, manufacturers of tools, implements or anything else used by the trade, should communicate with A. F. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., chairman of the exhibit committee. A charge of 5 cents per square foot of exhibition space will be made, with a minimum of 50 cents for each exhibitor. The convention headquarters will be at Hotel Wisconsin, a new hostelry, a splendid meeting place for the forty-first convention, which has as a slogan: "Business First."

Those seeking fuller information as to membership are asked to communicate with Secretary John Hall, 204 Granite building, Rochester, N. Y.

ORCHARDISTS GET TOGETHER.

With the government at its back, an organization which already embraces ninety per cent of the growers and shippers of apples in the northwest has been formed for the purpose of marketing boxed apples and some other fruit this season on a coöperative basis. The organization, it is said, will insure a fair margin of profit to its members through better marketing information and facilities.

This announcement was made by C. E. Bassett, Clarence W. Mooman and W. H. Kerr, government market experts of the Department of Agriculture, who are in Portland, Ore., after several months of organization work in the northwest. The organization will market in an orderly manner ninety per cent of the $200,000,000 crop grown on the 530,000 acres in apples in the four northwestern states of Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Washington.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Raymond S. Rainbow, of Fair Oaks, Pa., recently installed a new icebox. A good showing of spring flowers was noted. Several pieces of design work were being made for out-of-town delivery.

A striking window of yellow attracted one's attention to the beautiful display of spring flowers in the new store of G. Wessenaur, of Sewickley, Pa. The walls are almost entirely of glass, adjoining a greenhouse used for show purposes, and naturally the place is noticed for a considerable distance. Yellow tulips and daffodils, roses and genistas were displayed, besides many fine specimens of azaleas, hydrangeas; primroses, lilies and some rare ferns and foliage plants. A new White truck was added to the delivery equipment last week.

Mrs. W. H. Rosenbauer, of Sewickley, Pa., has been confined to the sick-room for several months Although she is convalescent, it will be several weeks before she will be able to be about.

The breaking up of winter, with a few springlike days last week, caused a rush for seeds at J. W. Glenn's, of Kittanning, Pa.

George Bros. & Co. have opened a store opposite the Pennsylvania depot in New Kensington, Pa.

The continued demand for funeral work has delayed J. Weimer & Sons, of Verona, Pa., in their outdoor work. Several handsome designs were noted, especially a star and crescent design in white and pink. W. T. U.

London, England.—It was but a short time ago that the trade learned with regret of the disappearance of one great Chelsea nursery, that of James Veitch & Sons, and now we have news of the passage of another landmark of horticulture by the closing of the neighboring nursery and seed business of W. Bull & Sons. It is announced that Edward Bull, the surviving partner in the firm, retired from the nursery business March 31 and in future will devote all his energies to the manufacture of his special plant manure and fumigating compound.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Business was exceedingly good last week on account of the "Dress Up" movement, which was widely advertised in this city, not only by the department stores but also by many of the retail florists. Corsages were a specialty and popular-priced cut flowers and blooming plants were heavily advertised. The results were satisfying. The majority of the flower shops had attractive window decorations for the occasion.

The sunshine last week brought quantities of flowers of good quality. Roses are more abundant than they have been for months. This is especially true of Shawyer, Russell, Killarney, Rhea Rheid, Ophelia and Sunburst. Killarney are in splendid color at present. Carnations are quite abundant and of excellent quality. Some handsome snapdragons are being shown on the market. Violets are becoming scarce. Spring flowers are plentiful and meet with a brisk demand. Poeticus narcissi, yellow, red and white tulips, Dutch hyacinths, jonquils and freesias are the best on the market at present. Many spring openings last week called for elaborate decorations. Aside from this demand, there was a liberal quantity of funeral work. During the month of March business was exceptionally good, notwithstanding the advent of the Lenten season, and it compares favorably with the preceding months of the year, and far surpasses the volume of business for March, 1915.

The growers are busy bringing their blooming plants into the greenhouses from the coldframes and preparing for the Easter trade.

Various Notes.

F. J. Knecht & Co. are shipping a large cut of Shawyer and Russell roses, as well as supplying the local market.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. had a fine window display during Dress Up week, and as they are located on the main thoroughfare their store attracted considerable attention.

Edgar Wenninghoff displayed attractive baskets of spring flowers in his show window last week.

The Flick Floral Co. had the decorations for a large department store spring opening last week, in which thousands of spring flowers and roses were used. Many plants were effectively grouped. This concern advertised special sales during the week. R. F.

ROSE GROWERS

MME. PAUL EULER (Prima Donna)—You shouldn't be without it. A grand deep pink rose—darker, better form than the Russell—very fragrant and constant bloomer—always sells at highest American Beauty prices. $15.00 per 100, $125.00 per 1000. Order early.

MUM GROWERS

Here are two most desirable varieties

ALEX. GUTTMAN—A very early lavender-pink, comes in bloom middle of September. Exhibition size, foliage not too large; can be planted close. $35.00 per 100. And EMMA—A Garza type anemone double pompon, light pink—it's a dandy. You will make no mistake in getting these. Comes in about November 15, stays to December. $15.00 per 100. Plants ready now.

CARNATION GROWERS

LAURA WEBER is a most pleasing shade of salmon-pink—a high-grade bloom, remains strong till summer, does not fade out, always commands better than the highest market price. You can't go wrong on buying 100 or 250 cuttings, if you don't care to get 1000 or more. Prices, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. First come, first served. Order now.

Write us for further particulars. We have more good things coming!

INDIANA FLORISTS TO MEET.

That big spring meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana has been announced for Tuesday, April 11, at Terre Haute. So make due note of the day and arrange to go. The Terre Haute Florists' Club is preparing for you and, since this is the first meeting ever held in Terre Haute, a record attendance is anticipated.

There is not enough room here to speak of the merits of the new Davis Gardens at Terre Haute, but I must say that the members would have difficulty in finding a more up-to-date range. The following is the program of the day:

The members will assemble at the Davis Gardens by boarding a South Seventh street autobus at the J. G. Heinl store, or at Seventh street and Wabash avenue, when arriving at Terre Haute.

Lunch will be served promptly at 12 noon at the Davis Gardens, which will be followed by the business session. A tour of the various establishments by auto has been arranged for the afternoon, commencing at the Davis Gardens.

The Indianapolis florists will leave their city 7:15 a. m., via the Big Four.

Don't forget to bring those novelties you have been nursing, as well as the well grown standard sorts. If unable to attend yourself, ship the exhibit to the Davis Gardens, Terre Haute, Ind., and it will be taken care of and properly staged.

The officers and members of the Terre Haute Florists' Club desire to make this the banner meeting of the year, so don't disappoint them. Also remember that we want a total enrollment of 200 members by January 1, 1917. Please do your part.

O. E. Steinkamp, Sec'y.

Belle Washburn

THE BEST RED CARNATION

RESULTS ARE WHAT COUNT!

WINNER of the Silver Medal of the American Carnation Society, at Buffalo, 1915; also WINNER of the SAME MEDAL in the same class at ST. LOUIS, 1916; also of Silver Medal of S. A. F. and O. H., at St. Louis, 1916. It has never been beaten at any exhibition. The color is a most brilliant red. The size of the flower is 3½ inches. Stems 24 to 36 inches long, strong and stiff. We have never had a burst calyx, all flowers grading firsts; and, best of all, it is a constant bloomer, giving a steady run of flowers equal in number to the Enchantress family. It has a spicy odor, much greater than the average Carnation. It comes in full flower by the 1st of December and then continues steadily through the balance of the season.

Rooted cuttings now ready for delivery.

Price of the rooted cuttings is $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. We will bill 500 at the 1000 rate price.

Every cutting guaranteed strong and well rooted.

We have 1500 plants growing in our greenhouses at Hollywood, Cal., devoted exclusively to rooted cuttings.

Orders for Pacific Coast States will please be sent to our Western Branch, care of E. B. Washburn, 252 South Orange Grove Avenue, Pasadena, Cal.

LANCASTER EMPLOYEES MEET.

The monthly meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' and Gardeners' Employees' Fraternity was held March 30, at its headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, 19 East Orange street, with President Louis Benner in the chair. Although the weather was most miserable, there were thirty members present. After the report of the previous meeting, by Secretary Geiter, nine members were admitted and five applications were read.

Alphonse Peters was elected to represent the fraternity at the National Flower Show at Philadelphia. E. V. Hardy, a flower pot manufacturer of this city, was made an honorary member. In a few words of thanks he invited the members to visit his plant, where a hearty welcome would await them. The invitation was accepted and turned over to the visiting committee for further action. Mr. Stirk, grower and manager for the Misses Buchler, gave the boys an interesting talk on greenhouse economy.

A smile about the size of a first-class William Turner chrysanthemum rested on the face of every member when the secretary read the report of the increase in the coffers of the treasurer during the last three months. This was brought to a climax when Treasurer J. Clerico announced that the Fulton National Bank was a caretaker of the bulk. A committee of five was appointed to arrange a festival for the end of May, to fortify the death benefit fund of the fraternity. A visiting trip to the La Parks greenhouses at Paradise was arranged for April 9.

The next meeting will be held April 10, at 7:30 p. m., when a report of the National Flower Show will be read by A. Peters.

Fine Easter Plants

Our stock of Easter Plants has never been so fine as this year; careful selection and good growing have enabled us to offer to our customers the finest stock of plants that can be seen anywhere, of good commercial sizes and at the right prices for good stock. Don't delay ordering, as good Easter stock will be scarce this year owing to the fact that some growers were afraid that they could not hold their stock back until the 23rd of April, while others only planted half their usual Easter stock, so they could grow their spring stock.

AZALEAS. We have our usual large stock of this popular plant in large and small sizes and in the best popular varieties: Mme. Vander Cruyssen, we are exceptionally strong in this popular variety, in 6 and 7-in. pots, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. Vervaeneana, variegated, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. Mme. De Schryveriana, double variegated, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. John Llewellyn, double variegated, $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50 each. Niobe, double white, extra fine plants, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each.

FRENCH HYDRANGEAS, Gen. de Vibraye, Mme. E. Chautard, and Bouquet Rose, 6, 7 and 8-in. pots, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. We have one large house of 2,500 plants, foliage good and green, just timed right.

HYDRANGEA OTAKSA, still the leader of all Hydrangeas, 3 to 8 blooms to a plant, 6, 7 and 8-in. pots, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each.

SPIRAEA GLADSTONE, grown from extra selected clumps, in 6 and 7-in. pots, $5.00, $6.00 and $9.00 per doz.

LILIUM GIGANTEUM, the best of all Easter plants; we have 8,000 grown as fine as you want them, in 5½-in pots, 10c per bud; less than 4 buds to a plant, 12c per bud.

RHODODENDRONS, John Walter, red, $1.50 and $2.00 each; Catawbiense, lilac, $1.50 and $2.00 each; Pink Pearl, extra fine, $2.00 and $2.50 each. Our Rhododendrons are all well budded, and we are sure they will give satisfaction.

DAFFODILS, Von Sion, the best pot variety; 3 double crown bulbs in a 6-in. pot, 6 to 10 flowers to a plant, $3.00 per dozen.

TULIPS, Murillo, pink; Tournesol, red and yellow, and Rubra Maxima, red, 3 bulbs in a 4-in. pot, $12.00 per 100.

HYACINTHS, Gertrude, Grand Maitre and La Grandesse, $12.00 per 100; 5 in a 6-in. pan, 35c each.

ROSE BUSHES, Baby Ramblers and Tausendschoen, 6-in. pots, 50c and 75c each.

DRACAENAS, Terminalis and Lord Wolseley, fine colored, 5½-in. pots, 75c each.

ASPARAGUS, Plumosus, 3-in., $5.00 per 100; Sprengeri, 3-in., heavy, $7.00 per 100.

MOONVINES, Ipomoea Noctiflora, 2½-in., $5.00 per 100.

PALMS. Our stock of palms is very fine, and no order is complete unless you have a few of them for decorative purposes. Kentia Belmoreana, 5½-in. pots, 5 to 6 leaves, 20 to 22 in. high, 75c each; 7-in. pots, 8 leaves, 22 in. high, $1.50 and $2.00 each. Kentia Forsteriana, 6 leaves, 28 to 30 in. high, $1.00 each; 7-in. pots, 6 to 7 leaves, 38 to 40 in. high, $2.00 and $2.50 each.

FERNS. We have a fine lot of ferns in 6, 7 and 8-inch pots: Nephrolepis Scottii, 6-in., $5.00 per doz.; 7-in., 75c each; 8-in., $1.00 each. Nephrolepis Elegantissima, 7-in. pots, 75c each; 8-in., $1.00 each.

BOXWOOD, 12 to 15 in. high, 35c each; 15 to 18 in. high, 45c each. Pyramids, 2 to 2½ ft., $1.50 each; 3 ft., $2.00 each.

Cash with order, please; no plants shipped C. O. D.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Trade conditions are decidedly of the Lenten sort. Prices have fallen on most kinds of stock, especially on Beauties, lilies and sweet peas. There has been nothing of importance to create a special demand and the weather has not been pleasant enough for wearing flowers outdoors; so the demand has slumped all around.

Various Notes.

The Pittsburgh Florists' Club, at its meeting April 4, had an exhibition of Easter plants and heard from the members who had been at Philadelphia.

Among those who stopped off here on their way home from Philadelphia were Robert C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., and Mrs. N. Kiger, of Marietta, O.

Almost everyone has been at the Philadelphia show and all seem to have been pleased with it. Clarke.

OMAHA.

The Bowlers' Doings.

The Council Bluffs bowlers took revenge on the Omaha home guard March 29 for the defeat they suffered three weeks ago, and gave our tradesmen a drubbing that will not soon be forgotten. We would like to see the Omaha boys display a little more interest in the contests and report earlier, as some who live far out prefer to use the street cars rather than the taxis. The scores in the match of March 29 were as follows:

Our Specialty is Grafted Roses

WE grow many other young plants for the shipping trade, but "Grafted Roses" is the specialty. A visit to Cromwell will prove to you that we can back up our offers with stock that is of the highest quality. We are growing 700,000 this season, for we know that this year we will see much replanting that was not done last year. A good part of this quantity is already sold, and orders have been very gratifying.

If you are going to plant or replant, get in touch with us now. Give us a chance to give you the best plants that can be grown. Our prices are graded to suit the quantity, and the quality graded to be above competition. Write us now, or, better still, come and see what we have to offer.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

There is an abundant supply of all kinds of stock, with the exception of one or two items. Beauty conditions continue about the same, there being only a small increase in the supply. Other varieties of roses are more plentiful and clear daily, but some of the extra long-stemmed stock is inclined to drag. Short stock is cleaned up daily. Maryland roses are again in great demand and Russells are improving rapidly. Carnations did not experience any noticeable change last week. The quality is good, with a small percentage of splits. Whites clear easily, as many are used in funeral pieces, which at present are keeping the retailers rather busy.

Easter lilies are about equal to the demand. Valley is none too abundant, but it has a tendency to drag, nevertheless. Sweet peas, however, are playing an important part in the market. Bulbous stock of all kinds has decreased in supply, although it meets with a fair demand. Violets are not moving so well as before the large crop of peas came on. Peas, naturally, are more used for corsages. Orchids are as scarce as ever. Gardenias have increased much in quantity and their quality is good. Greens of all kinds are in great demand for funeral work and decorations.

Various Notes.

Among the many florists who attended the National Flower Show were S. A. Anderson, David Scott and William Ehmann. Joseph Streit, formerly of Buffalo, stopped off at Buffalo for several hours to greet his old friends.

Wendelin Preisach, of Corfu, is picking some fine peas.

The Ever-Ready Flower Pot Cover Co. reports a great demand in pot covers for the Easter business.

Recent visitors were Charles Falkenheim, of the Basket Novelty Co., New York; E. Neiman, of the Park Floral Co., Denver, Col. A. E.

Greensburg, Ind.—Ira Clark has started a downtown stand, of which Miss Nell Clark is manager. Mr. Clark will devote his time to the South Broadway greenhouses, as usual.

DREER'S HYDRANGEAS

for SPRING and MEMORIAL DAY

SELECT STANDARD VARIETIES

These are all stored in coldframes in a dormant condition; the 5- and 6-in. pots are in prime shape for flowering for Spring and Memorial Day sales, while the 2- and 3-in. pots will be found profitable for growing on.

Avalanche. Large corymbs of pure white flowers; very free-flowering.

Bouquet Rose. Large trusses of well-formed flowers; rosy-amber, turning to bright pink.

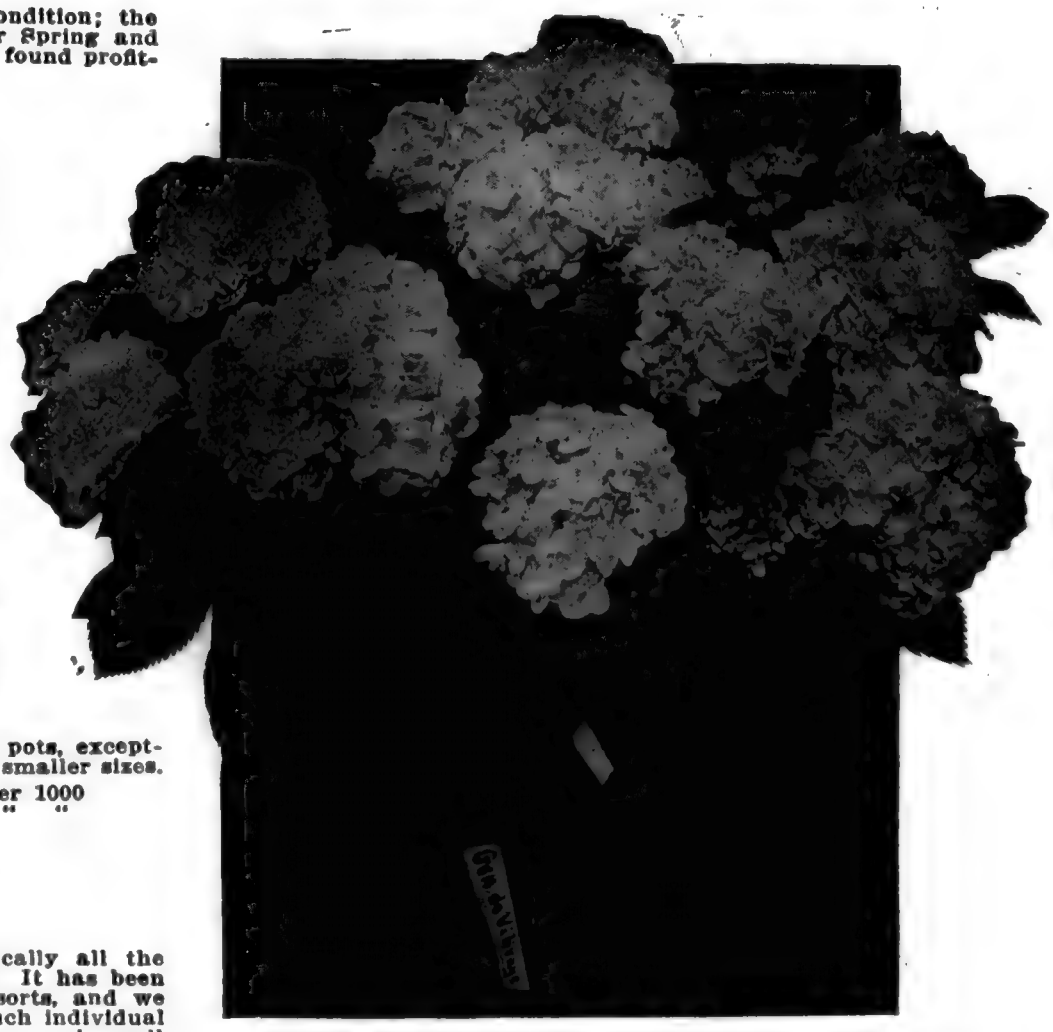
E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size, color a most pleasing shade of pink which does not fade; growth vigorous.

General de Vibraye. Very large heads of bright rose; a splendid forcing variety.

La Lorraine. Very large flowers; pale rose turning to bright pink.

Mlle. Renee Gaillard. Large panicles of milky-white irregularly dentated flowers.

Mme. Maurice Hamar. Large delicate flesh-rose color; a pleasing shade.



Mme. Emile Mouillere. One of the very best; very large flowers, frequently over 2 inches in diameter, of the purest white, with rosy-carmine eye.

Radiant. Splendid rose-carmine.

Ronsard. Very large individual flowers as well as trusses of a beautiful rose tint.

Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard. One of the prettiest; robust habit, medium-sized corymbs of bright rose-colored flowers.

Vieux-Chateau. A strong, upright growing variety with immense trusses of very large white flowers; these as they mature become suffused with a delicate rosy-carmine tint.

All of the above can be supplied in 2, 3, 5 and 6-in. pots, excepting E. G. Hill, which can only be furnished in the three smaller sizes.

New Hydrangeas

We have introduced to American commerce practically all the worthy French Hydrangeas in popular demand today. It has been our constant aim to discard superseded and inferior sorts, and we believe every variety in the sets following to possess such individual distinctive merit as will make it valuable. All plants are in well protected coldframes and will be kept dormant as late as possible in Spring.

Hydrangea Novelties for 1916

Directeur Vuillermet. Immense trusses of medium sized fringed good pink flowers.

L'Islette. Rosy carmine of medium size, very free, unusually promising.

Louis Foucard. Very free flowering rosy carmine.

Mme. E. Tabar. Very delicate rose color.

Mme. Legou. Distinct, large and imposing creamy white.

Mme. R. Jacquet. Compact heads of a pretty pale pink.

Mlle. Lucienne Chaure. Nicely fringed bright rosy carmine, strong grower, a good garden variety.

Mlle. Rene Plessier. Splendid tender rose.

Prof. A. Vezzin. White with delicate carmine suffusion.

Souvenir de Mme. Victor Raoult. Very large lively rose.

Souvenir de Monsieur Belot. Lively carmine-rose.

Ville de Chartres. Immense pure white of vigorous habit.

Price: Any of above Novelties, 2¼-in. pots, 25c each, $2.50 per doz., $18.00 per 100; one each of the 12 sorts for $2.50.

Hydrangea Novelties of 1915

Baby Bimbenet. Very dwarf, free and early, the plant becomes covered with large, compact trusses of silvery-rose flowers.

Beaute Vendomoise. Immense heads of white flowers tinted pink; the individual florets attain a diameter of 4 inches, and while it shows a tendency to a loose, open truss, this adds to its attractiveness.

Eclaireur. One of the most startling acquisitions, a very bright carmine-rose, the nearest approach to a red. We particularly recommend this.

La France. Very strong grower, with immense trusses of deeply fringed flowers of a delicate shade of rose.

La Perle. The grandest, largest and most refined white we have yet seen; flowers deeply fringed.

Lilie Mouillere. Similar to, but distinct from Eclaireur; a bright carmine-rose.

Louis Mouillere. A distinct and valuable variety, a fine shade of deep rose-pink fringed florets in trusses of immense size.

Mme. Auguste Nonin. An unusually attractive pretty pale pink in heads of large size.

Souvenir du Lieut. Chaure. Produces immense heads of bright rose-carmine flowers on bold, upright stems.

Price: Any of above 1915 introductions:
2-inch pots, $1.00 per doz., $7.00 per 100

MINNEAPOLIS.

Various Notes.

Will Desmond, manager of the floral department of the L. S. Donaldson Co., has returned from the National Flower Show at Philadelphia. He is quick to pick up anything worth emulating. At the Donaldson greenhouses there is a fine stock of Easter goods. The showing for Easter at the Nicollet avenue store is always a great feature, and it will be better than ever this season. The Donaldsons certainly do back up their managers in every way possible.

Miss H. B. Whitted is at Atlantic City for a well earned vacation.

The Hiawatha Gardens Co. has a fine lot of Easter lilies in view for the Easter trade.

We are having fine, bright days, with frost at night. This is making all the florists anxious about Easter stock. Easter is so late that, unless handled with skill and forethought, stock will be in a poor condition. Shading the greenhouses has already been resorted to in some cases. Azaleas are in short supply. In some instances they are soft and not too well budded.

Wessling's Greenhouses are filled with stock in anticipation of a heavy trade, which, up to the present time, has been good. Retailers and florists are already placing their orders for Easter stock. The growers are asking 10 to 12 cents per bud for lilies of good quality. Good azaleas are worth $1.50 to $2.00 each. Boston ferns, 5-inch pots, are 30 cents, and 6-inch pots 50 cents. At these prices there is a scarcity of good ferns. There is an appreciable quantity of young plants for Memorial day, however.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. has been unusually busy. March 29 this concern had sixty corsages to make up for the graduates of the agricultural college. Mrs. Ward roses and white sweet peas were used.

Minneapolis is well supplied with good seed houses, offering first-class stock and first-class service. They pay heavy taxes and this is how they are handicapped. Mr. Smith will give away vegetable and flower seeds at a smoker. Mr. Smith obtained them from the government, and has $100 worth of them.

W. Crum, previously with the L. S. Donaldson Co. as designer, has left that company and assumed the management of the floral department of the R. M. Chapman Co., at Tenth street and Nicollet avenue. F. E. B.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

WILL INSTALL A GENERATOR.

Enclosed you will find a sketch of my range of four greenhouses, which run east and west. Please let me know how to pipe houses No. 3 and 4, on the north side of the range. Houses No. 1 and 2 are already piped. We heat with hot water and I wish to use 2-inch pipe for the returns. House No. 3 will be used for roses, No. 4 for sweet peas and violets. The houses adjoin, but have a partition between them. The north wall of house No. 4 contains four feet of glass. The gable ends are exposed. The boiler is in a pit nine feet deep. I intend to install a generator; what size will be needed? The houses are six and one-half feet high to the gutters and twelve feet high to the ridge. E. J. C.—O.

For house No. 3, which, as shown by the sketch, is 22½x150, we would use three 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one on each plate and the other three feet below the ridge. To maintain a temperature of 65 degrees, we would provide three coils, each containing three 2-inch return pipes. One of these should be on each wall, or under the side benches, and the other coil should be under the middle benches. In house No. 4 we would also put in three flow pipes, but, although the house is one foot wider than house No. 3 and has four feet of glass in the outside wall, it will be possible to maintain a temperature of 55 degrees by using eight 2-inch returns.

These houses will contain about 2,400 square feet of radiation, and, if the other houses have about the same amount, the generator should be able to handle a system with approximately 5,000 square feet of radiation.

VARIOUS FACTS AND FIGURES.

I have a sectional hot water boiler, 48x72, with an 11-inch flue opening. The rating of the boiler is 2,700 feet. Will you please state the width and height

WHEN YOU BUY—GET A KROESCHELL
"THE BOILER OF GENUINE EFFICIENCY"

The Kroeschell is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

10,788,000 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years.

The Kroeschell has replaced hundreds of cast iron boilers. In every case higher temperatures are secured with the Kroeschell with the same piping and with less fuel.

The Kroeschell is sold direct from factory to users. This eliminates the unnecessary middleman's profit.

Hundreds of Florists' Review readers are using the Kroeschell Boiler and mighty is their praise. The year of 1915 brought an enormous number of new customers who saw our boiler in operation at other places. We attribute the large sales of this season to the good work the Kroeschell Boiler is doing everywhere.

With our policy—"the customers' interest first"—perfection of construction—factory to user prices—honest and "true blue" boiler ratings—you simply cannot lose.

Expressions From Men Who Know Boilers

ONE OF BOSTON'S WELL KNOWN GROWERS.

The Kroeschell has taken the place of four cast iron boilers at a big saving in coal. We are using it now for the fifth year. The longer we use it the better we like it.

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST.

After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.

THE QUALITY PLACE OF BOSTON.

Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.

A BIG MAN IN THE FLORICULTURAL WORLD.

The Kroeschell Boiler I installed last year usually runs from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. without attention. I do not have the least trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. The boiler has given entire satisfaction.

The Kroeschell is the best boiler we have ever handled.

A FAMOUS ILLINOIS ROSE RANGE.

In speaking of the Kroeschell Boiler as an economical greenhouse boiler I cannot say too much. Personally I have had the pleasure or misfortune to fire nearly every make of G. H. Boiler on the market and I can safely say the Kroeschell is the best of them all.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST MUSHROOM PLANT.

We spent $100,000 in building and equipping the largest modern mushroom plant in the world. We purchased in every instance the best of everything we could get, and the fact that we installed a Kroeschell Boiler to furnish our heat is sufficient evidence of our opinion of same.

Since installing this boiler and operating it we have never had any reason to change our opinion.

The carnation range of Mr. Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, consists of nearly 70,000 sq. ft. of glass and the water plant is heated by a No. 14 and No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler and Kroeschell Generator. The product of the plant is known throughout the West for its fine quality. Mr. Z. has used different kinds of boilers. As for the Kroeschell, he says: "I think the Kroeschell Boilers are the best boilers a florist can buy."

of chimney I should have for best results with this boiler? How many feet of radiation will a 2-inch flow pipe care for, if the coils are fifty feet long? How many feet of radiation are there in 100 feet of 2-inch pipe, 1¼-inch pipe and 1-inch pipe? Give the weight of such piping. How many feet of hot water radiation, with the water at 150 degrees, will be needed to heat 100 feet of glass to 50 degrees in fairly well built houses, in zero weather? How many feet of radiation with the water at 180 degrees? R. A. B.—Pa.

The required size and height of a chimney depend to some extent on the character of the surroundings, since in a location where the wind is broken by trees, buildings or hills, a higher chimney will be required than where there are no obstructions. Boilers with long return flues also require higher chimneys than where they are fairly direct. Under average conditions, we would suggest the use of a 12-inch chimney, thirty-five feet high. With a slightly larger chimney the height could be lessened, in an open country. The size of grate mentioned seems unduly large and the smoke flue rather small for a heater with the rating given.

If the returns are three feet above the top of the boiler, a 2-inch flow pipe will supply 200 square feet of radiation, including its own surface. If the flow pipe is also fifty feet long, this would mean five 2-inch or seven 1½-inch returns. In round numbers, in 100 linear feet of pipe there will be sixty-two square feet of radiation in 2-inch; fifty feet in 1½-inch; forty-three in 1¼-inch and thirty-three in 1-inch pipe. The weight of pipe varies slightly, but standard iron pipe runs about as follows per linear foot: 2-inch, 3.6 pounds; 1½-inch, 2.7 pounds; 1¼-inch, 2.25 pounds; 1-inch, 1.7 pounds.

To maintain a temperature of 50 degrees in zero weather, we generally reckon that twenty-five feet of hot water radiation will be required for each 100 feet of glass. This is for the water at 150 to 160 degrees. If the water can be maintained at an average of 180 degrees, which we do not advise, twenty-one feet of pipe will heat 100 square feet of glass.

POSITION OF FLOW PIPES.

In The Review of March 23, page 91, in your reply to G. B. W.—O., giving directions for the piping of a greenhouse 20x50, you say: "We would use for carnations three 2-inch flow pipes and either seven 2-inch or nine 1½-inch returns, all of which may be under the benches." Do you mean that all of the returns may be under the benches, or all of the piping, both returns and flow pipes?

We are planning a house 18x50, five feet high at the sides and eleven feet high to the ridge. The south wall will contain two and one-half feet of glass, on hinges. The north wall will have no glass, as it will be close to another building. There will be glass in the east end from the height of the eaves upward. We shall heat with hot water. Would it be satisfactory to use about the same piping as is recommended in the paragraph from which I quoted, and should the flow pipes be, preferably, above or below? The house will be used mainly for growing carnations, with some mixed stock, and for propagating. C. B. P.—Ill.

The use of overhead flow pipes improves the circulation in a hot water system, but when the returns are two or three feet above the top of the boiler it is possible to place the flows as well as the returns under the benches, and thus secure the benefit of the bottom heat.

For a house 18x50, with two and one-half feet of glass in the south wall, to be used for carnations, we would use three 2-inch flow pipes and either seven 2-inch or nine 1½-inch returns, as suggested for G. B. W. Another method of piping would be to use two 2½-inch flows and either eight 2-inch or ten 1½-inch returns. If the flows are overhead, there is seldom any trouble in securing a good circulation.

The Market.

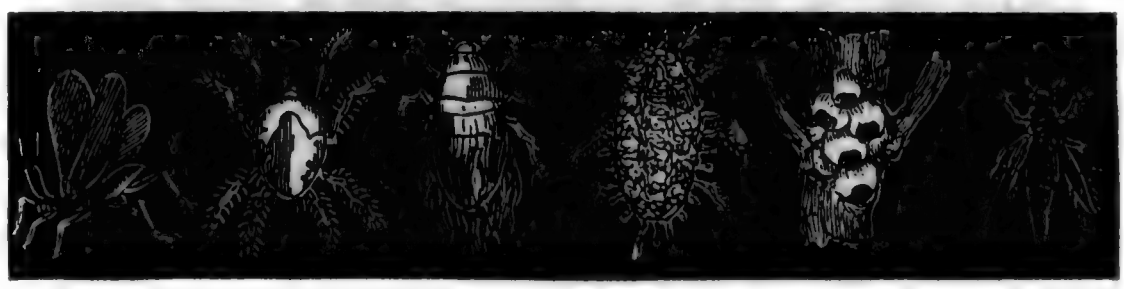
The market is in a much healthier condition than for some weeks. A few dull days last week made things look bad, but the market changed for the better and stock is now cleaning up well. The prospects are bright for a big Easter business. The stock for cutting looks fine and, with ordinarily good weather, there will be a big crop. On account of the recent cold weather, bulbous stock may hold out and be in good condition for Easter. A good many orders are being accepted on this class of stock for Easter shipment. It is a question whether or not violets will be in the market. They are still in fine condition and if the weather is not too warm they may be salable at Easter. Just now there is a glut of double violets and the prices are down. Some extra fine singles are to be had and are cleaning up at good prices. There seems to be enough valley to go around and the prices are quite satisfactory. The new crop of sweet peas is not heavy, but is fancy stock and is selling easily. The old crop is inferior and is hard to move.

Carnations are cleaning up better than they have been and there is no surplus. The prices are medium and the stock is of fair quality, although the percentage of splits is large. Roses are still abundant, although they are moving better than for the last few weeks. The cheaper grades of stock are cleaning up daily, but the fancier grades are not selling so rapidly. Greens are somewhat more plentiful than they have been, but smilax remains scarce. Some extra fine snapdragon is arriving and is selling at 75 cents to $1.50 per bunch.

There seems to be a fine grade of blooming plants on the market this year. The retail stores are featuring this class of stock in the windows and are moving it readily. Indications point to an exceptionally large sale of plants for Easter, and judging by the looks of the stock at present there will be little poor stock on the market.

Various Notes.

Milwaukee florists have had an addition to their ranks in Michael Henry Moore, who opened a store April 1 at 522 Grand avenue. His new shop is excellently arranged and creates a pleasing impression. Mr. Moore is not new in the florists' business, having been associated with the Wisconsin Floral Co. for some time.



Those who attended the Philadelphia show from Milwaukee were: A. MacDonald, manager of Gimbel's flower department; Miss Rose Simler, of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., and Miss Ida Baumgarten.

Among the visitors in Milwaukee last week were: Miss Meyer, with the Rentschler Floral Co., Madison, Wis.; Mrs. H. A. Levenhagen, Manitowoc, Wis.; O. Sylvester, Oconomowoc, Wis., and W. Desmond, with the L. S. Donaldson Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

H. J. S.

Reading, Pa.—November 2, 3 and 4 have been selected as the dates for the second flower show to be given by the Reading Florists' Association. One of the features of the show will be the orchid exhibition.

WHAT THRIP JUICE No. 2 WILL DO

CHRYSANTHEMUMS ON LONG ISLAND.

Mr. Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y. Woodside, L. I., N. Y., Oct. 20, 1913.

Dear Sir: I find your Thrip Juice No. 2 a good thing to use on Chrysanthemums. Kindly send bill for the last gallon shipped, and oblige.

Yours respectfully. (Signed) VICTOR S. DORVAL SONS.

THRIPS ON CARNATIONS.

Ed. American Florist:

Please advise how to remedy the trouble affecting Carnation buds mailed under separate cover. Kansas. F. W. F.

The Carnation buds are badly infested with Thrips. Upon opening up two or three of the buds we found them alive with these pests. Thrips are one of the worst enemies that Carnation growers have to deal with, and the only way to fight them successfully is to get after them by spraying the plants regularly with the Nicotine preparations as soon as they are planted into the houses from the field and keep at it continually until weather conditions will allow for fumigation. For stubborn cases we spray with HAMMOND'S THRIP JUICE No. 2, applied as per directions on the cans. This is an oily substance and will cause the foliage of the plants to look a lighter green, but we have never found it to harm the foliage at all. C. W. JOHNSON.

THRIP JUICE NO. 2 ON ROSES.

Hopeland Estate, Staatsburg, N. Y., Dec. 20, 1913.

Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sirs: I have used your THRIP JUICE No. 2 on outdoor Roses, also Roses indoors, as well as Bay Trees and other hard-wooded stock, and can say it is a most efficient remedy for Scale, Mealy Bug and Thrips. Very truly yours,

(Signed) CHAS. HARMAN, Supt.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 7, 1914.

Col. Wm. Sharp, for more than twenty-five years grower for Samuel Murray, says: "I have found THRIP JUICE No. 2 very effective for White Scale on Cattleyas and variegated Pineapples, Brown Scale on Ficus and Palms.

While several applications may be necessary, it is cheaper in the end than Nicotine and far more effective.

Our farmer finds it a cure for the Curculio on Plums. Send along five gallons as before." W. M.

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 17, 1915.

Schmidt & Botley Co. endorse THRIP JUICE No. 2 for killing the White Fly. They believe in prevention, and took steps at once to destroy it.

Gustav Schneider says he uses THRIP JUICE No. 2 regularly, more as a preventive, and never had a finer lot of Chrysanthemums than last season. At one time the plants were affected with rust, but one or two sprayings brought them around.

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 14, 1914.

Robert Lockerbie, many years with the Robt. Craig Co., and now grower for the Charlotte Cut Flower Co., says he has used all makes of Insecticides and is now using THRIP JUICE No. 2 for Thrips on Chrysanthemums and Carnations. The dilution of one to forty is proper. Sprayed on cloudy days, every week or ten days, left on foliage for 48 hours, it never fails to kill the insect and the slight discoloration on foliage is offset by its usefulness. W. M.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24¾ inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

The Market.

Business was steady all week and an improvement over that of the week previous. Stock of all kinds is plentiful, but there is no glut as yet in the market, although it has been expected. The supply of roses is increasing and there is a marked improvement in the quality. The demand is mostly for medium length stock and short stock is well cleaned up. There is not a strong demand for the fancy grades.

Carnations have been plentiful and at present are the finest this market has seen this season, as regards size, length of stem and color. Good sweet peas were short on several occasions last week. These this spring are the best that the growers have ever produced. Easter lilies are plentiful, in fact, almost too plentiful, as some of them are being wasted, and more are expected this week. Violets are about gone and few were received last week. Bulbous stock is not any too plentiful. Jonquils and daffodils were the scarcest last week.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Elberfield were at the National Flower Show.

Henry Kusik & Co. have been exceedingly busy all winter in the wire department. They are working overtime nearly every day. They now are receiving a nice lot of roses daily from Council Bluffs, Ia.

Jacob Hepting is sending in some extra fine Enchantress carnations. He has had a good crop of these all winter.

The Rosery is displaying a fine line of bulbous stock, both in pots and cut, and good stock is expected for Easter sales.

A. F. Barbe is cutting large quantities of carnations, lilies and miscellaneous stock. He has the framework of his new rose house completed.

Costello Moore had a big run on funeral work last week.

Biedermann & Son had another busy week of decorations, which is unusual during the Lenten season.

Hayes Ricker, head grower for the Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., was in the city last week and he reported that all the Kellogg houses are in fine shape. This company is contemplating the erection of more houses this year.

C. F. Reinhart is sending in a special lot of Butterfly sweet peas. He is going to build another house this summer.

Arthur Newell says he believes Easter has already hit him, as he is disposing of a large quantity of pot plants, as well as Tausendschon roses in pots.

Visitors last week were Morris Le Vine, of Lion & Co., New York; R. G. Vickery, of Horton, Kan. W. J. B.

DIRT BANDS

Very soon every grower will be making free use of dirt bands for the growing of all plants. Certainly, no florist can afford to pass them by. They are time and money savers, producing better plants at less cost and with less labor. It simply is a question of getting the best band.

Our new READY-USE dirt band tells its own story. Send a postal for free samples and see how it does it. It comes to you ready to set the plant in, which means saving of very valuable time required to fold the ordinary strips of paper commonly offered for bands.

We make plain bands, too, from high-grade, hard finish stock. Samples will be sent. Compare them with others and put them to any test. It is not how cheap, but how good, is our motto.

PRICES OF PLAIN SQUARE DIRT BANDS.

	1000	5000	10,000	20,000	50,000	100,000

The Market.

Business during the first half of the week was rather poor, but during the latter half a heavy demand for stock for funeral work created some activity in the wholesale market and prevented a surplus of stock. The warm, clear weather of the last few days has opened stock hurriedly and the supply, in general, has increased. The crop of carnations has improved wonderfully and they have been plentiful for the first time this season, but at the close of business on Saturday the wholesale stores had little of anything left for sale. Roses also are coming in more heavily, but, though pink and some other colors have been plentiful enough, more white could have been sold. Lilies were in good supply and sold well. There was an extra demand for cattleyas and valley and both were hard to get. Sweet peas are arriving in unlimited quantities and the prices have fallen; many were sold to the street fakers. Daffodils are shy and meet with a good demand. Greens are becoming scarcer and the prices are all out of proportion to either quality or quantity.

Lexington Market was fairly abloom on Saturday, April 1, as the warm, springlike weather brought in many growers who do not attend during the winter. Business was good and a fine collection of pot plants was to be found. This open flower market is a feature of the city and no city of like size has anything like it. On Easter Saturday it is a Mecca for all who live here, not only those who wish to buy but many thousands who are merely sight-seers.

Various Notes.

John Cook was exceptionally busy with funeral orders for a prominent society lady who died last week. Many handsome designs were sent out and it was necessary to work both night and day to get the work out on time.

John P. Wilheim had an extraordinarily large lot of bulbous stock this season, all of which he handled to good advantage.

Jos. S. Merritt and Miss Helen V. Lynch were married at Colgate, Md., March 29. Mr. Merritt is one of the rising young florists of this section and is well known as a carnation grower. After the ceremony the couple motored over to Philadelphia and spent a few days at the show; then they left for a stay at Atlantic City. On their return they will reside at Colgate.

Visitors this week: Daniel Weber, of Oakland, Md.; George Hermann, of New York.

Baltimore was well represented at the Philadelphia show. Over fifty visitors from this city attended. The majority have returned and all speak highly of the show and of those who promoted it. W. F. E.

Make Customers Successful with Your Plants —

Your customers buy potted plants. Often they wither and die and you are blamed for the failure. It's simply because plant food is lacking. Your customers don't want fertilizers with offensive odors. They need Odorless Fertilo that does not mar the fragrance of the flowers. Just the material for Lawns, Flowers, Shrubs and Small Gardens. You can sell several cans of Odorless Fertilo to each customer who buys potted plants and several bags to those with gardens. Make them more successful and they will become flower enthusiasts.

FERTILO is nature's pure plant food and combines all the essential elements required by plant life: Ammonia, Phosphoric Acid, Bone, Phosphate of Lime and Potash. Makes the necessary Humus for enriching the soil and is also an excellent Insecticide.

FERTILO is odorless, will not get hard and lumpy. Put up in handy containers in 1 and 5-lb. sizes, and in 10 and 80-lb. bags. The 1-lb. package will fertilize 10 gallons of earth for potted plants or 50 sq. ft. of surface. Retails for 25c. Full and simple directions printed on each package.

Florists, truckers and landscape gardeners recommend Odorless Fertilo.

Send us 6c in stamps to cover postage and we will send you free sample of the 1-lb. package, together with full particulars, and quote you our liberal terms to florists.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

Prof. Burt L. Hartwell, of the state experimental station at Kingston, was the speaker at the public meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, March 28, his subject being "How Plants Feed." There was an exhibit of Formosa lilies by President Urquhart, who is gardener for Governor Beeckman. The spikes were eight feet in height, with twenty-three to twenty-five buds and blooms to a stem, grown from bulbs furnished by the Stumpp & Walter Co., New York. He was awarded the society silver medal.

At the next meeting, April 11, V. A. Vanicek, of the Rhode Island Nursery, will read a paper on the propagation of shrubs.

Various Notes.

Greenhouses are to be erected on the grounds recently acquired by J. J. Van Allen on Ochre Point avenue.

Henry J. Hass, who for several years has been in the florists' business, will devote his time to vegetables in the future.

Newport was represented at the National Flower Show at Philadelphia last week by Oscar Schultz, William Gray and Patrick F. Reynolds.

CORFU, N. Y.

It is some distance from Des Plaines, Illinois, where our factory is located, but still the celebrated Garland Cast Iron Gutter has had a friend there for over 14 years, as you will discover when reading the following letter:

DAVID J. SCOTT
WHOLESALE FLORIST

Garland Manufacturing Co.,
Des Plaines, Ill.

Corfu, N. Y., February 23, 1916.

Gentlemen:—

Will you please quote me price on 90 feet of Garland Cast Iron Gutter with drain and drip opening at one end? To be drilled for 16-in. width glass on one side and 12-in. on the other. This is to replace a wood gutter.

I am pleased to say that the 750 feet of Garland Gutter used by my father in the erection of a range of glass in 1902 is apparently in as good condition as the day it was put up.

Very truly yours,
DAVID J. SCOTT.

The quality of our materials is in keeping with our gutters and we wish to again call your attention to the fact that we make the greenhouse complete, either steel or wood, and will greatly appreciate it if you will let us figure on your next house or houses. Estimates and plans cheerfully submitted.

TRI-CITIES.

The Market.

Market conditions last week were about normal, with no particular rush except when funeral work created a special demand. A good supply of stock is to be had. Roses are abundant, as are carnations and all bulbous stock. Violets are not so good, owing to the warm weather. Sweet peas are plentiful, but, as a rule, are rather short-stemmed. Easter lilies are plentiful and of good quality. Some calls are coming in for pansies and other hardy plants, and the next week will show a good demand for this line of stock, if weather conditions remain favorable.

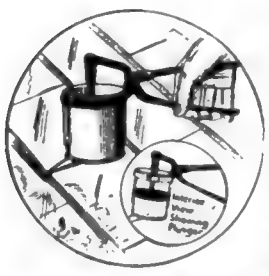
Various Notes.

An effort is being made to have the florists close on Sundays and make no deliveries. The movement meets with much favorable comment, but whether it will work out or not remains to be seen. The question will probably be brought up before the Tri-City Florists' Club at its next meeting.

Ludwig Stapp is making a business trip to Chicago, to be gone for a few days.

William Knees, of Moline, has his outdoor sweet peas planted. He reports trade conditions good, with considerable funeral work and stock cleaning up well.

Henry Gaethje, of Rock Island, has a fine lot of antirrhinums in crop, but the demand is not up to what the quality of the blooms would warrant. Otherwise trade is good.



Miss Rose Waltman, of Davenport, finds trade rather spasmodic. Some days she is rushed with funeral work; at other times business is somewhat slow, but it averages well.

Mr. Forber, of Forber & Bird, Davenport, says trade is fair, with no particular rush in any line. W. G.

Midland, Mich.—When the people of Midland want to boost their town, they provide the newspapers with a supplementary sheet featuring the principal industries and prominent citizens of the place. W. E. Thayer and his range of 10,000 feet recently came in for a considerable bit of this welcome publicity.

The Market.

Business keeps up well and there is a good supply of stock coming in. Roses are more plentiful and some extra fine stock is to be seen, especially of Sunburst, Ophelia and Richmond, which are showing up well and give indications for good crops from now until after Easter. Beauties are scarce and the demand for them is not extra heavy. It seems that there is a falling off in both the supply and demand for Beauties, and it begins to look as if some other variety will have to replace them in a short time. Carnations are fine, but the quantity is a trifle small and they are cleared nicely as a rule.

Lilies are more plentiful and many are disposed of in funeral work, which continues heavy. Bulbous stock is not so plentiful and it looks as if there will be a shortage later on. Sweet peas hold their own both in quantity received and sold, and as a rule they are about equal to the demand. The quality is good. Valley is scarce, with the demand varying at times. Sometimes it is hard to get enough to fill orders.

Potted plants have been moving nicely and many of them have been disposed of. Azaleas, lilacs, hyacinths, tulips, spiræas, rhododendrons, primulas, etc., come in for their share of the business. Greens are exceedingly scarce and there will be no surplus for some time to come. There will have to be an increase in plantings of greens to meet the demand, which is considerably heavier.

Various Notes.

Messrs. Livingston and Brownwell, of the Livingston Seed Co., attended the show at Philadelphia, but at the present writing they have made no report of their trip.

Samuel Graff is going to move from his present location about June 1 to the opposite side of the street, a little to the east.

Underwood Bros. report business as being good, especially in funeral work, of which they have had their share.

E. Metzmaier reports heavy business in funeral work and says he has had no surplus bulbous stock this season.

The Wilson Seed Co. is busy in all lines and looks for a good spring business.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is hustling to have things in shape for the spring rush and reports a better supply of geraniums than ever before, with other stock looking well.

The Stephens & Son auto delivery is busy with city orders, and the store force has everything in readiness for the spring rush. J. M.

WALLFLOWERS UNDER GLASS.

Please give me brief directions for the culture of Cheiranthus Cheiri, or wallflower, in the greenhouse.

M. B.—N. Y.

The wall flower, or Cheiranthus Cheiri, is one of the many spring-flowering border plants that may be handled profitably in the greenhouse. The double forms are best for greenhouse culture. Although a perennial, it is best treated as a biennial. For winter-flowering, seeds should be sown in July in shallow pans or boxes filled with clean, sandy garden soil, free from manure. As soon as the seeds have germinated, which will be in a few days, the seedlings should be given an airy position. If they are in the greenhouse, keep a somewhat moist atmosphere. As soon as the plants are large enough to handle, pot into 2-inch or 2¼-inch pots and keep potting until 6-inch or 7-inch pots are required, never allowing the plants to become pot-bound. The soil should be a rich, heavy loam. Wallflowers, like stocks, should be potted quite firmly.

When the pots are fairly well filled with roots, which should be along in September, they may be given, for a few weeks only, a weekly application of diluted liquid manure. When the cool weather comes, they should be placed in a temperature of 40 to 45 degrees until about six or eight weeks before the required flowering period. The plants, even when not growing vigorously, should never be allowed to become dry, or they will lose their leaves. To bring the plants into flower, place them in a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees. Syringe every bright day to keep the foliage in a healthy condition. Fumigating once in three weeks will keep the plants free from aphis.

Half Iron Frame Talk No. 3.
Cement Sides.

OUR last talk, you remember, was about board sides. Now for a chat about cement ones.

Of course, we both admit that in the end, cement sides will cost you a good bit less than wooden ones. Once up, they are up to stay and you can forget about them for the rest of your life.

From the illustration, you see how the wrought iron post is thoroughly embedded in the concrete. The sill can be of wood or cast iron; but it does not seem quite the thing to build a wall that will last for a lifetime and then put a wood sill on top of it, that sooner or later is bound to rot out.

However, that's up to you—we will gladly sell you either.

Now let your eye slide up to that eave plate. Notice the rugged strength of that fitting (one on each side of the post) that secures the eave plate to the post.

Notice the drip gutter and the pipe that leads off all the condensation, and spills it on the wall where it will do no harm.

But before you entirely make up your mind to have one of our Half Iron Frame houses, let us take a careful look at our Full Iron Frame. It's shown in our Supply Book. Send for it.

Filled with enthusiasm as the result of an unexpectedly good season, the Trade is making preparations for a record Easter

NEVER in the history of the flower business has there been a fairer prospect for the Easter trade. Taking the country by and large, prosperity never was greater; there is no unemployment; the people have plenty of money and the high degree of activity in practically all lines of business shows, that the money is being spent freely. Also, in spite of the fact that this is an exceptionally late Easter, weather conditions are such that people are awaiting the arrival of spring with keenest anticipation.

Spring Thoughts of Flowers.

Easter, coming so late, almost surely will bring bright, warm spring weather and the press of purchasers April 22 promises to break all records in this trade.

Christmas was excellent with nearly all florists who retail, business up to Ash Wednesday was rather better than in any recent year, and during Lent demand for flowers has been ahead of ordinary records. The result has been that the trade has undertaken Easter preparations with an unusual degree of enthusiasm. Easter for many years was the big day in the florists' business; recently it has been equaled, if not eclipsed, by Christmas sales, but the energy that is being put into preparations for next week's selling promises this year to put Easter back at the head of the procession of special flower days.

Plans for Three Busy Days.

As the flower business has broadened, florists who retail have given increased attention to the advance preparations for special days. It has come to be recognized that the sales for such a day as Easter, once limited by the supply of stock, of recent years have been limited principally by one's ability to wait on trade. In spite of the best efforts of the retailers, the public persists in putting off purchasing until the last moment. One retail florist, in studying his sales records, finds that he does rather less than the normal business for the first three days of the week preceding Easter; that by Wednesday the buyers are nibbling, but that the Easter sales virtually all are made in the last three days. His record shows that he does more business on the Saturday preceding Easter than in all the rest of the week, while Friday easily doubles Thursday's sales. Notations in his memorandum book, a volume every florist should own and use, indicate that almost always a pleasant Easter Saturday sees many customers turned away because of the inability to wait on them promptly.

Extra Help and Space.

The problem, then, is to devise the means of waiting on an increased number of customers during the short hours of the Easter rush. To a certain extent the pressure is relieved by having all stock marked in plain figures and employing a number of extra salespersons. The prices of all cut flowers are plainly written on a large blackboard in the workroom, while a wood label carrying the price mark is in every plant. Extra help capable of taking orders when merchandise is thus plainly priced usually can be had and solves one part of the problem. The question then is to obtain sufficient selling space. If this is unobtainable, it imposes a limit on what the florist can do in a day. Often, however, a neighboring store is vacant and can be used for plant sales. With such an annex a florist is in position to double his day's business by advertising. And everybody recognizes that now there is so much stock in the markets, advertising is one of the big facts of business that cannot be overlooked.

Big Stock Being Bought.

Perhaps the plainest evidence of the preparations being made for this year's Easter business lies in the orders now being shipped in hot haste by dealers in florists' supplies. It is the unanimous report of these enterprising people that the Easter business is breaking all records. Particularly is this true with regard to the basket sales. The increase in the use of baskets for the embellishment of plants is one of the remarkable features in the recent trend of the trade.

Whereas, last year there was a shortage of supplies even though business then was not so good as now, this year there is plenty of merchandise; home manufacture has become the rule and the supply houses are working their factories long hours turning out the goods the trade demands.

It is said by the supply dealers that the average florist is ordering more than double the stock he bought last Easter. Except for a few special Easter novelties no risk is involved, because anything unsold at Easter will be useful in the weeks that will follow.

Baskets and Ribbons Everywhere.

Next to baskets, ribbons are in demand. Perhaps one of the reasons why low-priced baskets are selling so well this season is because crepe paper pot covers, especially in green, are scarce and higher in price. At any rate, a greater proportion than ever before of the Easter pots will be decked out with basket and ribbon.

Many Plants and Fine Ones.

The cold spring has been unexpectedly favorable for the growers of Easter plants and the stock not only is the largest ever provided but the quality is unusually fine. Of course the lily is the leader, as it probably always will be at Easter, but the supply of rose plants has been greatly increased. Tausendschon is the favorite variety and when well done is unexcelled as an Easter pot plant. There also has been a marked increase in the quantity of hydrangeas grown this Easter, the result of increased appreciation of the merits of the new French varieties. Azaleas are rather less abundant than last year, as is bulbous stock, two weeks difference in date and an appreciable difference in the all-season's demand having operated to reduce the supply in this line.

Cut Flowers in Large Supply.

There are obvious reasons why many florists prefer to push plants at each holiday, but at the same time it is far easier to handle cut flowers—and far easier to obtain a supply at the last minute. The principal markets throughout the country this season show a remarkable degree of uniformity with regard to the prospect for Easter stock. The rose will get an unusual part of the holiday business. There are good crops of roses almost everywhere; large in quantity, good in quality. Carnation crops are rather lighter than normal at this season. Bulbous stock, too, is in somewhat less supply than usual. Because of the late date, violets are not as safe as usual and the bulk of the demand for corsage flowers will be turned to sweet peas. Of these the supply is larger and finer than ever before. Of Easter lilies, cut, the supply is increasing so steadily that prices, even in this year of unusual demand, are scarcely so good as in other years.

All the conditions are right for a record run of sales next week.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Newark, N. J.—Harry C. Strobell, proprietor of H. C. Strobell & Co., of 895 Broad street, has filed schedules which give his liabilities as $127,638.29, which includes three mortgages covering the property where the store was located, aggregating $109,000. According to the schedules, the assets are $157,476.27, including a valuation of $150,000 on the property on Broad street. The personal property consists of five greenhouses at 101 Elizabeth avenue, valued at $1,500; the contents of the greenhouses, valued at $2,500, and outstanding accounts amounting to $895, most of which are owing from patrons. Mrs. Gaven Spence holds the first mortgage on the Broad street property, the mortgage being for $80,000. H. D. McCormack, of Kenvil, formerly of Newark, holds the second mortgage of $20,000. Taxes amounting to $4,317 are due the city, as well as assessments amounting to several hundred dollars. Mr. Strobell states that he borrowed $4,000 from his wife and borrowed the loan value of his insurance to pay off the outstanding obligations on his realty holdings. A meeting of the creditors of the concern has been called for April 19, when claims will be filed and a trustee elected. R. B. M.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A meeting of the creditors of Ludwig P. Vollers was held April 7. Mr. Vollers, who conducted his business under the name of Vollers' House of Flowers, at 1725 Chestnut street, places his assets at $5,000 and his liabilities at $12,000. S. S. Pennock was chosen to carry on the business in the interests of the creditors at present.

INDIANA FLORISTS MEET.

Best Session in Years.

The State Florists' Association of Roses Are Most Popular.

Plant Combinations that Can be Offered at Popular Prices are the Big Sellers During the Easter Rush.

Indiana held its monthly meeting at Terre Haute, April 11, and had the banner meeting of the year. The day was an ideal one and members came from all directions. At no meeting in years was every section of the state so well represented. The visitors were met at the station by several of the Terre Haute florists in their motor cars and driven to the Deming hotel, where the crowd congregated. From thence we made the rounds of the retail stores, beginning with the Reiss store. This is one of the newer stores and everything looks spick-and-span and thoroughly up-to-date. From there we went to N. B. & C. E. Stover's store. Mr. Stover's Grand Rapids friends will be pleased to know that he is doing a fine business and is in splendid health. Then we went to the J. Heinl & Son establishment. This is perhaps the oldest retail establishment in the city and ranks among the oldest and best in the state. Everything is thoroughly modern and shows that the junior Heinl is capable of carrying forward successfully the business so well established by his father. Of course Mr. Heinl, Sr., was on hand to bid the visitors welcome in his own genial way.

Perhaps the strongest magnet in drawing the members to Terre Haute was the new Davis greenhouses. For about a year we have had the wonders of this place preached to us, so that everyone was anxious to get a glimpse of the biggest houses in Indiana. Well, to use the expression of some of the members, "they are some houses." Two of them are completed and in operation, cucumbers being grown exclusively, the Davis strain. The enormous dimensions of these houses were almost beyond comprehension by many and the perfect construction was a delight to all. Mr. Davis is extremely modest about the whole thing and seems to think it nothing unusual. Perhaps it isn't, for a Davis.

The Business Session.

We had lunch and the business session in the great service building, where they are packing some hundreds of dozens of cucumbers each day. After the usual formalities of welcome and a nice talk by the president of the local Chamber of Commerce, President Vesey proceeded to the routine business. Perhaps the most gratifying part of this meeting was the addition of seventeen new members. They were: J. Cowan, Ed. Cowan, Thos. Stevenson, N. B. Stover, Edgar Weber and Wm. Dinkel, of Terre Haute; Geo. Blackman, Evansville; C. B. Sayre, La Fayette; A. L. Dunkel, Brazil; H. Richmond, Sullivan C. Hack and Wm. Smith, Indianapolis; Wm. Barnaby, Columbus; R. Newcomb and F. McCabe, Chicago, the latter two being elected to associate membership.

President Vesey announced the following committees to arrange for the A. C. S. convention in Indianapolis next January:

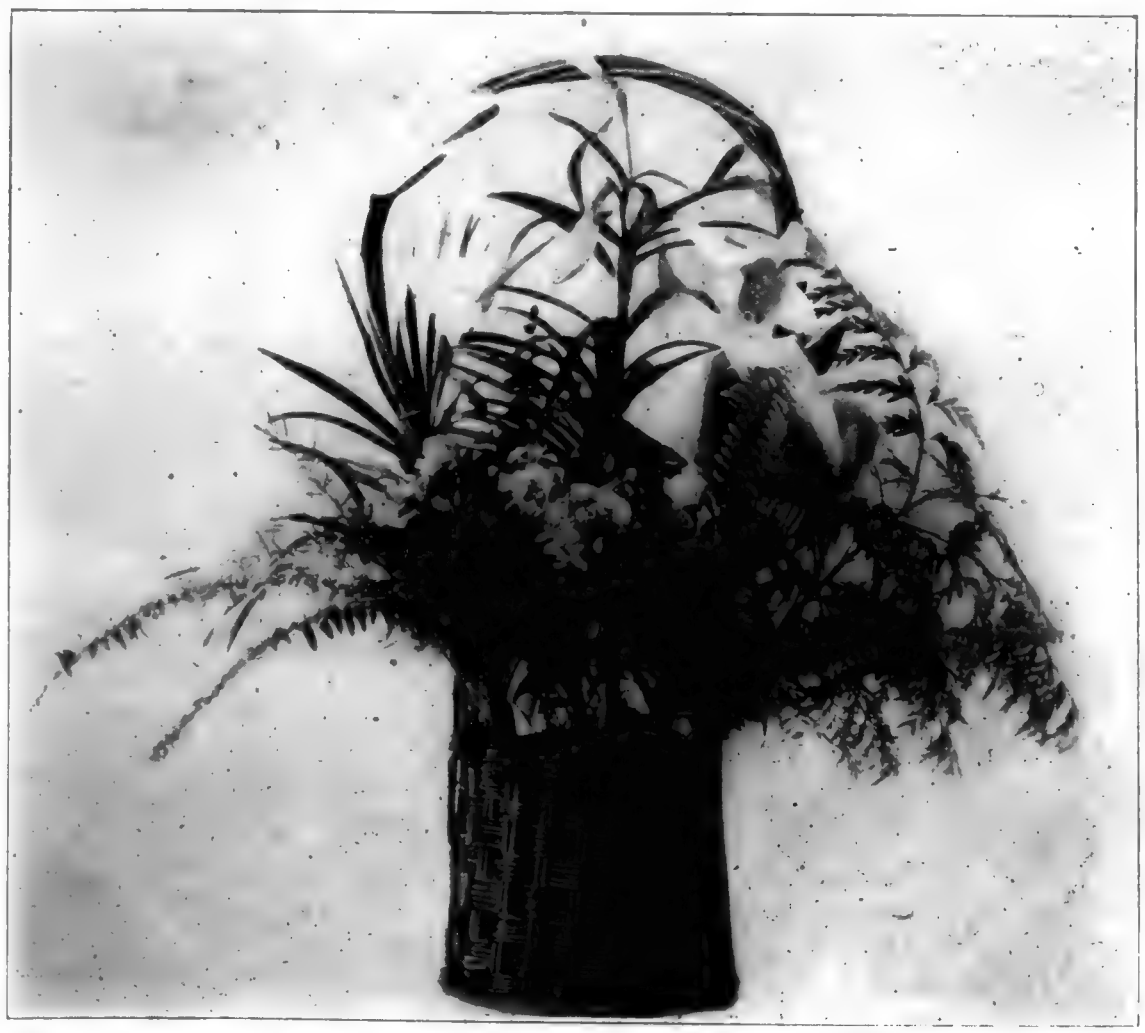
Entertainment—O. E. Steinkamp, I. Bertermann, Jos. H. Hill, Geo. B. Wiegand.

Reception—J. Bertermann, H. Junge, H. Rieman, G. R. Gause, J. Hartje.

Decoration—H. L. Wiegand, H. Pahud, C. Schwomeyer, A. P. Reynolds.

Membership—W. W. Coles, F. Heinl, F. Dorner, W. J. Vesey, J. A. E. Haugh, E. G. Hill.

Table displays—F. H. Lemon, C. C. Thomas, Chas. Pahud, C. H. Bookedis, John Rieman.



It was decided to have the competition for the carnation trophy at the A. C. S. exhibition instead of at the annual meeting of the state association.

President Vesey also announced the Winona outing committee. They are J. D. Connor, Jr., Wm. Terrell and Fred King.

After adjournment we made the rounds of the greenhouses—first to those of the Terre Haute Rose & Carnation Co., then to Cowan Bros., then to F. Wunker & Sons, and finally to Heinl & Weber. At each place a general line of stock is grown for the stores and each showed some excellent Easter material.

Those present were:

O. E. Steinkamp, A. F. J. Baur, H. L. Wiegand, J. Hartje, J. Grande, A. Kempe, Karl Hack, J. A. Grande, Jr., Robt. Ellis, Morris

The Local Club.

I must not fail to mention the Terre Haute Florists' Club. Here is a city of some 75,000 inhabitants which has a florists' club that would be a credit to a city of three times its size. It was largely due to its activities that this meeting was so successful. That this club stands well in the community, too, was shown by the fine writeups that appeared in the local newspapers the same afternoon.

We were pleased to again meet our old friend, Henry Graham, who has returned from the coast, to again take charge of the business after the death of his son, who had bought it from him.

THE EASTER ANNEX.

The easiest way to increase the Easter sales is to rent for a week some vacant store, the nearer one's regular stand the better. Any store will do, even if it contains fixtures used for some other line of business. There is record of a Chicago retailer who last Easter used a store that contained a full equipment of jeweler's showcases left over from a bankruptcy, and Johnston Bros., of Providence, R. I., used a vacant banking-house, as shown in the accompanying illustration. They found it paid so well that before the end of March they had secured a vacant store to help take care of the 1916 Easter rush, which they opine will be the "biggest ever."

FERTILIZER FOR ASTERS.

What is the best commercial fertilizer for asters in heavy soil? How much should be applied to each plant?

M. B.—N. Y.

I would have given the land a liberal dressing of ground lime in the fall and harrowed it in. If this was not done, I would advise using a good potato fertilizer. This need not contain any potash. You can buy some wood ashes to supply that. Apply the fertilizer at the rate of 600 pounds per acre, and 300 to 400 pounds of wood ashes. The amount per plant is hard to determine, but the best plan is to broadcast and harrow it in and not apply a small amount to each plant.

BORDER AROUND FOUNTAIN.

We should like to know what kind of a plant to use for a border around a fountain. The flowers of the plant should be white and it should be about twelve inches high. Your advice will be greatly appreciated. S. B.—N. Y.

Suitable plants would be Vinca rosea alba, which grows a little more than a foot high, however; Begonia gracilis, white; Antirrhinum Tom Thumb, Geranium La Favorite, dwarf zinnia and single petunia. Probably one or another of these may suit you. I am presuming that you want something that will bloom over as long a season as possible.

TIMELY TALKS ON TRADE TOPICS

HOW FLORISTS ADVERTISE.

Improvement is Apparent.

Ask any thoughtful man, not a florist, what to him has been the principal manifestation of progress in the florists' trade the last few years and he will tell you that it has been in florists' use of printers' ink. While there has been consistent improvement in the varieties grown, in the quality of stock produced and in the methods of marketing plants and cut flowers, still the improvement has been so gradual that it has escaped the attention of most of those outside the business, but the man in the street can see the improvement in florists' advertising.

More and Better.

The advertising of flowers has improved in two particulars: First of all, there is more of it than there used to be, and it is a truism that "any advertising is better than no advertising." In the second place, there has been marked improvement in the character of copy used.

The day may not have passed, but it is passing, when a florist will feel that he has advertised merely because he gave a solicitor an order for space. It gradually is coming to be understood that a page of one publication may be like a page of another, so far as dimensions are concerned, but that there is a vast difference when it comes to circulation and a still greater difference in the matter of influence with and upon the readers.

Florists are buying space more intelligently every year, with less regard for the fact that the publisher may need the business and more regard for the pulling powers of the publication itself. And, having bought space in a live publication, they are filling it with better copy.

Coöperation.

One of the popular and profitable methods of flower advertising is the coöperative plan that has been employed so extensively since The Review suggested it as a means of boosting Mothers' day. Reproduced on this page is an advertisement that occupied six full columns of a Detroit newspaper last Easter. It is typical of this class of advertisements—a striking cut, a little general talk that must necessarily be vague and lack in selling power because of the many interests represented, and the names of the subscribing florists. In spite of the limitations imposed by this method of advertising, it has been found generally successful and satisfactory. It will be used in many cities for Easter, for Mothers' day and for Memorial day.

A Co-operative Easter Ad Employed by Fourteen Detroiters.

Copy Calls for Study.

The average florist, just beginning to advertise, is not a proficient copy writer. The tendency is to fill the space with too much picture, too much talk, too little description and too few prices. Where space is cheap the florist frequently does as did the Kansan whose advertisement is reproduced with this article: He bought a full page because it did not represent a large expenditure of money and then he advertised Easter instead of the flowers he had for sale! It's a common mistake.

By way of contrast, note the advertisement of Penn, the Bostonian, whose advertisement faces that of the Kansan on the two following pages of this issue. Each advertisement is reproduced photographically, much reduced in size. The Boston advertisement, in the original, was only half the size of the Kansan's, but it will not take great analytical powers to detect the superiority in the matter of selling quality.

"Will It Sell?"

It never should be forgotten that the reason for advertising is to sell the florists' merchandise. To inspire a desire for the things we have for sale we would better restrict the space given to pictures of the Ascension and Br'er Rabbit and thereby gain opportunity to picture our plants, to describe them attractively but accurately, and to state the prices.

The preparation of copy is one of the most important details of advertising. It should be thought out with care, if the maximum result is to be obtained. First of all, the lay-out or display should be such as to catch the eyes of the greatest possible number of readers. Second, the opening sentences at the top of the ad should be such as to inspire a desire for the things advertised. Third, and perhaps most important of all, the plants and cut flowers offered should be described in terms that will be intelligible to the public. Where immediate, direct sales are aimed at, prices should be quoted. You will know this to be the case if you stop to consider the number of customers who ask the price before buying the article you show them and compare their number with the number of those who buy without asking the price.

Apply This Test.

When you have finished your ad, read it over and ask yourself the question, "Will it sell?" If the answer is "No," don't print it; write another.

Many people think that plants and cut flowers are like Topsy, who "just growed," but in the trade we know that success in growing is in proportion to the mental and physical effort put into the work. It is so in advertising. There are many ways of reaching the buyers and the results are in proportion to the intelligent effort put into the appeal.

BUFFALO'S GREATEST SHOW.

Elks and Florists Coöperate.

The combination of women's and men's fashions and all that goes with them could not outshine the magnitude of the exhibits made by the florists at the flower and fashion show given by the Buffalo B. P. O. E. and the Buffalo Florists' Club at the Broadway Auditorium, Buffalo, April 6 to 12. Charles Schoenhut was chairman of the committee appointed by the Florists' Club to arrange the scheme of decorations and exhibits, and the success of the show in a large measure is credited to the efforts of Mr. Schoenhut.

The carnations, roses, snapdragons, sweet peas, lilies, tulips, daffodils, narcissi, azaleas, rhododendrons, pansies, spiræas and hydrangeas exhibited by the florists were the finest specimens ever beheld in Buffalo. The judges were Henry F. Elbers, of the South park conservatory, George Kayser, of the Delaware park conservatory, and Charles Keitsch, of Humboldt park, all of Buffalo.

The Awards.

The awards were:

SHORTAGE OF PARIS GREEN.

With the prices of all raw materials soaring, manufacturers of Paris green have cut down their production considerably, and, with the season of strong demand only a few weeks away, express doubt that they will have a sufficient stock on hand to fill normal requirements. The price of Paris green, which stood at 12 cents a pound a year ago, has advanced to 32 cents, and if the expected shortage develops will probably go higher, but manufacturers do not believe that this will affect the demand to any great extent, as the product is a necessity. They point out that the price has not risen in proportion to the increased costs of manufacture, and say that every effort will be made to prevent inflation of the market through speculation or otherwise.

The four main raw materials required in the manufacture of Paris green are sulphate of copper, or blue vitriol, arsenic, soda ash and acetic acid. All are scarce at the present time and held more dearly than during other years. The following table shows the price per pound of these materials before the war, a year ago and now:

	July 25, 1914	April 1, 1915	April 5, 1916
Acetic acid	1½@1 3/5	1¾@ 2	6¼@6½
Arsenic	3 @ 3½	4¼@ 4½	6½@7
Blue vitriol	4½@ 4¾	6 @ 6¼	19½@20
Soda ash, 100 lbs.	75 @87½	72 @80	3.50@...

The chief uses of Paris green are as an insecticide in connection with the potato, tobacco and cotton crops, with the consumption by potato growers representing more than two-thirds of the total.

POINTERS ON DAHLIAS.

[Following are extracts from a lecture on dahlias by Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the American Dahlia Society, delivered at the Fourth National Flower Show, Philadelphia, March 30, 1916.]

The most suitable soil for growing dahlias is a sandy loam. Heavy soils may be lightened by the use of coal ashes, sand or anything that will help to make the soil porous. Whenever possible, the land for dahlias should be plowed or spaded up the previous fall. The action of freezing helps to make the soil more pliable.

At White Marsh, Md., we use little manure, preferring bone meal, with a small addition of potash, to manure. If the ground is spaded in the fall or early winter the bone could well be mixed with the soil at that time. In using manure we would rather use it as a mulch, put on any time after the plants or roots are set. Any kind of material used for mulch around the plants will retain moisture and save watering, and if watered will keep the soil from baking. By using bone we obtain a more stocky growth and more flowers; at least such is our experience.

June Planting Best.

We find that the dahlias planted in June invariably give us the finest, or exhibition, blooms. The early plantings have the extremely hot weather to contend with, often causing an indifferent growth; the stalks becoming hard and the plant forms a mass of small, weak limbs, with poor flowers, if any, and they are more subject to disease and insect pests.

This condition can only be remedied by a vigorous use of the knife, cutting back hard so as to cause the plant to make a new and strong growth. These troubles are often ours, but there are some years in which there are exceptions. You now may ask, why do we have these troubles? My advice is, do as I say, not as I do, as it generally takes us six weeks to plant our own crop, even by using machinery to plant.

To Fight the Insects.

The dahlia is not exempt from insect pests, any more than other flowers, and the growers will find that a few sprayings, especially during a drought, are an advantage. A tobacco solution, soap, almost any insecticide will do, except for the black aster bug, which feeds on the flowers alone. If the bugs are not too numerous, hand-picking is the best remedy. The bugs can easily be seen, as they seldom touch the dark-colored flowers, but always the white or the pink.

To have the dahlias show to the best advantage, they should be tied to a strong stake. To obtain large flowers, thin them out when too many limbs start out from the stool, or main stalk; also disbud them.

Mr. Vincent's Selection.

We consider the following the best varieties in the six classes given: Six best peony-flowered dahlias — Bertha von Suttner, Geisha, Germania, Glory of Baarn, Queen Wilhelmina, Queen Emma.

Six best show dahlias—A. D. Livoni, Chas. Lanier, Ethel Maule, Souv. Mme. Maureau, Yellow Duke, Zebra.

Nine best cactus dahlias—Countess of Lonsdale, Golden Gate, J. H. Jackson, Kalif, Marguerite Bouchon, Rene Cayeux, Sweetbriar, Wodan, Wolfgang von Goethe.

Six best pompon dahlias—Alewine, Allie Mourey, Indian Chief, Little Beauty, Little May, Snowclad.

Six best decorative dahlias—Delice, Hortulanus Fiet, Jack Rose, Jeanne Charmet, Le Grand Manitou, Papa Charmet.

Six single century dahlias—Ami Barrillet, Fringed Twentieth Century, Rose-pink Century, Sensation, Setting Sun, White Century.

this to be the case if you stop to consider the number of customers who ask the price before buying the article you show them and compare their number with the number of those who buy without asking the price.

Apply This Test.

When you have finished your ad, read it over and ask yourself the question, "Will it sell?" If the answer is "No," don't print it; write another.

Many people think that plants and cut flowers are like Topsy, who "just growed," but in the trade we know that success in growing is in proportion to the mental and physical effort put into the work. It is so in advertising. There are many ways of reaching the buyers and the results are in proportion to the intelligent effort put into the appeal.

BUFFALO'S GREATEST SHOW.

Elks and Florists Coöperate.

The combination of women's and men's fashions and all that goes with them could not outshine the magnitude of the exhibits made by the florists at the flower and fashion show given by the Buffalo B. P. O. E. and the Buffalo Florists' Club at the Broadway Auditorium, Buffalo, April 6 to 12. Charles Schoenhut was chairman of the committee appointed by the Florists' Club to arrange the scheme of decorations and exhibits, and the success of the show in a large measure is credited to the efforts of Mr. Schoenhut.

The carnations, roses, snapdragons, sweet peas, lilies, tulips, daffodils, narcissi, azaleas, rhododendrons, pansies, spiræas and hydrangeas exhibited by the florists were the finest specimens ever beheld in Buffalo. The judges were Henry F. Elbers, of the South park conservatory, George Kayser, of the Delaware park conservatory, and Charles Keitsch, of Humboldt park, all of Buffalo.

The Awards.

The awards were:

One hundred pink sweet peas—David Scott, of Corfu, N. Y., first; C. F. Guenther, of Hamburg, N. Y., second; David Scott, third.

SHORTAGE OF PARIS GREEN.

With the prices of all raw materials soaring, manufacturers of Paris green have cut down their production considerably, and, with the season of strong demand only a few weeks away, express doubt that they will have a sufficient stock on hand to fill normal requirements. The price of Paris green, which stood at 12 cents a pound a year ago, has advanced to 32 cents, and if the expected shortage develops will probably go higher, but manufacturers do not believe that this will affect the demand to any great extent, as the product is a necessity. They point out that the price has not risen in proportion to the increased costs of manufacture, and say that every effort will be made to prevent inflation of the market through speculation or otherwise.

The four main raw materials required in the manufacture of Paris green are sulphate of copper, or blue vitriol, arsenic, soda ash and acetic acid. All are scarce at the present time and held more dearly than during other years. The following table shows the price per pound of these materials before the war, a year ago and now:

	July 25, 1914	April 1, 1915	April 5, 1916
Acetic acid	1½@1 3/5	1¾@ 2	6¼@6½
Arsenic	3 @ 3½	4¼@ 4½	6½@7
Blue vitriol	4½@ 4¾	6 @ 6¼	19½@20
Soda ash, 100 lbs.	75 @87½	72 @80	3.50@...

The chief uses of Paris green are as an insecticide in connection with the potato, tobacco and cotton crops, with the consumption by potato growers representing more than two-thirds of the total.

POINTERS ON DAHLIAS.

[Following are extracts from a lecture on dahlias by Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the American Dahlia Society, delivered at the Fourth National Flower Show, Philadelphia, March 30, 1916.]

The most suitable soil for growing dahlias is a sandy loam. Heavy soils may be lightened by the use of coal ashes, sand or anything that will help to make the soil porous. Whenever possible, the land for dahlias should be plowed or spaded up the previous fall. The action of freezing helps to make the soil more pliable.

At White Marsh, Md., we use little manure, preferring bone meal, with a small addition of potash, to manure. If the ground is spaded in the fall or early winter the bone could well be mixed with the soil at that time. In

Flowers for the Home Church and Individual

AS the Easter time approaches we think of the risen Lord, the purest and most beautiful of all, and as we think of Him and celebrate the rising, why not let everything be looking the very best possible, be the most cheerful; let every church, every home be blooming with Beauty and let the air be filled with sweet perfume from the fragrant flowers.

Easter also heralds the spring time, the awakening of nature, when the buds begin to burst and the birds begin to pour out their joyous notes upon the air to greet us on their return. It is very fitting that we celebrate the occasion with flowers. God's most beautiful gift to man.

We have been preparing to supply the flower loving people of our city with reasonable, strong flowers and appropriate growing plants for this occasion. We have the largest display of cut flowers and growing plants we have ever displayed—beautiful jars of Carnations, Roses, Tulips, Hyacinths and every kind of flower appropriate for Easter, including those beautiful Easter Lilies, to please the eye and touch the heart of every lover of flowers. We have a gorgeous supply of these potted plants and can make delivery at any time.

Flowers for the absent ones shipped in our large green houses—they arrive fresh cut and packed . . . [illegible] . . . in perfect condition. Let us all remember those who are not with us on Easter Sunday, that our thoughts are of them—mother, father, brother, sister, sweetheart, friends and all should be remembered on Easter.

NEW YORK FLOWER SHOW GREAT SUCCESS

IN beauty, attendance, quality of exhibits and financial success the New York exhibition of 1916, which opened April 5 and closed April 12, surpassed all its predecessors and, if the consensus of opinion can be expressed in a sentence, the educational results of this magnificent show will redound to the honor and development of floriculture for many a year to come. For the results achieved too much praise scarcely can be given Chairman F. R. Pierson, Secretary John Young, Manager Arthur Herrington and the energetic committee, while the publicity work of Messrs. Colwell and Korbel was unusually successful. No flower show in New York ever was advertised so widely, and the recognition and illustrations in the large city dailies, with their complete daily records, kept the public continuously interested to the close. The rain and snow of April 8 and 9 did not seem to lessen the enthusiasm or attendance, although the perfect spring weather of the first half of the present week unquestionably was much in favor of the show.

The Metropolitan Method.

The New York management has profited by the lessons of other years and the show of 1916 was planned along somewhat different lines than those prior to 1915. In the first place, the Horticultural Society of New York, with its membership of millionaires, was kept in the foreground and little publicly was said about the participation of the Florists' Club. In arranging the premium list numbers of uninteresting classes were eliminated and extra money placed on certain classes of more spectacular character, such as rose gardens, rock gardens, orchid groups and groups of flowering plants arranged for effect. The result was to reduce the crowding, to improve the arrangement and the general effect, while adding to the social atmosphere, for the exhibits came largely from the estates, many of the classes being open to private growers only. In giving out awards to the daily papers the names of the estate owners were used, instead of the names of the gardeners.

The Tea Garden.

Of great assistance in attracting the social set was the Red Cross tea garden, which was a drawing card last year as well. The interest taken by the society ladies and the attendance of notables representative of the various countries, in behalf of which the ladies worked so successfully, combined to make this a principal factor in attracting the desired element. The orchestra of ladies also was a continuous inspiration.

The Principal Features.

The principal features of the show were the rose gardens, the rock gardens, the wonderful banks of orchids, the gardeners' groups of flowering plants, the artistic displays of the retail florists, and the elaborate display of the city park department.

Brooklyn day added heavily to the attendance and did credit to the City of Churches and to A. L. Miller, to whose efficient management the success of the demonstration may be attributed.

The Rose Gardens.

The rose gardens, four of them, each covering 500 square feet of space, were perhaps the most admired exhibits in the show. The view of these from the balconies was entrancing. F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, secured first place with an arrangement similar to its display in 1915. The color scheme was largely pink and the roses used were Dorothy Perkins, Crimson Rambler, Tausendschon, Excelsa, Jessie, Orleans and Baby Dorothy. A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., won second honors. One feature of this garden was a summer house covered with Hiawatha roses. Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., won third prize and Julius Roehrs Co., of Rutherford, was fourth, but each exhibit was wonderfully beautiful and distinctive and all deserved the general praise and appreciation they received.

Rock and Bulb Gardens.

There were three rock gardens, more elaborate than any heretofore staged in this country. The winners were: A. N. Pierson, Inc., first; Bobbink & Atkins, second; Julius Roehrs Co., third. These displays were next in general popularity to the rose gardens and all of them elaborate and distinctive. Carefully arranged paths, fountains and waterfalls added to their beauty. Each garden covered 300 square feet and numberless plants, ferns and evergreens were used in their construction.

There was only one Dutch bulb garden and the $250 prize was awarded the John Scheepers Co. The arrangement was rectangular, with a five-pointed star center, of daffodils, hyacinths, narcissi and Darwin tulips, with edgings of dwarf boxwood. A glimpse of the garden is seen in the illustration from a gallery view.

The Retail Displays.

The exhibits by the retailers, who it should be noted were asked to buy trade space for their displays, were below expectation in numbers, but beyond criticism as to artistic arrangement and beauty. The enterprising exhibitors richly deserve the praise they received.

The exhibit of G. E. M. Stumpp occupied half of the entire left side of the retail section and was in three adjoining booths featuring landscape work, novelties and floral arrangements in great variety. It was a most elaborate and enterprising venture. Opposite Mr. Stumpp's display was Alfred Kottmiller's booth, artistically decorated and in charge of competent assistants, with Mr. Kottmiller himself frequently presiding. At the left of the entrance Max Schling had a large space, roped off on each side, the platform covered with illustrations of his skill in Easter basket arrangement, bouquets, etc. The prominent space of this exhibit made it of special value as to publicity.

The Orchid Groups.

The orchid display was the largest and finest ever seen at an exhibition in America. It was given a section of the hall apart from other exhibits and was one of the notable features of the show. There was only one exhibitor for the group covering 200 square feet, but the award of first prize to Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, was well deserved. In the class for commercial groups covering fifty feet Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., were first. In the private gardeners' groups Arthur Cooley, J. R. Mossman and S. G. Milosy were well represented. The awards on orchids were:

PRIVATE GROWERS.

Group of plants in variety, covering fifty square feet—Arthur N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass., first; J. R. Mossman, gardener to Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J., second.

Specimen plant, any variety other than above—James Stuart, gardener to Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y., first; S. G. Milosy, second.

Flowering Plants.

There were five groups of flowering plants arranged for effect by private gardeners, each occupying 300 square feet. These were one of the striking features of the exhibition, a showing the like of which never has been seen in this country. First prize went to John Canning, gardener for Adolph Lewisohn, of Ardsley, N. Y. Second prize fell to J. W. Smith, gardener to F. E. Lewis, of Ridgefield, Conn. R. M. Johnson, gardener to W. B. Thompson, of Yonkers, won third honors. P. W. Popp, gardener to Mrs. H. Darlington, of Mamaroneck, and E. Fardel, gardener to Mrs. Booth, of Great Neck, L. I., also staged beautiful displays. All were artistic and original groupings and the many private gardeners from all parts of the east were especially interested and loud in praise of the ability of their brethren.

The awards on plants in flower were:

COMMERCIAL GROWERS.

Roses and Carnations.

The rose and carnation exhibits have never been excelled in quality at any exhibition and on their special days the largest crowds of the week were seen.

Much interest attached to the ability of French & Salm, of Union Grove, Wis., to repeat their Philadelphia exploit by capturing first prize on Mrs. Russell over 1,000 miles from home. L. A. Noe, of Madison, N. J., was first in both classes for Beauties, F. R. Pierson Co. being second. F. R. Pierson was first for fifty Richmond and for Francis Scott Key. L. B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, N. J., was first for fifty Sunburst. Bedford Flower Co., of Bedford Hills, N. Y., was first for 100 Killarney Queen and Robert Simpson, of Clifton, N. J., was first for Mrs. Aaron Ward.

The awards in the gardeners' classes were:

PRIVATE GROWERS.

Twelve American Beauties—James Foster, gardener to Mrs. Olive Hoyt, Stamford, Conn., first.

The Banquet.

The grand ball room of the Hotel Biltmore was chosen by the committee as the scene of the annual banquet of the New York Florists' Club April 8, and, as the illustration on this page indicates, no mistake was made by Chairman De Forest and his efficient lieutenants. Notwithstanding the rain and snow of the day and evening, over 200 of the club's members, ladies and guests attended. By many it was conceded that this season's celebration excelled any of its predecessors in beauty, enthusiasm and novelty. The event was called a din-dan. Dancing was enjoyed by the diners for an hour before the feast began and between the courses and afterwards, some remaining until 4 a. m., it is said. An excellent orchestra and soloists added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

There was an almost total elimination of oratory. Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, made an address, and Patrick O'Mara for the members presented a gold watch to the retiring president, H. A. Bunyard.

The Trade Exhibits.

Because of the excellent results obtained last year, a large number of concerns bought space for trade displays. The retailers, because of the artistic character of their exhibits, were given some of the most conspicuous space on the main floor, and some of the plantsmen also had fine locations, but most of the trade space was on the second floor. A few exhibitors sought to reach florists, but the majority of the displays were planned for the single purpose of attracting the public. So well did the order-taking progress that probably the day is not far distant when three floors will be none too small for the proper staging of the New York flower show. The trade exhibitors were:

Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, showed many kinds of bulbous stock in new varieties, with lilies, tulips, hyacinths and narcissi, a large and comprehensive display, all carefully labeled. W. E. Cook and A. J. Rickards were in charge.

Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., represented by Messrs. Muller, Sealy, Rudolph and Julius Roehrs, showed commercial plants, trees, shrubs, palms, etc., in great variety.

Reed & Keller, New York, with Geo. Maunz and Herman Kurth in charge, showed baskets, vases, bird cages and many of Mr. Reed's novelties and inventions.

Lord & Burnham Co., New York, with T. B. De Forest in charge, had a handsomely furnished booth for its friends and patrons.

Hitchings & Co., Elizabeth, N. J., with Samuel Redstone and John McArthur in charge, showed a curved eave greenhouse with up-to-date heating apparatus, ventilators, etc.

The Metropolitan Material Co., Brooklyn, erected a complete greenhouse, with all accessories.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., had many exhibits of specimen evergreens, trained boxwood, nursery stock, and a large variety of other essentials for landscape effects.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., staged a splendid group of orchid plants in numerous varieties.

Wm. H. Lutton Co., Jersey City, N. J., Messrs. Burns and Ward in charge, showed a curved eave greenhouse, with galvanized iron frame, tile combination benches, etc.

Bon Arbor Chemical Co., Paterson, N. J., with E. Earnshaw in charge, showed a full line of insecticides, weed killer, fertilizers, etc.

The Coldwell Lawn Mower Co., Newburgh, N. Y., with Messrs. Coldwell and Robinson in charge, showed motor and standard lawn mowers in large variety.

B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., showed gladiolus bulbs and gift boxes of gladioli in many new varieties.

Thorburn & Co., New York, with W. C. Rickards in charge, showed novelties in Holland bulbs, tulips, blooming plants, etc., an artistic display.

Geo. L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I., showed dahlia seeds, dahlia roots and dahlia literature.

The Autocar Co., New York, showed a standard chassis for florists, with W. L. Meek in charge.

Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., with Mrs. Cowee and Miss Chandler in charge, showed gladiolus bulbs in variety, also cut blooms and boxed collections.

Vaughan's Seed Store, New York, showed seeds, bulbs, blooming plants, etc.

Wm. F. Leary, New Rochelle, N. Y., showed spraying machines in variety and an automatic gun for Herbicide, Weedena powder, etc.

The Kirke Chemical Co., Brooklyn, G. Kirkegaard in charge, demonstrated the Kirke system of watering for insect destruction and for applying fertilizer.

The Davey Tree Expert Co., Kent, O., P. E. Hudson in charge, showed methods of tree preservation.

Knight & Struck Co., New York, Thos. Knight in charge, had a handsome booth, rock garden, heather in many sizes in pots, boronias, acacias, etc.

The Fulper Pottery Co., Flemington, N. J., showed art pottery, with J. H. Koenig in charge.

The Reade Mfg. Co., Hoboken, N. J., C. H. Reade in charge, showed Herbicide, an electric worm eradicator and a rose bug exterminator.

The National Floral Corporation, New York, represented by A. M. Dreifuss and assistants, had a booth for explaining the system whereby one florist in each city may be known as the National Florist.

S. P. Townsend & Co., Orange, N. J., P. A. Coleman in charge, showed lawn mowers of many kinds.

I. J. Stringham, Glen Cove, N. Y., Miss O'Connell in charge, had an exhibit of honey and swarm of bees, busy as usual.

Din-Dan of the New York Florists' Club at the Hotel Biltmore for the Entertainment of Flower Show Visitors.

A General View of the New York Flower Show, April 7, Looking from the Balcony.

Matthews' Garden Craft Co., Cleveland, O., Herbert Matthews in charge, had a large line of garden furniture.

Schloss Bros., New York, Emil Schloss in charge, showed a line of ribbons and novelties.

The Mountain Community, New York, showed decorative designs for porches, lawns, etc.

The Sharonware Work Shop, New York, showed window boxes, porous cement pots and jardinieres.

The Wilson Products Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., showed soil sifters and a new sprinkling system.

Miller & Doing, Brooklyn, N. Y., self-watering iron flower baskets and boxes.

A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., had an exhibit of commercial blooming plants of many varieties.

The Alphano-Humus Co., New York, had a large display of its products, with illustrations of its value in lawn-making, etc.

The Revere Rubber Co., of Boston, E. W. Holt in charge, showed rubber hose.

A. F. Jerome, Newark, N. J., showed glass and suction flower vases.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, represented by Fred Lautenschlager, showed illustrations of boilers, blue prints, etc.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., made splendid exhibits of roses and carnations, changed daily.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., showed artistic groupings of roses and other flowers in great profusion, changed daily.

Chas. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., had an exhibit of his new roses and specialties, with fresh groups of cut flowers daily.

Arthur T. Boddington Co., New York, had display of bulbs in flower in many varieties.

George Reich, New York, had an interesting exhibit of song birds and Japanese goldfish.

Peterson, Sinclaire & Miller, Inc., New York, showed Carter's seeds and Rex humus.

The Pierson U-Bar Co., New York, W. C. McCollon in charge, had a reception booth showing moving lantern slides of greenhouses.

The Joseph Dixon Crucible Co., Jersey City, N. J., showed greenhouse pipe paints, automobile lubricants, etc.

The E. C. Brown Co., Rochester, showed various styles of sprayers.

The Cloche Co., New York, showed devices for holding panes of glass in various positions as a protection to early plants in the garden.

Levis & Valentine Co., Roslyn, L. I., illustrated methods of moving large trees.

The American Seed Tape Co., New York, showed paper tape containing seeds for garden planting.

There also were numerous booths for the advertising of horticultural journals, gardening books, etc.

There also were a number of art ware, perfume, lamp and other exhibits not in any way related to the trade, but attracted by the prospect of a large attendance.

FANCY-LEAVED CALADIUMS.

Will you kindly give me information as to the propagation and culture of fancy-leaved caladiums? I mean the production of bulbs. How are the named varieties grown? Could you advise me where to secure a start of seed or planting stock? I am trying these as an experiment and shall appreciate the information. S. W.—N. C.

Start the tubers in a mixture of chopped sphagnum moss and sharp sand, in flats, placing the flats where there is a good bottom heat and an overhead temperature not less than 60 degrees at night. Cover the tubers entirely, as the roots start from the tops. Put them in small pots when the growth of roots and leaves has started. Use a compost of sandy leaf-mold. At later shifts use a heavier compost, consisting of two-thirds fibrous loam, one-sixth leaf-mold and one-sixth old cow manure well dried; also a dash of coarse sand. Grow them in a warm house. Gradually withhold water in the fall as the leaves start to decay and lay the pots in a warm, dry location, in a temperature not below 60 degrees at night, during the winter.

These caladiums will bed out well with you and can be set out dormant, if required, in soil that is light, rich and well pulverized. Do not plant them out until the weather is warm and settled, as fancy-leaved caladiums are delicate. C. W.

Grand Island, Neb.—F. W. Blaise, who has grown garden truck outdoors for the last ten years, expects to erect greenhouses this summer and become a florist.

Winona, Minn.—The Winona Floral Co., which has purchased the Kirchner houses and leased the Voelker range, has opened a downtown store at 66 West Fourth street.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

TOMATOES UNDER GLASS.

Artificial Pollination.

Under glass, where tomatoes are forced extra early, it is often difficult to get the flowers to set well. It is then advisable and often necessary to adopt artificial methods of fertilization. The simplest and most efficient method is the following: Procure a rabbit's tail and tie it to the end of a bamboo sufficiently long to reach all the rows. At noon, when the sun is at its height, go over all the rows, and on all the plants lightly brush every truss with the rabbit's tail. This method will transfer the pollen from one flower to another, and it is the exception to the rule for a flower to fail to set. The plants are not injured and the process is a quick one. It should be followed up each day as the flowers develop. I have never known it to fail and I have handled tomatoes under glass by the acre.

Moderate Defoliation.

There has always been a considerable amount of discussion on this question. Some believe in no defoliation, while others advocate a severe pruning of the leaves. Basing my opinion on my own practical experience, I favor a modified pruning of the foliage, according to the stage of the plants' growth.

Suppose for a moment we examine a tomato leaf. On the under side of the leaf the glass will show us a number of small holes or stomata. These are the lungs of the plant and are absolutely necessary to its well-being. The leaves draw up the sap and maintain the life and vigor. I would never prune a leaf until the fruit is well developed, and then I would remove a third of the leaf, never pruning a leaf beyond an undeveloped bunch of fruit. Such a pruning will allow more light and air to reach the fruit and it will naturally ripen much earlier. By cutting the leaves above an unmatured bunch of fruit you check its development.

If you severely prune the leaves when the fruit is in a young state, it will be soft and will not develop with solid flesh, owing to lack of support. On the other hand, suppose a plant is loaded with fruit which only wants the coloring. In such a case I have seen growers cut away all the foliage and then water the plants. With nothing else to take the supply of moisture, it goes to the fruit, which immediately cracks, and the result is a large quantity of worthless fruit.

The happy medium is best with the tomato. Therefore, never prune above an undeveloped bunch of fruit. Only cut away a third of the leaf. You will then accelerate the ripening without in any way deteriorating the fruit, and this should always be the object of the grower. F. E. B.

BURN OR ROT OF LETTUCE.

We are sending by parcel post a box of greenhouse leaf lettuce, which, as you will see, has rot about the heart and roots. Some of the benches are affected, while others are all right. We put in new soil in our benches last year and have only used half-rotted or completely rotted horse manure as a fertilizer. We are at present cutting our fourth crop of lettuce. What do you think is the trouble? All the benches are receiving the same quantity of manure and the same kind of soil, yet some are affected as above stated. We shall appreciate it if you can explain the cause and a remedy for the trouble.
S. B.—Ill.

The burn or rot is common on lettuce in winter. It is not due to improper soil, but to temperature changes. It usually is worst if bright, sunny days follow a number of dark ones, and in order to avoid rot or burning it is necessary to pay close attention to ventilation. A case in point came to my notice only a few days ago. We had a spell of dark weather, with the greenhouse roofs more or less covered with snow. This was followed by a bright day and the lettuce in this particular house was badly scorched. The only way to avoid the rot or burn is to ventilate the houses freely and to keep the temperature down. Successful lettuce growers are constantly running to the ventilators, taking off or putting on air, and the closest attention to this is necessary to avoid your trouble. Keep your night temperature at 48 to 50 degrees and keep it down to 56 degrees on dark days, with a rise to 65 degrees if the day is bright. This applies, of course, to winter lettuce. There is more harm in getting temperatures above than below these figures.

Do not wait until your house gets hot and then rush on a lot of air, and do not remove it in like manner. Give and remove ventilation gradually and you will be little troubled with burn or rot. C. W.

SCRANTON'S FLOWER SHOW.

The Scranton Exhibitors.

The third annual flower show of the Scranton Florists' Club was held April 6 to 8, in the Town hall. The committees in charge were: Ways and means, Wm. MacDonald, C. W. Baldwin, T. B. McClintock and Anton Schultheis; decorating, A. L. Besancon, L. E. McClintock, W. R. MacDonald, Francis Moran and G. R. Clark; report to trade papers, Francis Moran; publicity, C. W. Baldwin and T. B. McClintock; floor manager, B. E. Cokely.

In the center of the hall was a mound of crimson ramblers in full bloom. These were grown by Wm. MacDonald, of Moosic, Pa. At the entrance, T. B. McClintock had an attractive display of Cineraria stellata and Boston ferns. A display in the southwest corner of the hall was one of the most notable, being made up of Azalea mollis, spruce trees, arbor-vitae, retinosporas, boxwoods and cinerarias.

The New York Floral Co. filled its space almost entirely with cut flowers. There were baskets of lupines, American Beauties, Russell and Hadley roses, snapdragons, yellow irises, and anemones. This concern was the only one to exhibit a bride's bouquet, which was made of white roses and valley.

Schultheis, the Florist, had the largest exhibit in the hall. A charming dinner table decoration was made of Ward roses, orchids, azaleas and rhododendrons. Japanese gardens, baskets of Hadley roses and other basket arrangements were part of the display. Special mention must be made of a hand-painted basket containing yellow hyacinths and primroses and a basket of Scotch heather, tied with plaid ribbon.

Anton Schultheis had on exhibition some of the finest rhododendrons seen here for some time. The blossoms were of rare size and beauty.

Baldwin, the Florist, arranged an artistic exhibit with an arch as a background. His exhibit was made distinctive by the use of large and rare hydrangeas. Lilies, tulips, primroses and hyacinths were also in the exhibit. Silver Pink snapdragons and Rosette carnations were exceptionally fine.

John W. Beagle showed a large group of bulbous and bedding plants.

D. W. Evans had a large collection of azaleas, hyacinths, primroses and cinerarias.

T. W. Mackey had a choice group of Boston ferns, tulips, hyacinths and daffodils.

B. E. & J. T. Cokely had a large exhibit of bulbs, seeds, garden and farm implements.

William MacDonald, of Moosic, showed a large group of acacias, which was admired by many.

The most artistic exhibit was that of A. L. Besancon & Co. It consisted of a woodland garden with a background of spruce, pine, hemlock, birch and flowering almonds, and a border of tulips. There was a rustic summer house and in the foreground a lawn, with crocuses, tulips, daffodils, pussy willows and baskets of plants and cut flowers. This concern also had a table decoration of yellow daisies and cornflowers, and a picture arranged with Farleyense ferns and Sweet Marie roses.

The Out-of-Town Exhibitors.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., exhibited a vase of twenty-five of their Philadelphia prize-winning Hadley roses and fifty Killarney Brilliant.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., of Philadelphia, showed a vase of fifty Francis Scott Key roses, fifty Ophelia, fifty Killarney and a vase of pink roses; also a vase each of White Wonder, Enchantress and Ward carnations, and a vase of 100 lilies. They also had a fine display of fancy baskets.

Mrs. J. J. Wade, of Carbondale, had a vase of Russell roses.

J. L. Dillon, of Bloomsburg, showed a vase of fifty Sunburst, twenty-five White Killarney and twenty-five Richmond roses; twenty-five Enchantress carnations and fifty Formosa lilies.

The Leo Niessen Co., of Philadelphia, had a vase of fifty long-stemmed Russell, fifty Thora and fifty Fireflame roses; also a vase each of cornflowers, stocks and Sweet Marie roses.

The M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, exhibited a large variety of baskets and supplies. The exhibit was in charge of S. Edelman and was much admired for its artistic arrangement.

The Edwards Folding Box Co., of Philadelphia, exhibited a large variety of boxes. The display was in charge of W. P. Snyder.

An innovation this year was the tea room, conducted under the auspices of the Home of the Friendless. It was located at the far end of the hall and was decorated with tall evergreens. Hardy plants, azaleas, Crimson Rambler roses, maples, cherries, hydrangeas and many other plants and shrubs of varied shades formed the screen. They were exhibited by William MacDonald, of Moosic, Pa.

G. R. Clarke had a garden with a lawn and seats. There were effective beds of tulips and hyacinths. The rest of the exhibit consisted of a number of bird houses, which attracted a great deal of attention. He also had fine baskets of Hadley and Sunburst roses.

One of the most artistic private exhibits was a basket of orchids suspended above a group of schizanthus. This came from the conservatory of Mrs. H. M. Boies. Another private exhibit was from Mrs. J. B. Dimmick, whose display was unique in arrangement.

One of the most conspicuous groups of calceolarias was from the conservatories of Mrs. C. S. Weston, of Waverly, Pa. This exhibit was attractively arranged, massed in a thick bank, with ferns, begonias, lilies, coleus, daffodils, marguerites and crotons. F. J. M.

CARNATIONS

SPORTS OF BENORA.

Please let me know what is the parentage of Carnation Benora. I have had three sports from Benora this season. The first one was bright red, with a white center; it is a perfect bloom, measuring three and one-half inches across. The second sport was a pure red, of about the same shade as Herald, but the bloom is of the same form as Benora, good and full, and I think the stem is better. The third sport is not far enough open to show whether it will be all red or not. We have propagated the first two, and if the third pleases us we shall also propagate it. Would you advise taking up these sports and potting them?

M. C. F. H.—Mich.

The parentage of Carnation Benora is unknown, according to the registration made by the raiser. If those sports of yours appear to be of value, I would suggest that you propagate them and, at the first opportunity, show blooms at a meeting of the American Carnation Society, so as to compare them with existing varieties. Benora has sported with many growers. Red sports of it are quite common and it has also sported pure white on at least three places. A. F. J. B.

PETER FISHER REPLIES.

In a British trade paper, M. C. Allwood, a carnation grower who spent some years in America before starting in the business in England, recently berated recent American introductions and sought to show that they are not so good as earlier varieties. He paid special respects to two of Peter Fisher's recent introductions and drew the following reply from that usually taciturn gentleman:

"Of my two last introductions, Gorgeous and Alice, he writes of the former as 'the greatest of all recent American fallacies.' Let him call it a failure if he wishes, but not a 'fallacy.' It was not offered to the trade as a commercial variety, as that term is implied, but as one of strictly high grade, either where an extra price could be obtained at retail, or as an exhibition sort. Small growers who asked my opinion of it were repeatedly advised not to invest in it, unless they could obtain an extra price. Its 'failure' was caused by 'flaking off' to a lighter shade of pink in midwinter, something beyond one's control in a cerise variety at times. Alice was not sent out as the equivalent of Enchantress in all respects, as Mr. Allwood's comparison would seem to imply, or in other words, as an exhibition sort (although it has been awarded premiums over Enchantress during the present season), but as 'a commercial acquisition' of superior color and far more productive. As to being 'inferior to May Day in every single respect,' the reverse is true over here, for many of our best growers who discarded May Day after a single trial, are largely increasing their plantings of Alice for next season. The color of May Day is exquisite, but the smooth-edged petal, showing a tendency to incurve, could not be tolerated by the American buyers, and let me here state this has been the cause of failure with several British raised varieties when tested over here. The American grower is not prejudiced against British raised varieties, but the fact remains that so far we have failed to find them of commercial value to us."

VARIEGATED SPORT OF WARD.

We are sending you by parcel post a carnation bloom which we found among our stock of Mrs. C. W. Ward. We have only one plant that shows this yellow streak. The other blooms on the plant seem to have more yellow in them than this one. Is this a distinct variety or simply variegated with pink and yellow? It has a good stem, about the same as that of Mrs. Ward. Would you consider it of any commercial value? We have never before seen one marked just like it. We have a few cuttings of it. What is your opinion about propagating it? W. D. & C. G. B.—Ind.

I have not heard of any other instance of Mrs. Ward sporting in the same manner as yours. Blooms that are partly yellow and partly pink would have little commercial value, but I would suggest that you grow on what cuttings you have propagated. They will likely continue to produce pink and yellow blooms and perchance there will appear one of a solid, clear yellow. If so, preserve it, as it will undoubtedly prove to be of commercial value, providing the yellow is of a clear golden hue. Yellow Prince is at present the best yellow, but it lacks in size, and a variety of the same color as Yellow Prince and of the size and habit of Mrs. Ward would certainly be an acquisition. A. F. J. B.

NOTES ON EASTER PLANTS

Precautions and Sales Factors.

It is not safe to assume that, because Easter comes at almost the latest possible date this year, we are sure to have warm and settled weather then, and that Easter plants will need little wrapping and can be exposed almost with impunity. The probabilities are that, as we have already had so much winter, we can reasonably look for mild, spring-like weather this season, but it will be well to provide an abundance of wrapping material in case it is needed. Wrapping is going to cost a great deal more this year, owing to the heavy advance in the price of paper. Do not, however, stint on necessary covering on the false grounds of economy.

It is to be assumed that all salable plants will have their pots washed in advance. It is poor policy to leave this important work until the plants are actually needed. Have not only the sides and rims but also the bottoms of the pots and pans well washed. A plant of only fair quality in a soiled pot will be hard to sell, but such a plant in a clean receptacle will be found quite salable. Be sure to stake plants needing it before sending them out. Use green stakes and green raffia; the latter costs more than ordinary raffia, but is so inconspicuous that it should be more used. In sending out gardenias, orchids or any other choice plants with flowers rather easily damaged, use cotton wool to protect each flower properly.

The Easter Lilies.

While white-flowering plants are not as popular for Easter as some years ago, the Easter lily remains the plant that meets with much the largest sale and it probably will remain so. With so late an Easter there should be little excuse for plants not flowering on time. It is the best plan to allow the plants to open their blooms a little before Easter. It is easy holding such plants back in a cool greenhouse, pit or cellar. Laggards should be placed at once in a hot, moist house, freely syringed, given all possible sun and, if the ventilators can be closed about 2:30 each afternoon and the house saturated with moisture, it is surprising how fast the buds will develop. Prices on lilies are low after Easter, hence it pays to get every possible plant in for April 23. For cutting, the Formosa lily, with its long stems, is far superior to L. longiflorum giganteum, and is of particular value in the chancels of churches, for which the giganteums are too dwarf. Such candidum lilies as appear are in a cut state, but it is well to state that for church decorations L. candidum, with its immaculate purity, is far superior to all other lilies, not when grown in small pots, one bulb to a pot, but by using five to seven bulbs in 8-inch to 10-inch pots.

In making up large pots or pans of Easter lilies, the work is best done just before the flowers are open. Do not pick all stalks of a uniform height, or the plants will present a decidedly flat and a too crowded appearance. Shake the soil well away when making up these plants, but keep the roots intact. When they are made up be sure that water in abundance is furnished and all the buds will open just as well as though the plants had not been subjected to any disturbance.

The Roses.

Next to lilies, roses now are the most popular of Easter plants. Those of a pink color sell best. It is not many years since the old Crimson Rambler had this field almost to itself. For quite a period of years since its introduction, some twenty-one years ago, it had a tremendous sale, but, while many still are sold, they do not move as they did over a decade ago. Hiawatha as a scarlet, Lady Gay, Tausendschon, Dorothy Perkins and other pinks; White Dorothy and Mrs. M. H. Walsh, pure whites, are a few that are popular. Then the polyantha roses, more often called baby ramblers, although they do not ramble at all, such as Baby Tausendschon, Erna Teschendorff, Phyllis, Orleans, Catherine Zeimet, Clothilde Soupert and Mlle. Cecile Brunner, now meet with an immense sale, and with this type it is safe to tell customers that they should plant them out in the flower garden when the flowers have faded, as they all make good garden plants.

At one time the hybrid perpetuals were more popular than they are today. They still are grown in considerable numbers, and if they can be offered with one or two flowers just showing color they will be in the best stage. Frau Karl Druschki, the incomparable white; the old Magna Charta, Baroness Rothschild, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Prince Camille de Rohan, the old General Jacqueminot, John Hopper and Ulrich Brunner are specially good for Easter. It is good to note that hybrid teas are beginning to be appreciated as pot plants. All who saw Dreer's wonderful garden at Philadelphia must have appreciated their value as pot plants. Their immense flowers, which last well even when fully expanded, many delightful colors and delicate odors should soon place them in the front ranks of Easter plants. Their price comes a little higher than that of the hybrid perpetuals, but customers will surely be willing to pay the little extra price demanded. The yellow, copper and orange shades, which are almost entirely lacking in the other types of roses, are here abundantly represented and they are popular.

Genistas.

Genistas are easily grown Easter plants and make an effective show in the store, provided they receive an ample water supply. Once let that be neglected and the plants become unsalable. While the closely cropped and topiary-like genistas have the leading call, plants more naturally grown are far more beautiful, and I am surprised so few growers can be made to realize that many customers prefer this latter type of plant to the closely sheared-in brand. It is well to state that genistas are beautiful while in full bloom, but that they are poor house plants. Even at this season their beauty is all gone in four or five days, no matter how carefully they are tended. Do not tell purchasers that they will flower for weeks in a warm room if well watered. A single week is their absolute limit.

Azaleas.

Even for a late Easter it is an easy matter to have plenty of azaleas. Vander Cruyssen, bright rose, has a greater sale than any other variety. Others in favor are Empress of India, double white and salmon; Vervæneana alba and Niobe, white, and the little Charles Encke, pink and white. The many beautiful varieties of Azalea mollis are preferred by many to the more common A. Indica in spring. These come in golden yellow, orange and other attractive colors not to be found in the Indica section, and their single flowers are preferred by critical customers to the double flowers carried by most of the commercial Indian azaleas. Why do not the Belgian growers send us more single-flowered azaleas? They are vastly more beautiful and keep just as well as the doubles. Is it because our growers here demand the doubles?

Astilbes, or Spiræas.

Astilbes still are commonly called spiræas. The white varieties meet with a fair sale, but since the advent of the many beautiful pink varieties, such as Queen Alexandra, rubra, Peach Blossom, Ceres, etc., these latter have enjoyed the greater popularity. They require a longer season to come into flower and must be sold at a little higher price, but they are well worth the difference. They hold their flowers in good condition longer than the old Japonica and Gladstone. Keep these pink varieties, when the flowers start to open, in a house where they can be broken from the direct sun; some shade is needed to keep the lovely pink flowers from fading. Astilbes need much water, not once, but twice a day, and keep a saucer below them. Never mind if there is some water in the saucer; it will not cause any loss of foliage on astilbes, as it would on almost any other plants.

Hydrangeas.

Hydrangeas were never popular Easter plants until the advent of the French type, which can be bloomed well even for an early Easter. More of the French varieties will be offered this Easter than in any previous year, and they will prove much better sellers than the good old Otaksa, which comes into its own later in the season. Avalanche, Mme. Mouillere, La Lorraine, Radiant, General de Vibraye and Mme. Chautard are a splendid commercial half-dozen. Remember that the flowers of the French type are more susceptible to injury from sun and moisture than those of Otaksa, and they are not, for that reason, to be recommended for outdoor uses. For pot culture they are the finest introductions of late years. They bloom with wonderful freedom and make a rapid growth, and no florist who grows or sells pot plants can afford to be without them.

Hard-Wooded Plants.

The season is a little late for many hard-wooded plants, but Erica Caffra densa, an easy doer, is available; so are some melantheras carried along in cold houses. Acacias are fewer than usual; even A. paradoxa has been hard to keep back. Once the little flowers on this variety turn brown, the plants become unsalable. Faded flowers cannot be shaken off, and it is a task to pick them off a number of well bloomed plants. Keep all the hard-wooded plants as cool as you can without exposing them to actual frost. Remember that their pots are crowded with fine, hair-like roots, and that one good drying out will cripple and may even kill them. Therefore water them carefully and tell all purchasers to do likewise.

Bulbous Plants.

As Easter is late, there is a smaller variety of Dutch bulbous stock in pans available than usual. Few of the single early tulips are in good condition except Pink Beauty. Others become too leggy. Murillo is the popular tulip. Some White Murillo and Brimstone Beauty also are available, but Murillo is the tulip par excellence for pans. It is a sturdy grower and never needs any supports. The same holds good for Victoria, which is easily the best narcissus for Easter. It is late for Golden Spur, which has become too much drawn, even when retarded as much as possible. Hyacinths kept quite cold are all right and will open sufficiently in a cold greenhouse or even in a coldframe. These also are better if not too fully flowered. Where hyacinths are in full bloom it is sometimes necessary to stake the spikes to prevent them from breaking. Use light and inconspicuous stakes where this has to be done.

Rhododendrons and Kalmias.

Pink Pearl is the rhododendron par excellence for Easter trade. White Pearl is good, but often arrives with poor foliage. The flowers of these two varieties are so much larger than those of the ordinary hybrids that the latter are hard to sell in competition with them. Kalmia latifolia is another evergreen flowering shrub that is seen more than usual this season. It is a hardy shrub and can be planted out after blooming, but do not tell any customers that Pink Pearl or White Pearl can be planted and left outdoors, as both are quite tender.

Geraniums

STEM-ROT ON GERANIUMS.

We are sending you by parcel post two geranium plants that have become affected with some trouble. These plants were from cuttings that were bought sometime in January. They were fine plants, well rooted, and have been doing nicely until recently, when this trouble started. You will note the plants have a good, firm root growth, but that at the end of the stem, where the roots start to grow out, a sort of rot has started. This rot spreads until the entire plant is destroyed. It is going through our entire geranium stock. These plants are grown in a temperature of about 56 degrees, and we doubt if they have been watered too much, as we have really kept them a little on the dry side. We have given them plenty of space. The loam used is a light, black soil, with little, or perhaps no, clay, but it contains a small quantity of rotted cow manure. We tried to avoid getting the cow manure in, but a little is sure to slip through the screen. We can see no reason for this condition of the plants, as they have been fine stock until now.

We are of the opinion that it is our water supply. We use water from our city water plant, which is pumped from Lake Michigan and then put through a filtering plant to purify it. Our city chemist here has pronounced the water to be perfectly pure, but the condition of the water is such that we can hardly drink it, for the taste and the odor are bad. When we boil the water there is an odor somewhat similar to that of creosote. We understand that a considerable amount of alum is used to filter the water. What do you think? Could this be the cause of the trouble?

C. P. & S.—Mich.

It is barely possible that the water may have something to do with your trouble; still, if you have grown geraniums during previous years and they have been healthy, that can hardly be the cause. At the state experimental station they may be able to give you some useful information on this point. You are keeping your plants quite warm; 56 degrees is a high temperature for growing stock. It would be much better for them if the temperature was 8 degrees lower at night. I think it probable that your geranium cuttings, while they may have looked well and carried plenty of roots, perhaps were too long a period in the cutting bench and became somewhat drawn. If at potting time you buried the stems somewhat to improve their appearance, you would do the best thing to start stem-rot. If your black soil had some sharp sand added to it, a little fine bone and one-fourth as much spent hotbed manure finely screened, it should prove ideal for geraniums. Can you not grow your own cuttings another year and thus prevent any danger of infection from bought in stock?

C. W.

GREEN WORMS ON GERANIUMS.

On my geraniums there are little green worms, which eat the under side of the leaves, but do not eat entirely through them. I have used nicotine without success. Can you advise me what to use?

S. R. F.—Neb.

It will be necessary to use a poison spray of some kind on your geraniums if the pests are too numerous to be killed by hand. Arsenate of lead whitens the foliage and makes the plants more or less unsalable. Therefore, it is better to give them a weak dose of Paris green, one ounce to eighteen gallons of water. Also add a little lime to the water, to prevent any burning of the foliage, although it is not likely that the strength advised will burn any foliage. Spray on a cloudy day or on the evening of a clear day, being sure to direct the liquid below the leaves. Give the plants a good spraying of clear water early the following morning. Repeat the spraying if more worms appear.

C. W.

BONE FLOUR FOR GERANIUMS.

Some time ago you advised feeding geraniums bone flour. Will you please advise how much to give plants in 3-inch, 4-inch and 5-inch pots? I used a 3½-gallon pail to measure the soil, using four pails of field soil and one of rotted cow manure. The plants do not make any growth. They bud and bloom all right, but have a pale yellowish green color instead of a dark green.

B. P. M.—Kan.

On a 5-inch pot use a teaspoonful of fine bone. On 3-inch and 4-inch pots use half this amount. Apply it once in two weeks. In addition, if your plants are well rooted and lack color, give a watering with soot water or weak nitrate of soda water. One pound of nitrate of soda will suffice for fifteen gallons of water. It is a strong fertilizer and do not give the plants more than one application.

C. W.

GERANIUMS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Will you please advise me as to the latest date at which geraniums may be cut back to have blooming plants at Memorial day? Also, how far apart should geraniums be planted in the bed for stock, planting out of 2-inch pots?

M. G. F. C.—O.

No topping or heading back should have been done after March 1. Set the plants twelve to fifteen inches apart each way.

THE NEWER ROSES.

[A paper by Stephen Mortensen, of Southampton, Pa., entitled "A Symposium on the Newer Roses," read before the rose meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, April 4, 1916.]

A small grower like myself cannot afford to waste much valuable space for testing novelties, because that is really what it amounts to. I notice, however, you say a symposium on the "newer roses;" that is, those that have been tested during the last few seasons. This, I presume, will include Sunburst, Brilliant, Ophelia and Hadley. These four varieties I grow in quantities of from 2,500 to 6,000 plants each, and I am pleased to give you my experiences with them.

Sunburst and Ophelia.

From the viewpoint of dollars and cents, which is the point a commercial grower must always consider first, Sunburst is considerably ahead of the several other varieties I grow. It has been so for the last three seasons and it is so again this season, although I increased my plantings to over 5,000 plants. Some of the knowing ones told me I would make a mistake in planting so many yellows; that the new rose Ophelia, in a measure, would take the place of Sunburst. I have not found it so. Sunburst, as stated before, still is in the lead. It has, like all roses, its faults, the worst being its weak stem, especially during the cloudy days of November and December, and the tendency of the heavy canes to come almost white. Its good qualities, however, far overbalance its faults. It is an all-year rose, a free bloomer and does not need to be pinched to produce flowers with stems of a salable length.

You all know the good qualities of Ophelia. You saw it in all its glory at the National Flower Show. It stands second on the list with me. I believe this rose will be planted in much larger quantities by many growers next season, and there is a possibility that there will be an oversupply of it next winter. It has one fault, its peculiar tendency to throw crooked necks.

Hadley and Brilliant.

In Hadley we have what I consider the finest rose in cultivation today. When I say this I am not alluding to my own flowers; on the contrary, I am thinking of those wonderful blooms produced by Joseph Heacock, of Wyncote; A. S. Burns, of Spring Valley, N. J., and Edward Towill, of Roslyn, Pa. These blooms we all admired at the show. While I can not grow such wonderful blooms as those referred to, Hadley is doing well with me and I have confidence in its future and shall continue to grow it. It is to date the lowest on my list in what it returns me in dollars and cents, but I am certain when the season is over it will not be the lowest. Its fault, with most growers, I think is its tendency to send up blind wood, but this can be overcome by proper handling, partially at least.

Brilliant last season was a disappointment to me. It did not return as much per plant as White and Double Killarney, although as a novelty it ought to have brought more. This year, however, it is quite satisfactory and it will be retained another year at least.

Other Roses of Merit.

Old Gold is a beautiful semi-double rose, with long, pointed buds. The color is reddish orange, with coppery shadings. It is a fine rose when grown cold—a good winter rose.

Lady Alice Stanley is a good all-year rose. I discarded this rose because of its weak neck. This can be overcome, I understand, by a cooler treatment than what I gave it. John Welsh Young is growing this variety to perfection and you should ask either him or C. Upton how it is done.

Mme. E. Herriot is the sensational Daily Mail rose of England, grown by Pernet-Ducher, a fine rose with a most unique color, hard to describe. With me it had rather a weak stem, but this possibly can be overcome by proper treatment.

Mme. Edmond Rostand is a fine rose when at its best. It is a fine grower, with large, heavy foliage. It has two faults: First, its color, a beautiful reddish yellow in the bud state, but fading to salmon as it expands; second, it is not always constant, varying a little according to weather conditions.

September Morn and Clanwilliam.

In September Morn we have a rose with a most pleasing shade of shell pink; an all-year rose I would call it, for it seems to open fairly well during the winter months. I have not given this rose a fair test as yet, but as it is a sport of Paul Euler, which is being redisseminated by the Florex Gardens, of North Wales, Pa., I should not hesitate to recommend it.

During the season of 1914-15 I imported from England some twenty-five varieties of new roses. While some of these may do as garden roses, on the whole, I must say they were disappointing to me. I will not tire you by going over this list. I will only mention one, Countess Clanwilliam. It has at least some of the earmarks of a commercial variety. The color is peach pink, striped or edged with cherry red. The buds are long and pointed, but not double. The petals, however, are of good substance. It is a free bloomer, with long, stiff stems.

MEXICAN TUBEROSES.

I have received some bulbs of the Mexican everblooming tuberose and shall appreciate it if you will give me some information concerning their proper culture, time to rest, etc. I have planted some in four inches of soil in flats, using two parts rather heavy clay soil, one part sharp sand and one part well rotted cow manure. We have frosts here rather late in May, so I presume I cannot put any outside for some time, but I think they should not be left out of the ground long. I have only one house and grow mixed stock, mostly carnations.

H. C. O.—Cal.

You can start the tuberoses in 4-inch pots of sandy loam, or they can be stood on moss placed in the bottoms of flats. They must be damped sparingly until the roots start, then a little more freely. As you have late frosts, it would not be safe to plant the tuberoses out before the first week in June. You will find that they succeed better in light rather than heavy soil. If your soil is naturally heavy, add plenty of sand to make it more porous. Planted out in June, about all your tuberoses should bloom before frost. If any do not open, dig them up carefully, pot them and place them in your greenhouse.

To carry the bulbs over winter, dig them up, pack them in flats of moderately dry, sandy soil and store them in a temperature of 48 to 50 degrees. Do not wet the soil at the resting period, or you will lose many of them by rot.

OBITUARY.

E. Reece.

E. Reece, one of the senior members of McKay, Reece & Co., seedsmen of Nashville, Tenn., died unexpectedly on the morning of April 1 while taking a bath. There is little doubt that Mr. Reece's death was hastened by the recent fire in East Nashville, in which his home, at 622 Russell street, was burned. While he was in failing health during the last few months, he was actively engaged in matters of the seed business. It is believed that worry over the fire, not over his own in particular, but over the whole disaster, affected his nervous system and probably resulted in heart failure while taking a cold shower bath.

Mr. Reece was 72 years of age and was born at Alexandria, Tenn. At the age of 16 he enlisted in the Confederate army, in a company formed by his father at Nashville. He served throughout the war, and for a time was courier for General J. Wheeler. When Lee surrendered Mr. Reece was one of those who helped to place in safety the gold and silver of the Confederacy. At the close of the war he returned to Nashville, where he entered the employ of tobacconists. Later he organized the Enterprise Soap Works, the controlling interest in which he disposed of on his return to Alexandria. He was about 40 years of age at that time and was president of banks at Alexandria and Smithville. After some years Mr. Reece decided again to make his home in Nashville, and formed a partnership under the name of McKay, Reece & Co., dealers in field seed and grain. The partnership covered a period of twenty years. The firm was a member of the American Seed Trade Association.

In 1870 Mr. Reece married Miss Laura Driver, of Nashville, who survives him, as do two married daughters.

TRI-CITIES.

The Market.

Business last week was only fairly active; there was no particular rush in any line, and prices were about the same as those of the week previous. Roses are in good supply and of excellent quality, as well as carnations. Funeral work, however, has used the stock and left no surplus. Tulips are scarce, and daffodils are of excellent quality, but not too plentiful. Antirrhinums of fine quality are coming in and find a ready market. A shortage of potted plants was the one feature of the week. With the exception of Easter lilies and Dutch hyacinths, plants were scarce.

Various Notes.

Julius Staack, of J. Staack & Sons, Moline, has made a settlement with the city of Moline for $6,000. This disposes of the damage suit which he instituted against the city for damages caused by floods last year. Mr. Staack reports business good and funeral orders numerous. He has a fine stock of Easter lilies that will come just right, according to appearances.

H. H. Hensley, of Rock Island, is busy building a greenhouse 20x100 feet on his four acres at Center station.

Joseph Tuckis, of Rock Island, reports business good and a heavy run of funeral work.

Miss M. Tearney, of the Bills Floral Co., reports business about the average, with a decided shortage in potted plants.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Buffalo market conditions are satisfactory, although they could be better. Business has not the vim to it that it usually has. Beauties are becoming good again and it does one good to see them once more. The prices on Beauties are satisfactory. Russell and Ophelia are in good demand, the quality being good in both varieties. Carnations are in fair supply and there is no difficulty in disposing of them. Prices are holding up well. The Ward carnations seem to be the most popular and they certainly are the best selling carnations that cannot be used in funeral work. Of course, growers are not apt to find it that way, because they do not seem to produce as freely of Ward as other varieties, such as Philadelphia and Enchantress Supreme. White Wonder and White Perfection are grown considerably for white, while Beacon manages to hold its own among the red.

At present there is a plethora of Easter lilies and there is no immediate relief in sight. Callas continue along the same lines and sell fairly well. Sweet peas manage to retain their popularity. Couronne d'Or tulips are in heavy demand. Daffodils and jonquils are mostly of an inferior quality and good ones are rather scarce. The supply of valley is slowly increasing and the orchid situation remains unchanged.

Miscellaneous stock, such as calendulas, Roman hyacinths, freesias, daisies, myosotis and mignonette, sells rather spasmodically, clearing one day and dragging the next. Some extra fine snapdragon may be had and greens of all kinds are sufficient for demands.

Various Notes.

Recent visitors were P. M. Phillips, of S. A. Weller, Boston; T. Doyle and H. S. Baker, of Warsaw, N. Y.

The monthly meeting of the Buffalo Florists' Club was held on Tuesday, April 4.

Now that Easter is not far off, all kinds of plants may be had again. Spiræas, which have long been looked forward to, have again appeared in the market.

The branch store of W. J. Palmer & Son had a large table decoration at the Hotel Lenox last week, which was carried out in pink and yellow, with pussy willows.

Fred W. Wise has good reason to be proud of his carnations. His Enchantress carnations are particularly fine and a good crop of them is due for Easter. He says that business has been more than good.

Theodore Frank has purchased a new motor truck to aid him in his deliveries.

At S. A. Anderson's store last week there was a fine display of seasonable blooming plants.

William Ehmann, of Corfu, reports that his carnations will be at their best for the Easter business. His sweet peas are fair, but not as good as those of previous years. He is making up for this with other stock, such as callas, with which he always has success. He thinks the Victory carnation much superior to Beacon, as it is not so apt to split.

Thursday, April 6, was the opening day of the Elks' flower and fashion show at the Broadway Auditorium. Some excellent carnations and roses were on display. Galley Bros. had a natural wood scene. At the W. J. Palmer & Son display there was a decorated framework, with pictures shown on a slide. The Lenox Flower Shop displayed a good table decoration in pink and yellow. A. E.

FOUR GENERATIONS OF FLORISTS.

It is not every boy who can boast the backing of three living generations of forefathers, but 5-year-old Lawrence Story Washburn is an exception. In the accompanying illustration he is seen, not with the shades of his ancestors, but with their corporeal selves. From left to right they are: E. B. Washburn, father; O. P. Bassett, great-grandfather; C. L. Washburn, grandfather.

The picture was taken in Griffith park, Los Angeles, Cal., where the family was celebrating the eighty-first birthday of O. P. Bassett, March 31. Mr. Bassett, who was the founder of the wholesale florists' establishment of Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, is as hale and hearty as ever and enjoys life to the utmost.

Four Generations of the Bassett-Washburn Family of Florists.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The wholesale cut flower market did not improve any over that of the previous week. Quite a brisk business was done during the first part of the week, but there was a notable falling off in trade Friday and Saturday. The abundance of stock coming in daily is of prime quality. Prices have been low in all but the fancy grades, which seem to hold up well in spite of the big glut that prevailed all week. Easter lilies have been somewhat scarce. In fact, the supply of all bulbous stock has decreased considerably of late. Roses were plentiful all week and good stock could be had at $10 per thousand. Carnations, too, were sold at a low price. Sweet peas were plentiful and extra fancy sorts brought 50 cents per hundred, while in other grades 25 cents per hundred was asked. Violets are becoming scarce. Tulips, Dutch hyacinths and fancy snapdragons sell well. Greens, excepting good long smilax, are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Benjamin U. Dugger, who has charge of the graduate laboratory at the Missouri Botanical Garden, is an authority on plant diseases. Diseased plants sent to him will be given prompt attention.

Jules Bourdet, F. H. Weber and David Geddis stopped off at Pittsburgh on their way home from Philadelphia. They were taken in hand by the florists for an auto trip. Hitting the high spots was much enjoyed by them.

All of the local nurserymen have started digging trees and shrubs. The recent rains helped a great deal to take the frost out of the ground. Advance orders will keep them busy until late in spring.

The fine pink snapdragons noted in the local market came from John Steidle, of Olivette, Mo. His rose and carnation cuts also are noted for their fine quality.

A. H. Burkemper, representative of the Grasselli Chemical Co., Cleveland, O., with offices at 112 Ferry street, has returned from a southern trip, which he says was a highly successful one.

George Waldbart takes his daily automobile trips to his country place in Clayton. He takes great pleasure in looking over his big field of spring stock and fancy chickens.

Local florists were well pleased with the election of W. A. Rowe to the office of alderman of Kirkwood. Mr. Rowe was installed in office April 6. He is a 2-year-term trustee of the Florists' Club.

The mayor's Arbor day committee celebrated Arbor day, April 7, in conjunction with the North St. Louis Business Men's Association. They planted a number of trees at Chain of Rocks park under the guidance of Phil Giebel, the keeper of the park.

At Windler's Wholesale Flower Market large consignments of extra quality carnations, sweet peas, roses and orchids were noted. Frank Windler says trade has been good the last few weeks, but not large enough to consume the daily consignments.

It is a pleasure to visit the establishment of Charles Beyer, to talk over old times with Carl and Robert and look over the well kept place. The big show house on Grand avenue is attractively filled with all seasonable blooming plants.

Frank J. Fillmore will have a fine lot of Easter lilies as usual this year. He does not grow as many as some of the large growers, but his stock will be fine and just right for the late Easter. He reports an excellent trade.

William Ossick, of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., says the big glut of stock was handled well and was cleaned up in good shape, having sold a big lot of carnations and sweet peas at fairly good prices in thousand lots.

J. J. Windler and W. C. Smith took in the big dog show at the Armory hall last week. Mr. Smith did not enter his English bulldog "Billy," but from what he saw he remarked that he wished he had.

The monthly conference of the officers of the Florists' Club was held at the offices of the W. C. Windler Wholesale Floral Co., 1310 Pine street, April 6. A program of interesting talks for this week's club meeting was made.

There were quite a number of suburban visitors to the wholesale market last week. Among them I noticed W. J. Pilcher, W. A. Rowe, Hugo Werner, John Connon, Chas. Meyer, Edwin Denker, Gus. Vennemann, H. Gross, George Hartmann, Albert and Arnold Scheidegger, A. S. Cerny, Joseph Hauser, Joseph Deutschmann, William Edwards, P. Schneider, F. W. Ude, Jr., L. Armstrong, John Steinecke and Philip J. Goebel, Jr.

The County Growers' Association held its regular monthly meeting April 5, at the Eleven Mile House. President Fred W. Ude, Jr., who has been wintering in Florida, reached here in time to preside over the meeting. The nomination of officers took place and the following were the nominees: W. J. Edwards and Chas. Meyer, for president; Wm. Winter and Rudolph Gross, for vice-president; Joseph Deutschmann, secretary; Hugo Gross, treasurer. The election of officers will take place at the May meeting. J. J. B.

Bluefield, W. Va.—The Alexander Cut Flower & Plant Co. has been incorporated by W. C. and M. B. Alexander, R. E. Goodrich, W. F. Soule and H. M. Tanner. The capital stock is $25,000.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

WHY cut prices? Everything the trade uses in the production of plants and cut flowers has advanced in price. Why not at least maintain our former standard of prices to the public?

NOMINALLY the price of glass has held steady for several weeks, but jobbers' quotations on greenhouse sizes are in all cases dependent on the ability to get the goods, which is not easy, since factories are reluctant to cut small sizes.

THE average man goes in for quantity production and depends on price to sell the stock. It leaves a splendid opportunity for the grower who keeps it constantly in mind that quality is remembered long after the price is forgotten.

THE war has hit the trade in another spot, the crepe paper supply. Not only has the price of every kind of paper advanced sharply in the last three months, but green dye is unobtainable. Green crepe paper is unobtainable in quantity at any price and many houses that had booked numerous orders for Easter have been unable to make delivery.

THIS is another record issue of The Review. It is a record for volume of classified advertising, for it contains twenty-one pages of the "Little Wonder Ads," as a user calls them, a greater number than ever before have been printed in one issue. The issue also is a record for the consumption of paper—the edition weighs 13,080 pounds, or nearly seven tons, and readers know what has happened to the price of paper in the last few months.

AGAIN, CAN YOU BEAT IT?

West of the great river the florists' trade is growing faster than in any other section of the United States; florists located there sell surpluses quickly when they advertise them in The Review, and eastern growers find the trade traffic flows westward, ever westward—that's where to look for mail orders:

Our ad in The Review has sold all the cuttings of Carnation Nebraska we shall have to offer this season.—C. H. Frey Co., Lincoln, Neb., April 8, 1916.

No use to continue the ad; we were all sold out on one insertion.—Casa de Flores Greenhouses, Corpus Christi, Tex., March 21, 1916.

Kindly discontinue our classified ad of gladiolus bulbs; we are swamped with orders.—G. D. Black, Independence, Ia., April 6, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

IT'S ALL A BOOST.

The Review has received a number of inquiries from subscribers asking for an opinion regarding the effects on this trade of the new purchase-and-delivery plan of the Western Union Telegraph Co.

Employing its nation-wide organization, the Western Union has been able within a few days to let a large number of newspaper readers know that it will execute orders for the purchase and delivery of merchandise at any point where the company operates its money transfer system. Any proposition looking to the increased use of flowers is to the advantage of the trade. Although the Western Union's plan contemplates the purchase and delivery of many other things besides flowers, it certainly will increase the use of the merchandise supplied by our trade. It will do this in two ways: First of all, the advertising the company is doing is of much wider scope than anything that has been possible for florists; it is giving the suggestion to many people florists never have been able to reach. Also, the Western Union is making it easy for people to order flowers; every blue-and-white sign carrying the telegraph company's well known trade-mark now is the sign of a flower shop. And telegraph offices are much more numerous than flower stores in the United States.

When a telegraph office gets an order for flowers, some florist gets an order, the same order, right soon.

Only in a limited sense can the telegraph company's operations be considered as competing with any of the established methods of delivering flowers at a distance. It is true that Johnnie Jones, who has removed to New York, may go to the telegraph company to order the Easter lily delivered next Saturday to his mother back home in Keokuk, instead of giving the order to Blossom & Co., the society florists, for delivery through trade channels. Blossom & Co., therefore, will lose their twenty per cent commission on the order, but the florist in Keokuk, if he is wise, will charge the telegraph company the full retail price and he will get an order worth more to him than it would be if it came from a florist. The chances are the publicity work of the telegraph company, while it will bring it business to turn over to florists, also will have the effect of increasing the telegraph delivery business between florists through the established trade channels. This is a department of the florists' business in which competition surely will prove to be the life of trade.

Florists should encourage the telegraph companies to advertise the sending of flowers as gifts.

NATIONAL SHOW AT CLEVELAND?

Cleveland wants the fifth National Flower Show and purposes to hold it in the spring of 1918.

The following letter has been given to the National Flower Show committee. April 25 the voters of Cleveland will pass on a bond issue for $2,500,000 for a Municipal auditorium and exposition building. This will give Cleveland plenty of room to handle the show in a big way. The invitation reads:

National Flower Show Committee.

Gentlemen: Cleveland desires the honor of having the next and fifth National Flower Show in the spring of 1918.

The central location of our city, making it of easy access to the east, west, north and south, does not have to be argued. This also means a minimum of express and freight rates for the exhibitors.

We have an organization that is capable of handling the undertaking and making good. For reference: Cleveland flower show, 1915.

Whatever financial backing is necessary will be forthcoming from our interested organizations in Cleveland.

We ask for a favorable decision during the present week if possible.

Thanking you for considering the matter at your earliest convenience, I remain,

Yours truly,
H. P. KNOBLE, Chairman.

Committee of Invitation Cleveland Florists' Club, Ohio Horticultural Society, Garden Club of Cleveland.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

So far as local trade is concerned, there is no appreciable change in Chicago market conditions. But lucky, indeed, is he who has worked assiduously to build up a substantial list of out-of-town patrons, for now the volume of shipping orders is rapidly increasing, as well as the size of the individual order. If it were not for the activity of the shipping trade there would be a glut in even the short items on the market.

The supply of Beauties continues to increase, while the demand is for only first-class stock. Any grade falling below excellent is moved with difficulty. Other roses, without regard to variety, are moving slowly, and if it were not for the shipping trade they would not move at all.

Carnations are in light supply, but are sufficient to meet all present demands. The Enchantress family still drags. Another week, however, should change the carnation situation for the Order Plenty for Easter

DON'T be afraid to take hold strong for Easter—it will be the biggest business the Florists' Trade ever has seen. Order enough and order of us—do it today—and then push the selling; we do the rest.

EASTER LILIES

Our Lilies average two and three blooms per stem, just the kind you want, packed at the greenhouses, 100 in each wood box, so they will reach you without rehandling.

Long, Fancy, the best.....$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000
Medium Stems, a good grade.. 10.00 per 100; 80.00 per 1000
Short, good, clean flowers..... 8.00 per 100; 60.00 per 1000

FANCY ROSES

KILLARNEY BRILLIANT MRS. RUSSELL MILADY
MRS. WARD OPHELIA KILLARNEY WHITE KILLARNEY

The Russells we offer you are the finest in America. They took 1st at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, and at the International at New York. We offer extra special Russells at $4.00 per dozen, an excellent value. But we also have shorter grades—a big cut of the medium and short stock you can sell in quantity.

CORSAGE FLOWERS

Believing it unsafe to push Violets for so late an Easter, we recommend that you use Spencer Sweet Peas, Valley and short Roses in your corsage work. You can give these flowers your strongest endorsement, especially our Peas and Valley.

FANCY CARNATIONS

The largest supply of fancy carnations in this market.

BULB STOCK

We are the largest handlers of Jonquils in the west, and we have the only supply of Darwin Tulips in several colors; you surely will want these regularly, once you try them.

FANCY FERNS

We pride ourselves on the quality of our hardy cut ferns. If your supply is not entirely satisfactory, try ours.

better. Growers have again maneuvered valley onto the short side of the market. Potted Easter lilies have enjoyed a splendid sale, but cut stock has not yet become active. There is every indication of a large supply of lilies for Easter, but they will probably average shorter stems than they have in several years, for practically all of them will be giganteums, as Formosas are about done for. Callas are moving fairly well, considering the large supply. Cattleyas continue scarce. A few warm days would clear the market of violets, but as it is they are hanging on, though they have ceased to be a feature of the market.

Sweet peas still are in fair supply and continue to experience a good demand. Calendula, snapdragon and mignonette are available in quantity. Daffodils are not moving so well as they should. The popular taste seems to be for jonquils and these are moving nicely. Large quantities of outdoor southern jonquils are arriving, some too poor to sell. Freesia is scarcely to be considered, it is so nearly done for. A large proportion of the tulips received seem to be spotted and this does much to retard their sale. The receipts of gladiodi are rapidly increasing. A welcome harbinger of spring, Spanish iris, has made its appearance.

The supply of smilax continues short. Other greens move, but not hurriedly.

Club Meeting.

The meeting of the Florists' Club April 6, at the Morrison hotel, will long be remembered by those present. It was remarkable for the smallest attendance of any meeting in more than a year, but twenty-five being present, and for the fact that of all the club's officers, only the president and vice-president were present.

In the absence of the secretary, President Henderson requested James Morton to act in that capacity. But when it came to appointing a temporary treasurer, he expressed himself as being fully capable of handling whatever funds might come his way. As the raffling of the silver punch bowl was scheduled as the feature of the meeting, all other matters were subordinated. The man holding the winning ticket was A. Bensen, of Downers Grove. As Mr. Bensen was not present, the club voted that the secretary notify him to appear at the next meeting to receive the bowl.

The only exhibit was a splendid vase of twenty-five red carnations, seedling No. 701, staged by Anton Then. President Henderson appointed A. T. Pyfer, E. H. Meuret and Charles Blewitt to act as judges. They scored the variety eighty-eight points, and it was awarded the club's certificate of merit.

During the evening the following were elected to club membership: Peter Kohl, of Morton Grove, Ill., and Edward E. Schmeltekopf, of Park Ridge, Ill.

In spite of the paucity of members and the lack of formal entertainment, those present felt well repaid for the effort of attendance.

Various Notes.

In the Gold room at the Congress April 22 society is to repeat the Easter flower sale of two years ago, only where there were twenty-two tables then, forty-seven are arranged for now. The retailers who cater to fashionable trade are being asked to contribute, which, according to C. A. Samuelson, is rubbing it in, as the affair will cut a big hole in the sales of leading retailers.

William Wienhoeber is, in the trade, the most recent purchaser of a Moline-Knight car. He has ordered a 4-passenger roadster. The Moline-Knight is extremely popular among florists, perhaps in part because Charles Hartwig, son of a pioneer Chicago florist and himself for some years in the trade, is a Moline salesman. Joseph Foerster, John Michelsen, Ernst Amling, Paul Weiss, Hector E. Elliott and Frank Schramm are a few of those in the trade who drive Moline-Knights.

There will be no shortage of valley for a time at least, as H. N. Bruns recently received three carloads of pips from Hamburg.

A number of florists and their families were to be seen in the large audience at the laying of the corner-stone of the new Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church in Oak Park April 9. Among them were H. N. Bruns, E. C. Amling, G. Swenson, Alex. Henderson, Paul Weiss and John Michelsen. The pastor of the church, Rev. J. M. Bailey, is Mr. Amling's son-in-law.

The basket-weaving force of the A. L. Randall Co., so F. M. Johnson says, now numbers sixty men and is being enlarged as fast as trained workers can be found. Two carloads of willow were received this week.

Now that the frost is out of the ground, work is being rushed on George C. Weiland's new range of Foley rose houses at Niles Center.

That section of the Democracy in which Carter Harrison and Peter Reinberg are leaders had a great success at the election April 11. Mr. Reinberg was elected delegate to the national convention by a vote of 5,816 to 5,443 for the redoubtable Mr. Weber.

W. J. Keimel and Guy French returned April 10 from the Philadelphia and New York shows. August Poehlmann also attended both shows, but returned a day or two earlier.

Last season's success with Darwin tulips has more than been repeated by Sam Pearce, who is closing one of the best bulb years in his experience.

The sympathy of the trade goes to J. Mergen, whose only remaining son, Ernest, a young man of 22 years, died April 6, of tuberculosis, at the Naperville sanatorium. The funeral was held from the home, 2025 West Twelfth street. Interment was in Oakridge cemetery.

W. E. Tricker, of Arlington, N. J., will do a large job of landscape work on the grounds of the Peabody mansion at Hinsdale this summer and is expected here this week or next to start the work.

Chicago looks so good to John W. McIntyre, formerly in business for himself in Philadelphia, that he is thinking seriously of locating here.

Eric Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., has the sympathy of his many friends in the trade in the loss of his sister, Evelyn Johnson, April 4. Four weeks ago Miss Johnson, who was 24 years of age, was taken to the West Suburban hospital to undergo an operation for a growth in her throat. The operation appeared to be successful in every respect, and she was convalescing so rapidly that for three days preceding her death she was able to walk about in her room. But April 4 she suffered a sudden relapse, which speedily terminated in death. Funeral services were held in Eric Johnson's home, 1439 Thome avenue, April 9. Interment was in Mount Olive cemetery. Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., was one of the pallbearers.

There is no longer any doubt that the trade can boast a star bowler of the first magnitude. Last week Fred Price, of the J. A. Budlong house, bowling in the North Chicago league, averaged 235⅓. It is reported that he set the pace when the florists' team was taking three games straight from the leaders of the league. Other members of the team to shine were Peter Olsem, with an average of 214⅔, and John Huebner and Victor Norman, each averaging 206⅓.

Matchless and Alice are two carnations that have earned more space in the establishment of Wietor Bros., so preparations are being made for benching 10,000 of each for next season. N. J. Wietor says the space will be obtained by discarding White Perfection and cutting down on the number of Enchantress.

A trip to the far west always operates as an inspiration with C. L. Washburn. He returned April 7 and is already up to his ears in a rush of shipping orders.

An unusually successful violet season is reported by M. C. Gunterberg, who is anticipating the Easter rush by adding to her staff of lily growers.

While Emil Reichling, greenhouse manager for Peter Reinberg, was east to visit the National Flower Show he bought stock of Lady Alice Stanley to add to his rose list; also, stock of Good Cheer and Rosette to add to the carnation list.

After flirting with death for many days, John Enders again answered the roll call in the cut flower department of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. April 10. He is pale, but still smiling.

The store force of Zech & Mann will bowl the greenhouse force of W. H. Amling at Maywood, the evening of April 13.

week boosted business in Cicero, according to a report from J. J. Kolar & Son, 5136 West Twenty-fifth street, who have been enjoying an increased volume of trade. But then, it may not be the weather, but the service.

At Winterson's Seed Store comment is made on the retail sale for "Washington brand" cherry trees. Well-known standard varieties are offered under this name, well-grown, Indiana trees, with good roots, and they are said to sell steadily at $1, $2 and $3 each in competition with 35-cent trees advertised by department stores. It is a daily occurrence to see a lady taking her cherry tree away in an electric automobile.

The truth of the old adage, "Where there's a will there's a way," has been proved recently by O. A. & L. A. Tonner, who have already worked up a good business in their new quarters.

Business has been sufficiently good with D. D. P. Roy, 1005 Federal Life building, to warrant an increase in the force in the person of Alexander Bennett, formerly of Boston.

Visitors.

The Morton Grove greenhouses of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. were visited April 9 by a select party of out-of-town florists under the able guidance of Arnold Ringier, Robert Newcomb and Thomas McAlister. The visitors were: Daniel MacRorie and Angelo J. Rossi, both of San Francisco; James Forbes, Portland, Ore., and Samuel Murray, Kansas City. The visitors were well entertained and greatly enjoyed the trip.

Xavier Wojtkiewicz, of Niles Center, Mich., was a visitor on the Chicago market last week.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Wilmette and Chicago, is again in town. Mr. Philpott spends so much of his time traveling that it is not an easy matter to keep track of his movements.

W. L. Rock and wife were in town April 10 on their way home to Kansas City after attending the Philadelphia and New York shows.

A. C. Zvolanek, sweet pea specialist of Lompoc, Cal., is here on his way home from an eastern trip.

A. E. Kunderd, the Goshen, Ind., gladiolus specialist, was a recent visitor.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Business continues to hold up well and there is a good supply of stock coming in. Roses are more plentiful and some extra fine stock can easily be had, especially of the newer varieties, which are showing up well and give indications of a bumper crop at Easter. Red roses continue to have their call and it is surprising how they are cleared during the Lenten season, when it is usually difficult to dispose of them. Carnations are plentiful, but they are decreasing in size somewhat. Lilies are more plentiful and many are used in funeral work, which continues heavy. Bulbous stock is abundant and the outlook is good for Easter along this line, as everyone seems to have much of this stock left. Sweet peas hold their own both in quality and quantity, and all that come into the market are quickly sold. Snapdragon was in abundant supply last week. Pot plants for Easter will not be so plentiful as usual, but there nevertheless will be a large number in the market for Easter, especially of lilies, hydrangeas and bulbous pan stock.

Our Record

WE HAVE been building florists' refrigerators for 15 years, and it has been our aim to build only the best in every way. Within that time our business has grown rapidly, until today, what was at the start a very small shop is a large and completely equipped and perfectly organized factory. Our success in the making and marketing of Florists' Special Refrigerators has been very gratifying, and we attribute this success to a thorough and practical understanding of the requirements of florists, as well as to a fixed determination to excel in this particular line of manufacturing.

We exercise the greatest care in the selection of all materials entering into our goods, and each and every part is thoroughly inspected by our experts. In this way we are able to make refrigerators which not only appeal to the eye for their beauty of design and finish, but which excel in every other way.

To establish the reputation we enjoy has required careful study of the florists' special needs and constant guarding against imperfect workmanship and the use of inferior materials; to maintain this reputation shall ever be our constant aim, and we promise to all the utmost satisfaction.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The impression prevails that the height of the sweet pea crop has passed for the time. If that impression is correct, sweet peas will be in a good but not overabundant supply for Easter.

The market for the last week has been dull, with promise of better things shown in an occasional spurt of business. Prices have declined in face of heavy receipts and the bad snow storm of Saturday and Sunday. History has repeated itself, bringing a painful reminder of the snow storm of last year on the day before Easter. Luckily, this storm, though worse than the last, only spoiled a Saturday's business, leaving hope that it will not recur April 22.

There are no special features to the market besides those already given. The indications for Easter are for a good supply of all flowers, with slightly higher prices on Beauties, orchids, carnations, sweet peas and violets. This forecast is based on the hope of fair, cool weather. Storms or extreme heat will upset it. Violets, both single and double, may still be a factor at Easter, late as it is, provided hot weather is deferred. Just now violets, stocks, daisies and pansies are almost unsalable. Lilac is in decreased supply. Asparagus and ferns are selling well.

greenhouses of Aschmann Bros. The display of Easter plants is unusually fine. Their place is in excellent condition, both on the benches and underfoot, where cleanliness and cement walks abound, if one may use that expression. The hydrangeas, with leaves down to the pot, are well covered with flowers that need no rushing to bring them to perfection in time. The stock is evenly divided between three of the French varieties on the one hand, and good old Otaksa on the other. The lilies, all giganteum, are heavily flowered; they range in height through three sizes, each carefully graded in houses by themselves.

The carried-over azaleas are particularly well budded; many of the plants will, when they come into bloom, be a compact mass of flowers. While fine, the importation of last fall is more irregular in shape. This style of azalea has its admirers, but is hardly as satisfying to the skillful grower. Some of the spiræas are extremely heavy, well filled with large spikes that will soon be in bloom; others are lighter, both in foliage and in flower. There are fine roses and dracænas and ferns and quantities of bulbs in pots, with a vast array of spring plants to follow on, which indicates a good harvest in May, to follow the harvest at Easter.

The Credit Association.

No less than five disastrous failures have brought out strongly the need of a well regulated credit association. That the wholesalers, who form a body of our most enterprising florists, should suffer such serious losses through the failures of their customers is a condition that cannot be tolerated. Every conscientious retailer should do all in his power to further the interest of such an association, both for his own good and for the general welfare—for his own good because short-time credits will discourage unfair competition; for the general welfare because these bad failures cast a cloud on the good name of florists in the community.

Godfrey Aschmann's Place.

The greenhouses at 1012 Ontario street are ready for Easter business. There is an immense stock that fills every bench of the entire place. There are lilies, clean and healthy, with buds of good length; spiræas in great numbers, nicely flowered; azaleas in even greater numbers, and hydrangeas. These form the leading varieties of blooming plants. One of the novelties is the genista, that I do not recall having seen here in past seasons. The cinerarias are covered with large heads of well colored flowers that command attention the moment the house is entered. The appearance of the houses indicates that the demand has kept pace with the supply, carrying off those varieties of plants, particularly in the larger sizes, that are considered midwinter specialties.

Various Notes.

"First on George Henry!" That was the substance of the wire that Emil F. Lieker sent over from New York to his friend, George Aeugle, in this city, April 7. It meant that Mr. Lieker's famous carnation sport from Benora had been successful at the great New York flower show.

Alfred M. Campbell, Mrs. Campbell and Edward A. Stroud visited the New York flower show April 9. They spent five hours there, thoroughly enjoying every moment of their stay.

William J. Baker is handling some good snapdragon.

The monthly meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society was held April 10. William G. Rice, of the Engineers' Club of Philadelphia, talked on a trip through the Canadian Rockies.

Stuart H. Miller is receiving Lady Hillingdon roses, not often seen now, and exceedingly fine daffodils. His sweet peas are of excellent quality.

The Henry F. Michell Co. believes that its mail-order business was equal to that of last year, despite the unfavorable weather of March.

tions. Shipments of the latter are growing in quantity every day, and it is said there will be immense receipts for Easter. The best of the novelties in large lots sold as low as $20 per thousand April 8.

The best Beauties sold at 40 cents last week. The flower show has emphasized their popularity. Good figures for the selects will prevail until after Easter. Beauties and Hadleys are still running an even race for public favor. Brunners are here and as popular as ever. All the newer roses are in good demand, especially Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Double White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Sunburst and Prima Donna.

Orchids are in great variety and plentiful. Prices for the selects are steady. There will be some splendid Mossiæ and gigas for Easter, also phalænopsis and dendrobiums. There has been no advance in the values of gardenias. The best retail stores consider $2 per dozen the present extreme in price and from that on down to less than $5 per hundred is reflected in the offerings of the street merchants. Valley is abundant and prices are reasonable; in fact, most of the select stock last week sold as low as $2 per hundred. Lilies have also retrograded, the shorts down to 3 cents and the top grade to 6 cents each. The tendency is upward, however, as Easter approaches.

Violets have to be of special quality to induce the retailers to bother with them at all. The men of the street are the only visible outlet. These distributors are at every corner and they offer also valley, pansies and gardenias. The supply of freesia is light. Daffodils of local growing have to contend with the southern shipments. There still are fine irises, tulips and narcissi and an abundance of daisies, pansies, sweet peas, wallflowers and forget-me-nots. The sweet peas are of especially high grade.

At a meeting of the American Dahlia Society April 8, President Vincent in the chair, it was decided to hold a show in the American Institute rooms, in the Engineers' building, on West Thirty-ninth street, September 26 to 28. Messrs. Stillman, Duthie and Austin were appointed on the general committee, and Messrs. Barron, Dick and Lane the committee on publicity.

The death of Mrs. Sperwin, the Brooklyn florist, is reported. Mrs. Sperwin since her husband's death some years ago has managed the store with success and was highly regarded in the trade and by all who knew her.

A. A. Young, of Jewett City, Conn., is sending the Growers' Cut Flower Co. Enchantress Supreme and White Enchantress carnations that speak for a most successful season.

Robert Berry, now with Bobbink & Atkins, has gone to Lawrenceville, Va., with eighteen carloads of nursery stock, including 1,800 rhododendrons and many specimen evergreens, to fill a contract amounting to $10,000.

The Summer Flower Show.

A meeting of officials and others interested in the show to be held at Pelham Bay, June 1 to 4, met April 7, there being about sixty present. Short speeches were made in favor of the proposed show by Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the American Dahlia Society; Wm. Carter, secretary of the Bernardsville Horticultural and Agricultural Society; John Featherstone, president Tarrytown Horticultural Society; David McIntosh, secretary Tuxedo Horticultural Society; T. A. Havemeyer and B. Hammond Tracy, representing the American Gladiolus Society; P. W. Popp, corresponding secretary of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society; Anton Bauer, of the Deal Horticultural Society; Bertrand Farr, president of the American Peony Society, and W. A. Manda.

It was agreed that a charge of $5 should be made for admission on the first day, $1 the second day, 50 cents the third day, with one free day. This matter, however, together with the appointment of the various committees, was left in the hands of the executive committee of the International Garden Club.

Arthur Herrington was appointed secretary-manager. It is hoped that the revised preliminary schedule will be published within the next few days, but other cups, donations or prizes from societies or individuals are expected, and may be added to the final schedule.

The Market.

Last week saw another change in the market situation here. Stock is none too plentiful, the cloudy weather having held it back somewhat, and the recent freezes undoubtedly have cut off some of the outdoor stock. Lilacs were well advanced and the earliest varieties in the most protected places were even showing bloom, but now it is feared that both these and the peonies were seriously injured. The expected activity in the seed trade has been put off again. All agree that business is far below normal this spring. The first pot hydrangeas made their appearance during the last few days. They are of excellent quality and are moving well. Other pot plants are scarce, excepting hyacinths. Roses and carnations are less plentiful than they were ten days ago, but sweet peas continue as abundant as ever.

Cannas and other bulbs are selling unusually well, considering the weather, and the demand for bedding plants was opening up when the frost arrived. The calls for dahlias seem to be more numerous this spring than usual.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. is offering attractive made-up boxes of hydrangeas at present. We do not remember having seen this plant used in this way before.

Oscar Geny is away for a few days at Redboiling Springs for his health.

The trade here has been interested in the reports of the high-quality Hadley roses at the recent shows, as this rose has proved a failure here.

The Mt. Olivet Greenhouses are offering some of the best pot plants that I have seen this season.

It is reported that Floyd Bralliar is to sever his connection with the Hillcrest School Farm, June 1. F. B.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—A baker's dozen of Beauties were delivered to the mayor March 26, accompanied by a card on which was inscribed the following: "Greetings to your honor, from the F. T. D., Fourth National Flower Show, Philadelphia." Less than an hour after the message was sent at Philadelphia, the Furrow Floral Co. presented the gift to the mayor. Two hundred mayors were similarly honored,

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The annual spring glut held off much longer than usual, but it has arrived at last. March 7 a snow storm arrived and crippled Saturday's business; otherwise, the street fakers would have used the surplus stock that accumulated during the week. Roses are plentiful and even the best grades are selling at low prices. Carnations are overplentiful and prices have receded considerably. Southern daffodils are arriving heavily and the many Emperors interfere with the sale of greenhouse stock, especially when they can be had as low as 15 cents per twenty-five. Asparagus is out of sight, both in price and supply. Smilax remains scarce.

Club Meeting.

At the regular club meeting, held April 10, Thomas Stevenson gave an interesting talk on roses, and if the vases of Killarney Brilliant and White Killarney shown by Mr. Stevenson were an example of his production he is well qualified to speak on the subject. They surely were prize-winning stock.

George Morrison was appointed chairman of a committee to make arrangements for the fall show to be held in connection with the Maryland week exhibition in the Fifth Regiment Armory. Louis P. Eyer was appointed by the president as club florist for the ensuing year. Thomas R. Ross, of Sudbrook Park, was proposed for membership.

Various Notes.

Henry Lehr, who has been ill during the best part of the winter, is gradually improving, though he still is in the hospital.

Harrison's Nurseries, of Berlin, Md., made free distribution at their branch store at 507 North Howard street of 15,000 fruit trees to the school children of the city Arbor day.

Henry Seidlich, of Catonsville, has purchased a delivery truck, and B. Stoll, of Brooklyn, has a new pleasure car.

James Hamilton will hold his annual display of Easter plants to the public April 16.

Erdman & Ulrich have a fine lot of Easter stock that will come on in good time.

Samuel Feast & Sons have a batch of good rambler roses in pots for Easter sales. W. F. E.

Gloucester, Va.—Clay Drewry, of Baiæ Farm, has returned to his first love, the greenhouse business.

Alton, Ill.—O. A. Anderson has accepted a position with the Alton Floral Co. and will have charge of the work at North Alton.

The Market.

Outdoor stock received a considerable setback last week when the city was visited by a bad snow storm for this time of the year. It was a flareback of winter that caused prices of greenhouse flowers to stiffen slightly. Gardenias, which up to this time have been scarce, rushed into bloom last week to the end that they were offered by venders on the streets at 10 cents each. Sweet peas have been so plentiful that they are almost without price and at times have been refused by the street men, who want something more of a novelty. Valley is quite scarce and is not in the best of shape when it arrives from distant points. It is holding up to $5 per hundred, but is not purchased by the retailers when there is the opportunity to substitute something else. Easter lilies are quite plentiful and have been selling well at from $10 to $12 per hundred. Snapdragon is in fair demand for table decorations at this time and white and yellow daisies are popular, bringing from 50 cents to $1 per hundred. Some excellent purple, double cornflowers appeared during the week. There is the usual offering of stocks, mignonette, pansies and other seasonable flowers.

The price on staple flowers, since the coming of warmer weather, has fallen considerably. Carnations are sold at what the buyer wishes to offer. A top price is $4 per hundred, but only a few choice flowers bring that amount. American Beauty roses have increased in quantity and the top price is now $6, as against $7.50 to $9 last month, and good stock can be had for considerably less than that figure. White roses have been selling well and these cleaned up daily, bringing from $4 to $8 per hundred. The local crop of violets is nearly over. The New York violets are in poor condition when they reach here and are not in much demand.

Club Meeting.

As a result of a discussion at the monthly meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, D.C., last week, an effort is to be made to curb the donation evil, which is growing to such an extent that it is a hardship upon the retailers, especially those who do not grow their own stock. At the same time protest was made against the requirements of customers that the florists advertise in all sorts of mediums from which the returns, if any, do not warrant the expense involved.

During the consideration of these matters, it was suggested that the following rules, now observed by other organizations of Washington, be adopted:

No member of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., shall advertise in or on anything except newspapers, street cars, billboards, theater programs, city and telephone directories and publications now enjoying second-class mail rates, unless the medium has the approval of the advertising committee.

No member of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., shall purchase any tickets for any excursion, benefit, fair or similar entertainment sent in by mail, or otherwise unsolicited, unless the same has the approval of the advertising committee.

No member of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., shall donate flowers or other merchandise, or consider any donation or subscription scheme of any kind, or for any purpose, unless the same has the approval of the advertising committee.

Action on the above was deferred until the May meeting of the club, in order that all interested may have an opportunity of becoming familiar with the proposed rules.

Harry B. Lewis, chairman of the committee on transportation for the Philadelphia flower show, rendered an interesting report on the trip. The party from this city was one of the largest that visited Philadelphia from a distant city. He and other speakers were loud in their praise of the excellence of the show.

Mr. Lewis also spoke of his observations in and around Washington during the spring clean-up period. He called the attention of the members to the growing activities of would-be gardeners, who, lacking a proper knowledge of gardening, are laying waste many private estates and lawns. He cited several instances in which cutting back had ruined rambler rose bushes and forsythia just about to come into bloom.

Comment was made on the practice of builders who, after erecting residences at a cost of thousands of dollars, fail to give proper attention to the grounds surrounding them, contenting themselves with filling in with common clay and trusting to chance that the grass will come up.

Various Notes.

All attention seems to have been centered on the bowling tournament now in progress here. William F. Gude, who is president of the Atlantic Coast Bowling Association, sent the first ball down the alley and, continuing for a single string, came out top man of the set, but Mr. Gude absolutely refuses to allow the score to be made public. He sent more balls off the alley than he knocked down pins, it is rumored. George C. Shaffer, Edward Niedomanski and Robert McLennan have been making fair scores in the single and double events with the big pins. They have good chances of bringing home a few prizes. The big noise, as far as the florists are concerned, took place March 6, when "Shaffer's Flowers" met the Gude Bros Co. and a number of other teams in a battle royal. The line-up of the Shaffer team was Dunn, G. C. Shaffer, A. Shaffer, Supper and Gouldman, while those bowling for the honor of the Gude Bros. Co. were Hohman, Keefer, Palmer, Hawley and Cook. The score as between these two teams was 1,334 to 1,230. G. C. Shaffer and Keefer were the top men on their respective teams, each bowling a total of 282.

Among the week's visitors were Mr. and Mrs. H. Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia; H. E. Barrows, of Brookline, Mass.; F. F. Covey, of Fredericksburg, Va.; Ernest F. Hoehl, representing S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Philadelphia; M. A. Vinson, of Cleveland, O.

William F. Gude was installed last week as exalted ruler of Washington Lodge No. 15, B. P. O. E., opening the Elks' new year with elaborate festivities.

Adolph Gude has returned from New York, where he visited the flower show. Mr. Gude is well pleased with his trip and says that the show was a fine one.

BOSTON.

The Market.

We have had occasional good days, but, on the whole, business is far from animated. It is just as good, however, as anyone could expect a fortnight before Easter, and everyone is optimistic, anticipating record business at the great annual floral festival. Roses are doing somewhat better than a week ago. They are in good supply, but the demand has been good. Special Beauties are scarce, but the call for them is light. The finest flowers make $30 per hundred with difficulty. Medium grades are selling well. Hybrid teas are now of top-notch quality. Specially fine are Hadley, Radiance, Francis Scott Key, Sunburst,

Russell, Ophelia and Stanley. The one-time favorite, Richmond, is now relegated to the rear. Short-stemmed stock is making better prices than last week, but there is little change in medium and select grades. Carnations are still somewhat druggy, with prices varying from $1.50 to $3 per hundred, a few selling as low as $1. Thanks to continued cool weather, the quality is superb.

The single violet season dies hard. Some growers even think they will have flowers until Easter. Of doubles the supply is adequate. Pansies of selected colors, with good stems, make as much as $2 per hundred. Other grades go as low as 50 cents. Dutch bulbous flowers are in heavy supply, but the clean-up is not at all bad. Spanish iris is now abundant. There are also anemones, ixias and ranunculi, all of which sell well. Sweet peas are abundant and of superb quality. They are among the most popular flowers at present. Prices run as high as $1.50 to $2 per hundred for select long-stemmed Spencers. Callas are heavily overstocked; so are lilies, both longiflorum giganteum and speciosum. Forget-me-not sells slowly, but English primroses and yellow polyanthus are in demand. Prices are easier on white and yellow marguerites and bachelor's buttons. Snapdragons, outside of good pinks, are not selling at all well. Gardenias are in good supply, with a tolerably good demand. Cattleya Schroederæ is the only orchid now procurable in quantity. Pot plant trade shows signs of increased activity. The large specialists all report heavy sales, some being already practically sold out.

Club Field Day at Waverley.

Despite the bitterly cold weather and lowering skies April 8, there was an attendance of over 100 at the popular annual field day of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at the W. W. Edgar Co. establishment, Waverley, to inspect the show of Easter plants. The visitors included many ladies and all were well repaid for their visit, the various houses being filled to overflowing with high-grade stock, which eclipsed in quality anything previously turned out at this noted plant factory.

The 15,000 lilies, mostly giganteums, were just in the right condition and a cleaner and more even lot it would have been hard to find. Tausendschon and other rambler roses in large numbers, polyanthas and hybrid perpetuals were all fine. The hybrid perpetuals, carrying an average of half a dozen strong buds each, were especially good. The carried-over azaleas were splendid; far ahead of the fall imported ones. French hydrangeas in the leading varieties were grandly flowered. These make much nicer Easter plants than the old Otaksa. Lilacs, rhododendrons, genistas, Dutch bulbous plants, etc., were all in first-class shape. A beautiful specimen, heavily flowered, of Acacia pubescens excited admiration. This grand specimen was sold, to go to California.

Great quantities of bedding plants, winter-flowering begonias, cyclamens, etc., were coming along and all will be glad to receive some more space as the Easter stock passes. Under the benches were quantities of Lilium speciosum for summer flowering, rambler roses for a June crop, hydrangeas, etc. No space here is allowed to go to waste. The firm is planning to erect, before another season, one or two modern houses and also a new office, show room, etc.

When the large company had gathered in the big packing room and a generous collation had been disposed of, speech-making held sway for some time. James Methven, the club president, introduced the speakers, who were James Wheeler, Robert Cameron, who commented on the Philadelphia and New York shows; Kenneth Finlayson, Peter Fisher, A. K. Rogers, George F. Stewart, W. J. Kennedy, T. H. Westwood and H. H. Bartsch. President Methven, amid cheers, presented to Mrs. W. W. Edgar a fine mahogany English tea wagon, cake stand and some other useful accessories, on behalf of many friends. Mrs. Edgar feelingly replied and expressed her thanks. Little Miss Edgar furnished a recitation entitled "Her Sister's Beau." Everyone had a delightful afternoon and did not mind the snow which started to fall, heavily driven by a northeast wind, as they journeyed homeward.

Various Notes.

Local nurserymen are busy digging trees and shrubs and have more orders on hand than for some years.

As if we had not yet had sufficient snow, we got further heavy falls April 8 and 9, driven by a northeast gale. This storm brought up memories of the Easter one in 1915.

At A. M. Davenport's, Watertown, there is a grand stock of Easter flowering plants. Particularly fine are rambler and polyantha roses, deciduous shrubs, azaleas, genistas and spiræas.

Everything points to a grand exhibition in Boston May 10 to 14. Rock gardens, roses, azaleas, rhododendrons, pelargoniums, calceolarias, orchids, wistarias and late tulips are only a few of the many attractive features scheduled.

Interest in the outing being planned for July by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, to Bar Harbor, Me., on the occasion of the exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society, is steadily growing. It will be an all-water trip, using the five steamers of the Eastern Steamship Corporation, and already applications for reservations have come from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Rhode Island, in addition to many locally.

Charles Evans, of Watertown, has an excellent lot of Dorothy Perkins, Tausendschon and Crimson Rambler roses for Easter, in addition to a big lot of well bloomed Hydrangea Otaksa, in which Mr. Evans specializes.

Mrs. Albert W. Roper, and Mark, second son of the late Albert Roper, will carry on the Tewksbury carnation establishment. At present the new cerise pink seedling, No. 360, is arriving in grand condition. Flowers of this and other varieties shipped to Philadelphia arrived a full day too late, in common with flowers from S. J. Goddard and others.

Thomas Roland never had heavier advance Easter orders and already practically all his stock is ordered. He has a grand lot of rambler roses, bougainvilleas, hydrangeas, marguerites, genistas and other flowering plants.

William Sim's pick of Spencer sweet peas now averages 25,000 daily, and I doubt if any finer flowers are to be found in America. He also has a big daily shipment of yellow polyanthus. The present week will finish his single violets.

Herman Waldecker, of Braintree, is cutting a fine lot of Spanish iris. White is the predominant color.

F. W. Fletcher & Co., of Auburndale, are making a great hit with perennial larkspurs, which they are now cutting in quantity. Their yellow marguerites are good.

H. R. Comley, of Park street, is showing, among other flowers, ixias, tritonias, ranunculi, Iris histrioides and Iris Hispanica.

A. H. Knight, of Shrewsbury, is making shipments of splendid silver pink and Nelrose chrysanthemums to W. H. Carr.

Robert Cameron and W. H. Judd and wife, of the Arnold Arboretum, were among those who attended the successful reunion of Kewites in New York April 5.

Do not forget the club meeting at Horticultural hall April 18. It comes pretty near Easter, but should draw a large attendance. In addition to F. A. Smith's lecture on "Orcharding," there will be reports on the Philadelphia and New York shows from some of the visitors from here.

Gypsophila elegans is being grown here more each year for spring flowering under glass. R. P. Peterson, of Saxonville, is sending in nice shipments of it; so, also, is W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham.

W. A. Riggs is suffering from an acute attack of rheumatism. His Easter plants look uncommonly well. These include Tausendschon roses, spiræas, genistas, lilies and Dutch bulbous plants.

Local visitors to the New York show were not numerous, but all spoke highly of the exhibition. Had the two big shows been separated a little more, the attendance at the second one would have been heavier from here.

A. F. Coolidge, of Cambridge, is sending in to the Coöperative Market a lot of capitally flowered Erica Caffra densa.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20 to 22, 1916.

THE death of E. Reece, senior member of McKay, Reece & Co., Nashville, Tenn., is recorded in the obituary column this week.

THE affairs of the bankrupt Johnson Seed Co., Philadelphia, will be closed up at a meeting April 17, at the office of the referee.

MARCH weather in April is prolonging the season to some extent, but most of the mail-order seed houses have given up hope that April's increase will make up for the shrinkage in last month's sales.

THE cool weather has proved a boon to the seedsmen handling onion sets, as it is making the shipping of them much less wasteful than it otherwise would be. The market is well cleaned up.

THE heaviest fall of snow of the year in western Pennsylvania, with a blanket of white over the entire Atlantic coast from Washington to Portland, April 8 put a damper on mail orders and counter trade in that part of the country where seed stores are most numerous.

AFTER operating successfully in the onion set territory south of Chicago for five years, as growers' contracting agent on a commission basis, J. Kaufman has decided to engage in the business on his own account and has leased a warehouse of about half an acre in area at Thornton Junction, South Holland, Ill., where he has sidetrack connection with two railroads. His recent operations have approximated 100,000 bushels per year.

IMPORTS OF BULBS.

The following are the official records of the imports of bulbs and bulbous roots or corms imported during the last three years for which statistics are available:

Year ending June 30	Quantity	Value
1913	288,646,000	$1,823,307
1914	216,138,000	2,092,139
1915	255,700,000	2,375,316

CARROT SEED WANTED.

More than 8,000 pounds of carrot seed are needed to plant a crop sufficient for the requirements of the British government contract for 600,000,000 cans of beef stew for the army, according to a statement from Philadelphia. The $91,000,000 order for this special army ration is being handled by the Imperial Canners, Ltd., a Canadian concern formed especially for that purpose a month ago by Philadelphians interested in the Colonial Packing Co.

Referring to the negotiations now under way for the required supplies of carrot seed, the Ledger says:

"A local seed house expects to land the contract for about 6,000 pounds of carrot seed this week. This concern bid on 4,500 pounds of seed two weeks ago for the J. T. Polk Co., an Indianapolis cannery, which is allied with the Colonial Packing Co., in the Imperial Canners, Ltd. The name of the seed house is withheld for the present, but an official of the concern said yesterday that the Indianapolis firm is seeking to place contracts for at least 8,000 pounds of seed, or nearly double the quantity originally figured on.

"The J. T. Polk Co. already has 4,500 acres in small farms in Georgia, Louisiana and Florida under lease, it is understood, and planting will be started within a few days. The crop, seedsmen say, will require from sixty to seventy days to grow in the south.

Chr. Mosbjerg, 216 7th St. N., Minneapolis, Minn.

"The local seed firm yesterday notified the Polk Co. of its ability to furnish between 5,500 and 6,000 pounds of the carrot seed required and the contract for this quantity may be closed before the end of the week. Carrot seed is hard to obtain in large quantities at this season, as northern needs have been supplied and surplus stocks of the seed are all that are available."

BRUNS GETS VALLEY THROUGH.

What is thought to have been a record in several respects was made by an importation of valley pips by H. N. Bruns, of Chicago.

It will be recalled that it was reported in this column that a permit had been issued by the British government authorizing the uninterrupted movement of about three million pips owned by Mr. Bruns. The permit read "via Rotterdam," in accordance with the application, but action had been delayed to the point where Mr. Bruns regarded it as unwise to ship in the Dutch boats, which are without refrigeration facilities. He therefore made application by cable for permission to ship via Copenhagen, whence refrigeration is available.

The shipment left Hamburg March 6 and the steamer sailed as soon as the pips were loaded, the first carload reaching cold storage at Chicago March 30, which is record time. And at that the steamer was taken into Kirkwall by a British warship for the examination of shipping papers.

The Bruns shipment required three refrigerator cars from New York, and duty and freight advanced were over $7,000. The pips arrived in excellent shape, having been under refrigeration continuously except for the brief time required for reloading from car to boat and from boat to car, the car in each case being at the vessel's side.

TO EXPEDITE IMPORTS.

Action by the Merchants' Association of New York probably will put an end to the delays in securing imported stock held by the customhouses pending the arrival of shipping papers, a new course of procedure having been devised.

All American importers have been experiencing great difficulty in obtaining their shipments from customhouse officials promptly because of their inability to produce the necessary papers, which often fail to arrive in the United States until long after the arrival of the goods. Bills of lading and consular invoices coming through the general mail have reached this country anywhere from two or three days to two weeks or more after the arrival of the consignments to which they refer, a delay which is chiefly due to the censorship which all mail from the leading European countries now undergoes.

The effect of this delay, which is vexatious in connection with any class of goods, becomes extremely serious when the goods imported are perishable and likely to suffer from exposure or failure to be unpacked promptly, as in the case of plants, bulbs, etc.

Some time ago the Merchants' Association took up this matter with Collector Malone, at New York, who expressed his desire to coöperate in bringing relief to importers. He stated that Place your order for now and have them delivered to you at any time during the year to suit your own convenience. There is money in Cold Storage Lilies and no mistake.

You will likewise find it to your interest to place your orders now for Cyclamen, Seedlings and Plants; Begonias, Cincinnati and Lorraine, etc., for next season's delivery. And how about your Carnation Cuttings? For a list of varieties and prices, as well as other stock you may want, see our classified ads.

We have just mailed out our catalogue, which you will find very helpful. If you have not received a copy, a postal will bring it by return mail.

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming Giant Pansies An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and their unusual hardiness. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March, or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. Seed ready July 1.

THE BEST LILY

for the florist to grow for commercial purposes, and especially for Easter trade, is the Lilium Giganteum. And as there is considerable difference even in Giganteum, it is better to get Horseshoe Brand bulbs, because they are standard in value and will net more blooms per thousand bulbs than any other brand known. If you are interested in good lily bulbs, send us your name and address, so you may get a pricelist occasionally, and we may become acquainted. Don't write us for Cold Storage bulbs, for we are sold out for this year—but in the fall we will have some nice bulbs at reasonable prices. Order them now, there is nothing to be gained by waiting and something may possibly be lost. Write us.

Not how cheap but how good.

RALPH M. WARD & CO.
THE LILY HOUSE
71 Murray Street
NEW YORK

consignments of imported goods might pass through the customhouse even in cases in which the papers were lacking, provided the third copy of the consular invoice, which the consul forwards direct to the collector of customs at the port of entry, is at hand and the importer is willing to file a bond for the later production of the missing papers.

In this procedure the information contained in the ship's manifest, which is filed at the customhouse, is used in lieu of the data in the delayed bill of lading.

The opportunity to take advantage of this method of procedure depends upon the prompt receipt of the triplicate copy of the consular invoice, which is sent by the consul to the collector of customs. It has been the practice of the consuls to forward these papers at convenience and often with considerable delay, because under normal conditions promptitude is not important.

In order to overcome this difficulty the director of the consular service has instructed American consuls to forward in the official mail the triplicate copy of every consular invoice to the collector of customs at the American port of entry immediately upon its issuance.

The above instructions were sent to the consuls by cable March 23. As soon as sufficient time has elapsed for this procedure to have become operative, it is expected that the delays which have recently been experienced will be overcome.

IMPORTS VIA HOLLAND LARGE.

Consignments of plants, shrubs, trees, bulbs and seed via Holland reached New York last week on board the steamer Nieuw Amsterdam. The consignments were none of them exceedingly large, but an unusual quantity of small ones brought the total number of cases to a high figure. The following consignees were listed in the New York manifest of the Dutch steamer:

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Venice, Cal.—The florists' business is carried on in connection with almost every other occupation known to mankind, so it is perhaps no surprise to learn that Amet, the Venice florist, is editor of a newspaper, the Blazed Trail, organ of the Modern Woodmen.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Abundance of funeral work was the experience of the retailers last week and stock cleared nicely. There is every prospect that good plants will be scarce for Easter. Good rhododendrons and azaleas are in the market, but they will, in many cases, be over before the holiday. Spiræas will be about right and there undoubtedly will be plenty of Easter lilies. A great many of these will be over, but there was a large stock potted this season, and probably our northern growers will be in as usual with a number.

Cut flowers are more plentiful, both from under glass and outdoors. The roses from under glass are fairly good, Russell, American Beauty, Shawyer, Prima Donna and Mrs. F. F. Thompson being among the best. Outdoor Kaiserins now are splendid, large and of purer white than usual. The rust disease, so prevalent in carnations last season, is again showing badly with some of the growers and this is a matter that will have to be taken up seriously, or great damage will occur.

Tulips still are good, the better class of Darwins especially. Callas and Easter lilies are plentiful and there are more baby roses and orchids for corsages. Retailers are getting anxious over Easter stock and are looking up the growers. The greens situation is clearing a little, more plumosus being seen. Pot ferns are plentiful; also forced lilacs and peaches, which make a pretty display.

Various Notes.

O. E. Burns, of the Venice Flower Shop, on Third street, is sending out an attractive folder calling attention to his business.

George Eischen, for many years connected with the J. W. Wolters store, recently bought the Ocean Park store of W. Armacost & Co. and opened there on his own account. Mr. Eischen is an able florist, well known in the business, and should do well in his new venture. He certainly will carry with him the best wishes of a host of friends. Miss Patterson, formerly with Armacost & Co., goes to Darling's Flower Shop.

A rather bold piece of shoplifting took place at the Redondo Floral Co. store on Seventh street last week. A well dressed man made a purchase of $5.50, paying cash. Returning an hour later, he directed the attention of one of the clerks another way and got busy among some Swiss carved vases, pocketing a number of them. He was detected, however, and followed down the street by A. F. Borden, who allowed him to go after recovering the vases.

George W. Smith is making big preparations to move to his new nursery and has plans for a large lath house of original design. He purposes building a dwelling there.

The monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was held April 8, at Kruckeberg's hall. President W. W. Felgate was in the chair and there was a fair attendance to hear Mrs. Dean, of Moneta, speak on the iris. The speaker showed herself to be familiar with this class of plants and read an interesting paper descriptive of the various species and varieties of the genus. A rising vote of thanks was given at the end of the paper. Mrs. Belle Miller repeated her invitation to visit La Crescenta cañons for wild flowers and it was decided to accept her invitation. The committee on the smoker reported and the smoker will be held, as already reported.

Charles Shaw, well known in the trade here, is leaving for his place at Acton, where he has taken a reservation of 120 acres, on which he has built a house.

Louis Truxler and Louis Lecluse express themselves well satisfied with the business done so far at the University Nursery Floral Co. stand on Vermont avenue. Mr. Lecluse has removed some of the greenhouses from Hollywood and is reërecting them here.

The new plantings at Exposition park are beginning to show up well, and although the grounds were flat and uninteresting looking at the start, they now are greatly improved. In the State Exposition building, Secretary Frank B. Davison has an interesting show, while the lawns and herbaceous beds are attractive.

At the Los Angeles Floral Co. store business continues brisk. Among the shipping orders for long distance last week was one for 5,000 carnations.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Business shows no improvement and flowers are so plentiful that prices in nearly all lines are unsatisfactory. The continued warm weather is bringing in much stock that the growers would like to hold back for Easter, and in some quarters anxiety is expressed that the Easter supply may be curtailed. This does not appear likely, however, as the quantity of stock in preparation is exceptionally large. If some flowers run a little short it will mean better prices for others. Offerings of carnations were comparatively light last week and the prices were about normal. There is a large cut of roses, most of them of fair quality. Ophelia, Killarney and Maryland are especially good; baby roses and sprays of climbers are plentiful and even fine long Beauties clean up slowly. Easter lilies are pouring in, but growers expect to have plenty of them left for Easter. Herbaceous peonies are coming in, but the supply is decreasing.

A fine crop of Cattleya Mossiæ is fairly started and several odd varieties are appearing, but phalænopsis is offered less freely. Lilacs, including some fine varieties, are plentiful. Late tulips are in heavy supply and show up well as to quality. Some large lots of Spanish irises are seen, but the quality is nothing extra. Anemones, ranunculi and ixias still are prominent, while freesias are scarce and daffodils are gone. A few violets are still seen and there are too many short, trashy sweet peas. Pink snapdragon is beginning to appear and cleans up well, but other colors are neglected. Stocks, forget-me-nots, marigolds, marguerites, etc., are offered freely but find limited demand. Pansy plants in bloom hold up well. There is enough asparagus for present needs. Rambler roses are improving and wistaria still is good. More azaleas and some fine rhododendrons are offered, as well as a few first-class French hydrangeas. Heather and spiræas are plentiful and move slowly, while gloxinias are fairly well received.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, April 1, showed some reaction from the recent social activities, the attendance being rather light, and the absentees included some of the officers and other leading spirits, as well as those who were at the flower show.

Several interesting matters came up, however, principal among them being the reports of the committees. D. Raymond, for the picnic committee, announced plans for an outing at Pinehurst, July 30, with a charge of 75 cents per person from San Francisco or Oakland; that the grounds were 35 minutes' ride from Oakland and that there was no bar within a mile of the place. His report was approved and it was decided to dispense with games on the occasion, but to have music for dancing.

The exhibition committee reported that a meeting had been held the week previous, at which it was decided to have a show this fall, and further plans and a schedule of prizes will be taken up at the next meeting. H. D. England, of Burlingame, applied for admission to the society, and under suspension of rules was admitted at that meeting, along with Frank Forrest, P. Flippelli, Ernest Stover and J. R. Macdonald, who had been proposed at the previous meeting.

The proposed amendments to the by-laws came up for second reading and there was considerable discussion pro and con. In the absence of the chief proponents of some of the propositions, the talk was largely con. It was voted to give a $25 cup for the Marin county flower show in May and the committee consisting of Messrs. Pelicano, Bagge and Axel, which was appointed to determine what the prize should be for, decided on the best group of flowering plants arranged for effect, not over 100 square feet. This has since been added to the published premium list as a special prize. In regard to a field day, the suggestion that the society attend the Marin show in a body met with general approval. It was suggested that members should take an interest in the coming sweet pea show. As no lecture had been provided, the meeting closed with a general discussion of several questions as to horticultural methods brought up by various members. The evening's exhibits were as follows: Two vases of ranunculi, by Frank Pelicano, 70 points; ten vases of lilacs, including some fine double varieties, by J. Gill, 75 points; plant of Dendrobium thyrsiflorum, by J. A. Carbone, 98 points.

Various Notes.

There has been considerable complaint among local growers about rotting of the later importations of ranunculus bulbs.

J. A. Carbone, of Berkeley, now has many dendrobium plants in bloom. Many sprays of D. thyrsiflorum, with the canary-yellow lip, are being shown in the local stores and a large stock of D. densiflorum, amber yellow, is just coming in, this being its first appearance on the local market. He also has some D. Wardianum, and D. superbum will be in for Easter. His large house of Mossiæ cattleyas is producing good cuts. Mr. Carbone was fairly snowed under with business last week, on the occasion of the funeral of the Berkeley fire chief, who lost his life in a fire. He furnished all the orchids he could cut and had to get extra help. The work of making up floral pieces was divided

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The volume of business handled last week was fully up to the normal for the first week of April. Counter trade was helped by favorable weather and a fair quantity of orders for funerals came in. From all records available, March business was better than that of March of last year. A little bedding stock was sold, but this branch of the trade was not pushed by the dealers. Perennials and ornamentals moved briskly. Concerns doing a catalogue business report that districts east of the Cascade range have responded better than those west of the range. Depression in the lumber business is cited as the chief cause for the difference. Growers of bedding stock have prepared for a heavy call, as all the outdoor stock, except the hardiest sorts, was killed during the winter. Many varieties of fruit trees and all the early shrubbery have come into bloom. The warm days have helped the growers of Easter lilies and most of the stock will be brought in on time.

The carnation blooms are first-class, but the stems of many varieties are brittle, causing losses in handling. But few varieties of blooming pot plants are shown, and ferns are none too plentiful.

Various Notes.

The Portland Floral Society will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday, April 18, at 8 p. m.

Otto Lemke is cutting some excellent Alice carnations. Niklas & Son say this variety is a better keeper than Enchantress.

Max Smith filled some good-sized orders for funeral work last week.

Martin & Forbes exhibited some blooms of the new rose, Gorgeous.

A. F. Lalane has a flower stand in the Market building, across the sidewalk from some of the public market booths. He says he keeps prices up within reason, but that on the street plants and flowers are constantly sold at prices far below the cost of production. He cites as examples daffodils at 5c per dozen; geraniums, 2½ or 3-inch, at 5c each, often including the pots. He predicts that ruinous prices will eventually demoralize trade on the street and affect the concerns having an established business.

Rahn & Herbert are cutting some fine Cecile Brunner roses and pink snapdragons.

Oregon grape has been used extensively in landscaping the public parks. It is now in full bloom and makes a fine showing.

H. Diersch has built a small greenhouse at 325 Trenton street and will grow stock to retail among his neighbors.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

There is a good demand for all kinds of flowers and, while the supply is none too heavy in any line, there is no shortage of seasonable flowers. Carnations are in good demand and the prices are firm. The bright weather improves the quality of the flowers. Roses are fairly plentiful now and all kinds are meeting a brisk sale. Bulbous stock from under glass is almost over, but good outdoor narcissi are coming in and selling at good prices. Forget-me-nots, mignonette and snapdragons are arriving in moderate quantities and a few outdoor violets are quickly disposed of. Azaleas are scarce and bring good prices. Genistas and hydrangeas are here and selling well. Valley is fairly plentiful and there are many cut lilies and callas. The sale for early bedding stock is good. There is an unusual demand for pansies.

National Dahlia Society.

The National Dahlia Society of America has elected the following officers: President, Richard M. Buttle, of Seattle; vice-presidents, A. W. Witherspoon, of Spokane, and Olaf J. Wingren, of La Conner, Wash; corresponding secretary, R. W. Gill, of Portland, Ore.; treasurer, J. R. Thompson, of Tacoma, Wash.; chairman exhibition committee for 1916, Leslie E. Doolittle, of Pacific Grove, Cal.

The president appointed the following officers: Assistant secretary for Great Britain and foreign countries, James B. Riding; assistant secretary of the New England states, George L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I.; assistant secretary for the interior, W. W. Wilmore, of Denver, Col.; assistant secretary for New Jersey, Mrs. H. M. Stout, of Short Hills, N. J.; assistant secretary for Puget Sound, Herbert Dutton, of Seattle.

It was decided that the 1916 exhibition of the society be held in San Francisco. The president and the corresponding secretary hold office for three years; the others are elected annually.

Various Notes.

A distressing accident involving the death of the 10-year-old son of Andrew Matthiesen, of the Matthiesen Greenhouses, occurred March 4. The boy had attempted to ride on one of the dump cars engaged in grading operations on Raimer avenue. In doing so he slipped and the following car passed over his body and he died a few minutes later.

At Hollywood Farm, Victor Anderson has completed the erection of a new house, 39x225 feet, of semi-iron construction, and a lean-to, 12x75. The larger house makes a considerable addition to the extensive plant, but it is required to supply the constantly increasing demand at the Hollywood Gardens store.

NOTICE

To all American Nurserymen and Seedsmen desiring to keep in touch with commercial horticulture in England and the continent of Europe: Your best means of doing this is to take in the

Horticultural Advertiser

Our circulation covers the whole trade in Great Britain and the cream of the European firms. Impartial reports of all novelties, etc. Paper free on receipt of 75 cents, covering cost of postage yearly. As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalogue or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

THE reluctance of spring is giving the nursery trade a chance to reap the benefits of a prolonged season.

LABOR shortage and freight embargoes are a handicap, but orders are going out rapidly, with the prospect that the season's shipments will total up to any record the nursery trade ever has made.

BERTRAND H. FARR, W. P. Bowman, F. Thun, W. A. Goodman and L. S. Trowbridge are incorporating the Bertrand H. Farr-Wyomissing Nurseries Co., established at Wyomissing, Pa. The corporation is to be capitalized at $150,000. Mr. Farr is president of the American Peony Society.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION.

Nursery Business Improving.

"The consensus of opinion from all sections of the country," said Lloyd C. Stark, of Louisiana, Mo., "is that the war has adversely affected the nursery business in about the same ratio as general business throughout the country. In the east, also west of the Rockies, the fruit tree business has been hurt worse than the ornamental trade. This is true particularly of the east. In fact, the ornamental business, everything considered, has been unusually active; the great danger that now confronts nurserymen is that this increased demand for ornamental stock will, in another year or two, encourage excessive propagation that will glut the market with ornamentals and we will have the pleasure of seeing ourselves handling ornamentals at less than cost of production, just as we have witnessed in the last few years an overproduction of apple trees.

"In the central west, through the corn and wheat belts, the demand for fruit trees, in proportion, has been better than in the east. Perhaps I shall not be far wrong when I state that it is probably twenty per cent below normal. The statements I have just made, of course, apply to the entire period since the beginning of the war.

"In the last few months conditions have taken a radical change for the better, and now almost every business in every section is already radiating, or about ready to radiate, with optimism. The press of the United States a few months ago was predicting prosperity; now we hear, see and feel that prosperity has arrived. Times are better; there is no one who will attempt to gainsay that fact. The nursery business has greatly improved and the outlook for spring is much brighter.

Agricultural Prosperity.

"This return of prosperity, some nurserymen will tell you, is due to the war—munition orders, war prices for grain crops, the big increase in our trade balance with Europe, the big increase in our gold reserve. Those who assign these reasons only, fail to reach the basic causes, which, my investigation shows, are—and this applies particularly to the nursery business—the enormous crops and the exceptionally high prices prevailing for the season just closed. The nursery business is largely dependent on the purchasing power of the farmer. When he is in a buying mood nursery stock moves; when he is feeling pessimistic our sales drop. In 1913 and 1914 the farmer passed through two withering droughts; the south suffered severe losses in cotton and the nurserymen felt the results. So did the large orchard companies, many of which ceased to exist and others of which have had hard sledding. The big commercial plantings dropped off rapidly. Last year we had good crops and the country banks are full of money. Farmers feel prosperous and in the last few weeks have begun to buy trees somewhat in the old-time manner. If nothing unforeseen shall occur we may expect a much better spring than last.

HILL'S CHOICE BOXWOODS and OTHER DECORATIVE STOCK, Etc.

There are different qualities of Boxwoods just as there are different qualities of roses, carnations, silks, calicoes, etc. Do not be fooled by low prices; there is always plenty of cheap or inferior stock on the market to be had almost for the asking, but quality Boxwoods and Bay Trees, grown properly and handled right, always command a fair price. Hill Boxwoods and Bay Trees are the business building kind. You will not be disappointed. They are the cream of especially selected stocks, grown for high-class trade. Satisfaction guaranteed. When you want "quality" Boxwoods, Bay Trees and other decorative stock, come to Hill's. Large and complete stock always on hand. For convenience of customers, Boxwoods are offered both with and without tubs. The tubs are neat in appearance, new, sound and substantial, painted green. In no case are old or second-hand tubs used.

THE D. HILL NURSERY CO., Inc., Box 403 Dundee, Illinois
EVERGREEN SPECIALISTS LARGEST GROWERS IN AMERICA

Overproduction a Menace.

"But now to get right down to brass tacks. One other reason, the chief reason for the depression in the nursery business, is this same threadbare old friend, overproduction. The big commercial plantings prior to 1910 and 1911 made too many nurserymen plunge into deep water. As a body, we nurserymen have trusted too much to blind providence and depended too little on our cool, deliberate judgment. Too many nurserymen are born optimists. It seems that we will not permit ourselves to look back over the past; we try to forget the big bonfires and remember only the palmy days.

"My recent somewhat extensive correspondence on this subject bears out this fact. Of the nurserymen to whom I wrote, especially those who were unable to give the matter much of their valuable time, seventy-five per cent replied that they did not know just why, but they somehow felt that after the close of the war we shall experience a great wave of prosperity in the nursery business.

"I think the most dangerous thing that confronts the nursery fraternity is undue optimism. What we need right now is conservative propagation, coupled with up-to-date methods of doing business, undaunted determination to succeed and a strong, healthy, conservative confidence in the future of our country and the nursery profession.

Safety First; Also Second.

"If we will hold our plantings within reasonable bounds and realize that boom plantings are of the past, possibly never to return, I believe we shall all do a profitable business. I think we should be ready at least for a temporary slump following the close of the war. After that slump I think the nation will soon recover, but all the prosperity in the world is not going to offset blind, unwise, top-heavy propagation of trees in either the fruit or ornamental line. The man with blind belief in prosperity to come, who plunges into the propagation of more stock than his selling machinery warrants, is the man who is going to make hard times for the nursery fraternity. He is a greater enemy to himself and more of a menace to his profession than are all the wars and all the destruction in Europe.

"If we grow for a normal demand, husband our resources, be ready for the rainy days, are conservative in our propagation, progressive in our sales methods, the demand for nursery stock during and after the war will hold no unusual dangers for the nurserymen."

THE PANAMA CANNA

Antoine Wintzer's Most Distinctive Creation

ANTOINE WINTZER has probably done more than any other man in America to make the Canna a thing of wondrous beauty. For nineteen years he has hybridized and experimented to improve the type, with a genius and patience almost beyond understanding.

In the Panama, the Canna Wizard has produced a type that marks an epoch in his years of painstaking endeavor. He counts it among the most worthy of his "Canna children."

The Panama is uniquely different from other Cannas. It is more strikingly beautiful, more thoroughly charming in its gorgeous colorings. The Panama is of a decidedly distinct and individual type—a type that is destined to be popular with Canna lovers. The coloring of this handsome Canna is truly unusual, being an attractive rich orange red, with a well defined edge of bright golden yellow. The flowers are very large, with petals that are almost round and as broad as they are long and with an immense spread of individual blooms.

No one who has seen this splendid Canna in bloom is inclined to wonder at the sweeping recognition it has received at the leading Horticultural prize-winning events.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

floor at the rear of its Powell street establishment, to accommodate its general city offices, which will be moved from the Phelan building as soon as the new quarters are ready. The store has had a heavy run of funeral work lately. At the San Mateo county establishment there is a large cut of Formosa lilies, of which there will be a large supply for Easter.

Gus Taylor, who recently opened a store on McAllister street, near Fillmore, has decided that the game in that locality is too hard and has closed the store.

P. Ferrari is getting ready a large lot of azaleas for Easter.

A merchant of Taft, Cal., the wild town of oil fields, known as "Ninety-Nine Cent" Moore, has opened a flower shop there, getting most of his stock from Los Angeles.

E. Johansen, who supervised part of the gardening of the San Diego Exposition, has established a nursery on Second avenue, San Mateo. He formerly had a nursery at Menlo Park.

R. H. May has opened a flower shop at Oroville, Cal.

The Lincoln Floral Co., recently established at 327 Devisadero street, is preparing to move into larger quarters.

Owing to the construction of a building at their old location, the Misses Hannon have occupied temporary quarters at 368 Sutter street.

The Richard Diener Co., at Kentfield, has completed its greenhouse and soon will be ready to begin outdoor planting.

L. Romano, a florist of Colma, has sold a half interest in the business to M. Rollou.

Park Superintendent John McLaren is working on plans for the 400-acre Honora Sharpe tract near Salada Beach.

The Smith-Lachenmyer Nursery Co. has been incorporated at Orland, with a capital stock of $10,000, by J. H. Smith, J. J. Lachenmyer and J. J. Flaherty.

Walter Armacost & Co. have sold their flower store at Ocean Park to George E. Eischen, formerly of Los Angeles.

E. James, of Oakland, is sending in good rambler roses and has a lot of fine stock in the houses to be ready for Easter. He has a few of the large ones, which made a hit last year, and says he could have sold many more. He will have a fine lot of bougainvilleas in pots, for which a good demand is anticipated. S. H. G.

How Much are Dead Flowers Worth?

There is no market for them except the garbage can. And that means not only loss of sales and profits, but it represents money out, because you must pay for your stock whether you sell it or throw it away.

If you could realize on all the blossoms that now wither in stock and are discarded, think how much your profits would increase by stopping this loss. And at no additional overhead or expense.

You can do it with a

McCray Florists Refrigerator

The McCray patented system of refrigeration provides for a cool, even temperature and keeps your flowers fresh and salable, preventing loss from withered stock.

The McCray Florist Refrigerators come with plate glass doors and sides which show the flowers attractively. The different compartments vary in size to accommodate the various lengths of stems.

The woodwork of the McCray may be had in any finish to match your store's interior decoration. The linings may be had in either bevel plate mirror or white enamel, are handsome and easy to clean.

THE BEST RED CARNATION

RESULTS ARE WHAT COUNT!

WINNER of the Silver Medal of the American Carnation Society, at Buffalo, 1915; also WINNER of the SAME MEDAL in the same class at ST. LOUIS, 1916; also of Silver Medal of S. A. F. and O. H., at St. Louis, 1916. The color is a most brilliant red. The size of the flower is 3½ inches. Stems 24 to 36 inches long, strong and stiff. We have never had a burst calyx, all flowers grading firsts; and, best of all, it is a constant bloomer, giving a steady run of flowers equal in number to the Enchantress family.

Price of 2-inch plants is $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.
We will bill 500 at the 1000 rate price.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

There has not been much change in market conditions since the last report. There is evidence of the approach of Easter in the arrangement of plants in the retail stores. New baskets of plants, with ribbons, and pots of made-up plants are attracting some attention. The various designs of bird baths, butterflies and artificial pond lilies are becoming popular.

The wholesale houses are clearing on everything except lilies and violets. Stock of all kinds is coming in freely. There are splendid sweet peas, snapdragons, yellow and white daisies, lupines and mignonettes. Indications are that there will be no advance in prices for Easter, except on carnations.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met April 4 in the Fort Pitt hotel. Reports from those who had attended the Philadelphia show were received. All pronounced the show splendid and spoke of the good treatment and a worth-while time generally.

M. Curran exhibited splendid plants of schizanthus and a specimen of Clarkia elegans five feet high. He was awarded a first-class certificate.

James Murphy was given a certificate of merit for his exhibit of calceolarias and a first-class certificate for a new pink seedling snapdragon.

Carl Beckerer showed purple gloxinias and was awarded a cultural certificate. N. F. Forsyth had a Formosa lily seven feet in height, for which he was given a cultural certificate.

There was a move on the part of some of the members to make arrangements for a banquet, but this was postponed until the next meeting. Clarke.

CAN you imagine anything more beautiful than the above cut? Do you know of any plant in bloom that will take the eye of your customer quicker than an "Easter Greeting"?

To say that "Easter Greeting" and its Sports are "Wonders" is putting it mildly; their equal has never been originated. In order to get these beautiful plants established everywhere, we are going to make a special offer, for a limited time: For all cash orders of 100 or more "Easter Greeting" at $8.00 per 100, we shall add 10 "Wurtemburgia."

These plants are all from 2½-inch pots and are A-1 stock in bud and bloom, and will make fine plants for Memorial Day.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Cut flowers of most kinds are abundant and cheap at the present time. All kinds of bulbous stock are plentiful and the flowers are generally of good quality. Carnations are coming into the market in large quantities and are low-priced. The long-stemmed varieties of roses are more abundant than two or three weeks ago and the price is proportionately lower. Spiræa has made its appearance and is of high-grade quality. Sweet peas continue to be popular. During the last ten days the stock of hardy rose bushes and other plants for spring planting has been greatly increased.

Business continues to be good, though not so brisk as it was. There still is considerable funeral work and much hospital trade.

Various Notes.

McLaughlin & Murphy report that business during January, February and March was far better than that of the corresponding months of last year. April started out slowly, but it is thought the dullness is only temporary.

J. W. Blakely, of Elizabeth, says that the winter and early spring trade has been unusually good. There have been large quantities of funeral work and many hospital orders.

The S. A. Rogers Nursery Co. featured window boxes in its window display last week, a large window box filled with blooming plants being the center of the display.

A new flower shop has been started at Bloomfield and Mt. Pleasant avenues by W. R. James. The new shop is on a good corner and is large, light and attractive.

The stock and furnishings of the store of the late Jacob B. Harvey were sold at auction last Monday. Mrs. Harvey is visiting friends in the south.

Details of the H. C. Strobell bankruptcy are given under Business Embarrassments.

J. Rose states that business is a little quiet just now, but indications are that it will be good at Easter.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

Taking into consideration the Lenten season, the florists could not hope for better business. The bright days of the last few weeks have had their effect on greenhouse stock, and the results are that the market is overstocked. The supply of carnations and Easter lilies is especially heavy, while the supply of other stock is greater than usual. It is a hard matter to dispose of this surplus at any price, as the market seems to be in the same condition throughout the country.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Knoxville Florists' Society was held April 10 at the Baum store. The meetings of late have been largely attended and unusually enthusiastic, probably on account of the refreshments served at every meeting. At each meeting a committee is appointed to purchase refreshments for the next meeting. So far this has proven to be the best method of getting a large attendance.

Since purchasing the store and greenhouses of the C. W. Crouch Co., A. J. McNutt has made many improvements. The interior of the store is being completely overhauled and when finished will have a distinctive appearance. Mr. McNutt has replaced the "Little Henry" delivery car with an Overland truck, and has made a number of changes and improvements at the greenhouses.

Will Ryno has been ill for some time, but is reported to be improving.

A. H. Dailey is beginning to receive orders for bedding plants. He has about the finest lot of plants ever seen in this vicinity and no doubt will do a great business, as the demand for this line of stock is heavy in Knoxville and vicinity. R. E. M.

Charlotte, Mich.—W. E. Garman, of the Ferndale Greenhouses, is growing 125,000 plants of Atropa Belladonna for a local physician. The price of the drug taken from these plants has advanced more than 100 per cent since the European war started.

Fine Easter Plants

Our stock of Easter Plants has never been so fine as this year; careful selection and good growing have enabled us to offer to our customers the finest stock of plants that can be seen anywhere, of good commercial sizes and at the right prices for good stock. Don't delay ordering, as good Easter stock will be scarce this year owing to the fact that some growers were afraid that they could not hold their stock back until the 23rd of April, while others only planted half their usual Easter stock, so they could grow their spring stock.

AZALEAS. We have our usual large stock of this popular plant in large and small sizes and in the best popular varieties: Mme. Vander Cruyssen, we are exceptionally strong in this popular variety, in 6 and 7-in. pots, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. Vervaeneana, variegated, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. Mme. De Schryveriana, double variegated, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. John Llewellyn, double variegated, $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50 each. Niobe, double white, extra fine plants, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each.

FRENCH HYDRANGEAS, Gen. de Vibraye, Mme. E. Chautard, and Bouquet Rose, 6, 7 and 8-in. pots, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each. We have one large house of 2,500 plants, foliage good and green, just timed right.

HYDRANGEA OTAKSA, still the leader of all Hydrangeas, 3 to 8 blooms to a plant, 6, 7 and 8-in. pots, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 each.

SPIRAEA GLADSTONE, grown from extra selected clumps, in 6 and 7-in. pots, $5.00, $6.00 and $9.00 per doz.

LILIUM GIGANTEUM, the best of all Easter plants; we have 8,000 grown as fine as you want them, in 5½-in pots, 10c per bud; less than 4 buds to a plant, 12c per bud.

DAFFODILS, Von Sion, the best pot variety; 3 double crown bulbs in a 6-in. pot, 6 to 10 flowers to a plant, $3.00 per dozen.

HYACINTHS, Gertrude, Grand Maitre and La Grandesse, $12.00 per 100; 5 in a 6-in. pan, 35c each.

ROSE BUSHES, Baby Ramblers and Tausendschoen, 6-in. pots, 50c and 75c each.

DRACAENAS, Terminalis and Lord Wolseley, fine colored, 5½-in. pots, 75c each.

ASPARAGUS, Plumosus, 3-in., $5.00 per 100; Sprengeri, 3-in., heavy, $7.00 per 100.

MOONVINES, Ipomoea Noctiflora, 2½-in., $5.00 per 100.

PALMS. Our stock of palms is very fine, and no order is complete unless you have a few of them for decorative purposes. Kentia Belmoreana, 5½-in. pots, 5 to 6 leaves, 20 to 22 in. high, 75c each; 7-in. pots, 8 leaves, 22 in. high, $1.50 and $2.00 each. Kentia Forsteriana, 6 leaves, 28 to 30 in. high, $1.00 each; 7-in. pots, 6 to 7 leaves, 38 to 40 in. high, $2.00 and $2.50 each.

FERNS. We have a fine lot of ferns in 6, 7 and 8-inch pots: Nephrolepis Scottii, 6-in., $5.00 per doz.; 7-in., 75c each; 8-in., $1.00 each. Nephrolepis Elegantissima, 7-in. pots, 75c each; 8-in., $1.00 each.

BOXWOOD, 12 to 15 in. high, 35c each; 15 to 18 in. high, 45c each. Pyramids, 2 to 2½ ft., $1.50 each; 3 ft., $2.00 each.

Cash with order, please; no plants shipped C. O. D.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Last week saw the market plentifully supplied with first-class stock of all kinds. The cool weather is responsible for the fine condition of the stock, and if such conditions continue, the prospects are bright for some extra fine stock for Easter, in goodly quantity. Carnations are none too plentiful, but the stock is fine for this time of year. While no orders are being turned down, the limited supply keeps prices good. Roses are fine and there are lots of them. They are selling well and, of course, the shorter grades are in extra demand.

Bulbous stock continues good, and present conditions indicate that there will be plenty of it in the market at Easter. Violets are holding up exceptionally well for this time of the year. There is plenty of this stock to supply the demand, and singles are having the preference. Sweet peas are not quite so plentiful as they have been. The old crop seems to be going off, which can be seen by the short-stemmed stock now in the market. Growers of this stock report, however, that they will have a new crop for Easter, which will be in fine shape if weather conditions remain favorable. There seems to be just about enough valley to go around. Some exceptionally good stock is to be had and some is of rather poor quality. Prices are good and the stock is cleaning up daily. Orchids are scarce. There are few in the market at this time.

Plants are exceedingly fine this year and are in large supply for the Easter trade. The bulk of the Easter lily crop will be just about right for that occasion, but as Easter is exceptionally late this year some of them will be in a little early. All plants are selling well and many advance orders have been booked for Easter delivery.

Various Notes.

N. Zweifel, who sold his greenhouse establishment almost a year ago and retired from the business, has not lost his keen interest in the doings of the trade. He has completed a visiting tour of the different establishments in this vicinity. He is much sought after in judging exhibits, and is an active member of the Florists' Club.

Greenhouse Heating.

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL MARKET.

The coal market is dull, unquestionably dull, principally for the reason that the majority of retailers and many consumers purchased heavily during the period of uncertainty preceding the new agreement between the operators and miners in the bituminous districts, and therefore are now well supplied with fuel. The general resolution seems to be to reduce the stocks on hand before beginning to worry about a future scarcity. One cause of uneasiness is the likelihood of a shortage of labor at the mines when business again becomes active, but this is too vague a foreboding to cast much of a gloom over the situation. In the smokeless market, it is said, "there is every evidence of a congestion of unsold coal. Thus the market technically is soft, but prices are firm." Contracting on the new basis is active and seems to indicate, in Chicago at least, an acceptance of the new circular, which quotes mine-run at $1.35 f. o. b. the mines and $3.40 f. o. b. Chicago.

WHICH IS THE CHEAPER FUEL?

I have two greenhouses. One of them is 18x45, with no glass in the side walls. The other is 29x76, with two feet of glass in the sides. They are to be heated with hot water. Which would be the cheaper fuel for these houses, gas at 25 cents per thousand or slack coal at $1.25 per ton? If I install a large boiler, will it be necessary to fire more than once during the night in cold weather? How would I then keep the house cool when the sun comes out early and there is still a fire in the boiler? S. L. W.—O.

The first cost of natural gas will be more than that of slack coal at the prices mentioned, but if allowance is made for the labor of firing, handling ashes, etc., the gas will be less expensive than the coal.

Engineering Advice

We have assisted many growers in the development of successful heating systems and our engineering department offers a service, and the benefit of a knowledge and experience of incalculable value to those who contemplate the erection of heating plants, no matter how small or how large, hot water or steam.

KROESCHELL CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM

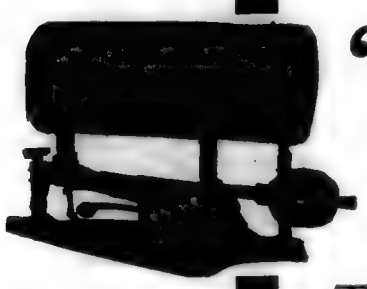
Installed for John G. Frisz, Vincennes, Indiana.

This plant at present covers over two and one-half acres of ground space and was formerly heated by a large number of boilers located in different parts throughout the plant.

Two years ago Mr. Frisz contemplated an addition of a new block of houses, and as the heating systems in use were not successful, Mr. Frisz called on us for advice.

We suggested a central heating system and recommended that all boilers be torn out and disposed of, and in place of same advised that the new power plant be located at the extreme north-east corner of the plant alongside of the railroad tracks.

The new equipment consists of two No. 18 Kroeschell hot water boilers (central station type), one 60 H. P. steam boiler, two 8-inch circulating steam boilers, and steam condenser. Only one of the hot water boilers was required to heat the entire plant, although the temperature had reached 20° below zero, the coldest winter in this section for many years.



In planning this heating system the equipment installed allows for a great increase in glass.

With our system there is no expense on the operation of the circulating pumps, as the exhaust steam from same is utilized to reheat the water coming from the greenhouses. With this system there is absolutely no waste.

The same season the new heating system was installed 20,000 sq. ft. of glass was added to the plant, and in spite of this the new system made a saving of over 12 carloads of coal over the amount of fuel consumed the season before; and remember, the new plant heated 20,000 additional glass besides.

feet of radiation and with a tall smokestack, it should be possible to carry a fairly regular temperature for six hours, by using a little Pocahontas or lump coal in severe weather. There will be little trouble about keeping the heat down on bright mornings if the house is properly provided with ventilators. feet. All of these houses are six feet to the plates.

One of the outer houses has two feet of glass in the outside wall and is to be heated to 55 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. For this house we would use one 2-inch overhead flow pipe and six 1¼-inch or eight 1-inch returns. For the other 18-foot house, which has three feet of glass, a temperature of 60 to 65 degrees is desired. One 2-inch flow pipe and nine 1¼-inch or twelve 1-inch returns should be used. To give 55 degrees in the middle one of the three houses, supposing it is twenty-five feet wide, we would use one flow and eight 1¼-inch or ten 1-inch returns.

In the new section, which is on the opposite side of, and twenty-five feet away from, the boiler house, there are three houses, each 25x100, with the plates seven feet from the ground, and the outside walls have four feet of exposed glass.

One of the outside houses is to be heated to 50 degrees when 10 degrees below zero. For this we would use one 2-inch overhead flow and eight 1¼-inch or ten 1-inch pipes. In the middle house, for which the same temperature is desired, but which has no exposed walls on the sides, use one flow and six or seven 1¼-inch returns or nine 1-inch returns. In the other house, which has one wall exposed, and for which the temperature should be 60 to 65 degrees, use two flows, one upon each plate, and either eleven 1¼-inch or fourteen 1-inch returns.

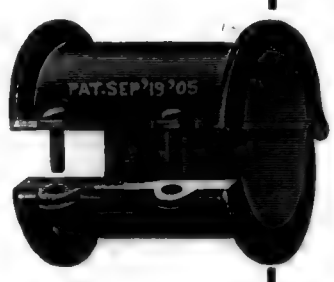
Where there is but one flow pipe in a house, it should be carried to the farther end of the house and, at the ends of the benches, should branch each way and drop down a 1¼-inch pipe where needed to supply the coils, which should be under the benches except in the houses with exposed walls, which should have two or three returns on these walls. In the house with two flows, all of the returns may be on the walls, or all but three returns on the outer wall may be under the benches.

With a little care in firing, it should be possible to heat all of the houses in both ranges with a 35-horsepower boiler, and a 50-horsepower boiler would furnish a wide margin. For the main flow to each of the ranges a 4-inch pipe will answer.

POSITION OF GRATE BARS.

In a horizontal tubular boiler, 6x18 feet in size, what should be the distance from the grate bars to the shell of the boiler, in order to obtain the best results in firing? We have been told that thirty inches is about right, while others advocate forty inches.

G. V. B. & B.—Mich.



For a boiler of the size mentioned, the distance between the grate bars and the shell of the boiler may vary from thirty-two to thirty-six inches. We would use the greater distance where the grate bars are short and the grate area consequently is small, but we would allow less space where the grate bars afford a large grate area. On the whole, we prefer the latter arrangement, as this is adapted to a thin fire.

The Market.

Delightful spring weather prevailed last week until Thursday, when cold, wintry weather set in, accompanied by a heavy snow storm. The effect of this cold spell is beginning to be noticed in the supply of cut flowers in the market, particularly roses, although carnations and spring flowers are equal to the demand. No harm was done to the outdoor shrubs. The best varieties of roses in the market now are Ophelia, Killarney, White Killarney, Shawyer, Russell and Sunburst. Red roses are scarce and white are none too plentiful. Carnations are of good quality. Sweet peas are meeting with a fine sale, but the supply is large and prices are moderate. Violets are scarce. The demand for valley and orchids is weak. Easter lilies are exceedingly plentiful, and callas are easily obtainable. Snapdragons are of excellent quality and are eagerly bought. They bring good prices. Funeral work has been plentiful and there has been a good demand for flowers for table decorations. There are some handsome rhododendrons in the market. Azaleas are of splendid quality, and spiræas, white lilac and hydrangeas make a good showing together with the tulips and Dutch hyacinths, which are of fine proportions.

The outlook for the Easter business is exceedingly good. Considerable advertising is being done by the local florists in the form of booklets and folders. It will be late for any large variety of bulbous stock, but there will be some fine azaleas, rhododendrons, lilacs, cyclamen and spiræa plants. The Easter lily plants are far superior this year to what they have ever been before.

Various Notes.

Judge W. J. Vesey and Miss Vesey left April 8 for an extended trip to New York city and other eastern points.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are advertising their landscape department, with a fine variety of shrubs and experienced landscape artists to do the work. This concern had a special sale on cineraria plants at 35 cents each last week.

Markey Bros., of Harrison street, are showing a fine line of blooming plants and are holding some splendid specimens at their greenhouses for the Easter trade. Their azaleas are specially fine.

The Flick Floral Co. was busy with funeral work last week.

Will J. Vesey, Jr., president of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, is in Terre Haute attending the April meeting of the society.

Mrs. Randall, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, was a visitor last week.

THRIPS ON CARNATIONS.

Ed. American Florist:

Please advise how to remedy the trouble affecting Carnation buds mailed under separate cover. Kansas. F. W. F.

The Carnation buds are badly infested with Thrips. Upon opening up two or three of the buds we found them alive with these pests. Thrips are one of the worst enemies that Carnation growers have to deal with, and the only way to fight them successfully is to get after them by spraying the plants regularly with the Nicotine preparations as soon as they are planted into the houses from the field and keep at it continually until weather conditions will allow for fumigation. For stubborn cases we spray with HAMMOND'S THRIP JUICE No. 2, applied as per directions on the cans. This is an oily substance and will cause the foliage of the plants to look a lighter green, but we have never found it to harm the foliage at all. C. W. JOHNSON.

THRIP JUICE NO. 2 ON ROSES.

Hopeland Estate, Staatsburg, N. Y., Dec. 20, 1913.

Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sirs: I have used your THRIP JUICE No. 2 on outdoor Roses, also Roses indoors, as well as Bay Trees and other hard-wooded stock, and can say it is a most efficient remedy for Scale, Mealy Bug and Thrips. Very truly yours,

(Signed) CHAS. HARMAN, Supt.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 7, 1914.

Col. Wm. Sharp, for more than twenty-five years grower for Samuel Murray, says: "I have found THRIP JUICE No. 2 very effective for White Scale on Cattleyas and variegated Pineapples, Brown Scale on Ficus and Palms.

While several applications may be necessary, it is cheaper in the end than Nicotine and far more effective.

Our farmer finds it a cure for the Curculio on Plums. Send along five gallons as before." W. M.

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 17, 1915.

Schmidt & Botley Co. endorse THRIP JUICE No. 2 for killing the White Fly. They believe in prevention, and took steps at once to destroy it.

Gustav Schneider says he uses THRIP JUICE No. 2 regularly, more as a preventive, and never had a finer lot of Chrysanthemums than last season. At one time the plants were affected with rust, but one or two sprayings brought them around.

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 14, 1914.

Robert Lockerbie, many years with the Robt. Craig Co., and now grower for the Charlotte Cut Flower Co., says he has used all makes of Insecticides and is now using THRIP JUICE No. 2 for Thrips on Chrysanthemums and Carnations. The dilution of one to forty is proper. Sprayed on cloudy days, every week or ten days, left on foliage for 48 hours, it never fails to kill the insect and the slight discoloration on foliage is offset by its usefulness. W. M.

The Market.

Cut flowers are profuse. Easter flowers of all kinds can be had, but prospects for the Easter season are good. Roses of all kinds are plentiful and of good quality. Carnations are long-stemmed and the flowers hold up well. There are some choice sweet peas available at this time and the demand for them is equal to the cut. Of bulbous stock, lilies, daffodils and tulips are good, having long stems and good flowers. Lily plants will bloom nicely for Easter and the various bulbous plants also will be timed properly. Rhododendrons and azaleas are good this year. The buds are well formed and blooms perfect. The usual demand for funeral pieces is taking care of the abundant supply of cut flowers.

Various Notes.

Among the many flower stores that had their inception during the last month I mention the Helmer Flower Shop, in the heart of the business district. It was established by Jack Helmer, formerly of the Patten Flower Store, and Miss Josephine Helmer, who formerly was forelady of the Breitmeyer store at Detroit.

Joseph Gardner, for many years foreman at the greenhouses of Harry Heinl, has opened a first-class flower shop at the corner of Walnut and Bancroft streets.

The Scottwood Greenhouses have some choice rhododendrons and hydrangeas for Easter. Mr. Magee, the manager, is much pleased with his Easter stock and predicts a good season.

Harry Heinl, of West Toledo, is cutting some choice roses, among the better grades being Ophelia, Richmond and Killarney.

Miss Helen Patten was extraordinarily busy last week with orders for funeral pieces. She predicts a good Easter season and feels confident that business this year will almost triple that of last year.

Schramm Bros. have added to their delivery service a Studebaker car. The increased business and the desire to give the best service possible were the motives for this recent acquisition, their second delivery automobile.

Plant Bands

Square plant bands will soon be a requirement where good plants are wanted. Economy of space, time and water are additional reasons for their coming into favor. We offer an improvement in square bands that saves much time required to fold the ordinary strips of paper heretofore offered. Send for our free samples.

A little later we will offer a still greater improvement in square folding bands and pots, and samples will be sent to all addresses that we now have.

Send postal today for samples and prices of ready-use and plain bands for immediate shipment.

The Market.

From present indications there is going to be an abundance of stock for Easter, and, judging from advance orders, all dealers predict the heaviest run of business they ever have had for that date. While some think that the Lenten season trade was a little off, the majority are inclined to the belief that it will surpass any previous one. During the latter part of last week everyone was rushed to the limit with funeral work, which served to clean up the glut on the market. Roses move well at $2 to $12 per hundred for the general line. Ophelia and Russell sell at $5 to $16 per hundred. Carnations are holding at about $3 per hundred. Sweet peas are arriving in large quantities and prices are dropping, 75 cents per hundred being received for the finest flowers, but many are sold as low as 35 cents. Lilies are arriving in large quantities, with a fair supply of short-stemmed stock. The fancy kinds are selling at $15 per hundred, while the shorts go at much lower figures. Snapdragons, calendulas and tulips are plentiful and bring good prices.

Various Notes.

J. J. Hess has returned from the National Flower Show and pronounces it the best ever held.

Miss Margaret Magnussen has been quite ill with tonsillitis, but at last reports was improving.

Trade at the Flower Shop, on Farnam street, was good last week. There was a good run of funeral work.

The Chatenay roses grown at Lewis Henderson's place find ready sale at both of his stores. Mr. Henderson says he cannot get along without this variety.

A call at Charles Ederer's place found the men busy with funeral work, with no time to talk shop. Mr. Ederer intends adding four small houses this summer.

Three weeks before Easter Paul Floth had orders for every one of his 3,000 lilies and he says he could sell as many more if he had them. He has some fine spiræas that ought to bring a fancy price.

Janousek Bros., out at Prospect Hill, are sending in some good sweet peas, with stems twelve to sixteen inches long. L. S. H.

Lincoln, Neb.—The C. H. Frey Co. has completed the dissemination of its new red carnation, Nebraska, having sold all the cuttings that can be rooted this spring, in addition to its needs for field planting.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Various Notes.

Theodore Wirth speaks in the highest terms of the Philadelphia show. He made special note of the hybrid perpetual and hybrid tea roses and intends to give a number of them trials in the rose garden and in the various parks in Minneapolis. This will add another feature to our great parks.

Mr. Hayden, of the Florist Shop, says that trade is good, in spasms. He is stocking some nice lines for the Easter trade.

Thomas Lynes has been busy with funeral work.

Sunday, April 2, was a real commencement day for the seedsmen and florists. The Minneapolis Journal published four pages of horticultural matter of interest to all amateur gardeners. Seedsmen, growers and florists had large display advertisements. The motto is: "If you are wise, you'll advertise, to keep before the public's eyes."

Mr. Cargill is cutting some nice carnations. I hear he is going to reorganize his staff. The range is a good one and capable of turning out quantities of high-grade stock.

The growers all report good sales of Easter stock. Azaleas are in great demand, and the supply is short.

The Sunshine Florists have had fine displays in their window. Mr. Villas believes in doing all he can to attract attention to his stock.

Northrup, King & Co. are about to commence on a $500,000 plant for their seed business. The buildings will be most modern and equipped with all the best improvements. Trade in all departments is on the increase and with the development of a vast territory Northrup, King & Co. are sure to have a large share of the business for their stock.

The Mazey Floral Co. is making good displays of spring stock.

C. N. Ruedlinger is busy with landscape contracts and garden work.

H. F. Baker, of the Lake Harriet Nurseries, reports heavy business in the landscape department. The office staff has been enlarged and a heavy season is in view.

The Chicago Avenue Greenhouses have a fine stock of bedding plants.

Max Kaiser has the finest stock of rambler and other roses for Easter in the Twin Cities. F. E. B.

Garrettsvile, O.—H. J. Alford Co. has material on the ground for two connected houses, each 29x143, six feet to the gutter and thirteen and one-half feet to the ridge.

An Open Letter

Believing we can render material assistance in our instructive campaign in the upbuilding and maintaining of soil fertility, our company is giving time and money to further the interests of the grower under glass.

With that in view, we have employed practical greenhousemen in our research department, in our laboratory department, and in the handling of our correspondence pertaining to questions arising on soil requirements and plant foods.

In this work we request the trade to take sufficient interest to co-operate with us, and to correspond with us on matters pertaining to their growing products.

Our main object is to demonstrate the practicability of making up soil fertility during the growing season through the addition of fertilizers, or commercial manures, as the season progresses, and thereby increase the number of flowering crops as well as the quality of the flowers.

In connection with this work, we are taking into consideration the uses of stable manures and legumes, supplemented by commercial manures that carry nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, and the scientific use of a pure carbonate of lime to meet the particular needs of greenhouse soils.

Last but not least, this company is supported by men who have had wide experience in your problems. They are at your service. Command them.

The Market.

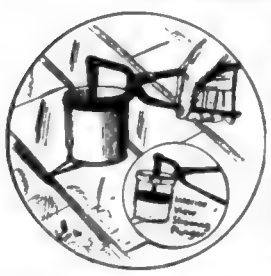
Trade has been good during the last two weeks. Stock is becoming more plentiful and the market is holding up well. The weather has been unseasonably cold and we have had only two or three spring days so far this spring. However, this cold weather has made it easy to manage the Easter plants. All sorts of roses, including American Beauties, are plentiful, and some first-class stock is available. The market is well supplied with carnations. Easter lilies and callas are more than enough for demands. Sweet peas are plentiful and are finding a good market. Valley, violets and orchids are not in demand. Bulbous stock, such as tulips, jonquils and hyacinths, is more than enough to go around. There is an unlimited supply of blooming plants, such as azaleas, rhododendrons, lilacs, rose bushes, spiræas, genistas and bulbous stock.

Various Notes.

John Elsner is busy on his farm in the southeastern part of the city. He has a gasoline-driven plow which he says will do the work of three teams. He expects to supply the town this year with asters, gladioli, dahlias and other outdoor stock.

The Pahud Floral Co. has a new Studebaker delivery truck.

Peter Weiland, of Newcastle, has been sending in some fine sweet peas.



George Wiegand has moved to his new residence on North Illinois street.

The A. Wiegand's Sons Co. has its usual fine line of blooming stock for the Easter trade. This concern has purchased about eight acres of ground near Riverside park. This they expect to use for outdoor stock. H. L. W.

St. Paul, Minn.—O. J. Olson, of Holm & Olson, who underwent a serious operation at St. Luke's hospital in this city March 29, is getting along nicely and hopes to be out early next week.

Reading, Pa.—A dozen members of the Reading Florists' Association recently went on another visiting trip. This time their destination was Allentown, where they called on E. N. Kroninger, Ernest Ashley and J. F. Horn & Bro.

"Duplication Proves Satisfaction"

We furnished everything to completely erect, ventilate, heat and bench this Greenhouse for Mr. Wm. N. Estabrook, of N. Worcester, Mass.

He is so well pleased with our material and workmanship that he is now placing a duplicate order with us.

We tell you this because we know that the one really sure way to secure the best results in your contemplated Greenhouse, is to select the building organization whose claims to superiority are confirmed by what they have accomplished for others.

For a practical house the Dietsch is best.

Build while the building is good...

You have an idea that "any old time" is good enough to build and so put the matter off until some other day when you think you'll have a better opportunity.

Now that way of doing things is a mistake, Mr. Greenhouseman. The time is now and you will never find a better, take it from us.

There is no need of going into detail as to what we do. You know us.

HOLYOKE, MASS.

The monthly meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held April 4 at the F. D. Keyes & Son establishment, Northampton. In spite of the disagreeable weather, a large number of members turned out. The topic of the evening was Easter plants, which was handled by Harold Keyes in a comprehensive manner. A good discussion ensued.

Messrs. Thurston and Sinclair entertained the members with descriptions of the National Flower Show. Exhibits were made by Keyes & Son of extra good callas, a pink sport of Carnation Enchantress and Primula obconica gigantea. Butler & Ullman showed Hydrangea Radiant and Sweet Pea Yarrawa. G. H. Sinclair showed Buxton's Silver Pink snapdragon in splendid form. Good plants of Nemesia strumosa Suttoni were shown by H. E. Downer. This is a charming annual which flowers in a few weeks from the date of sowing and should prove a useful pot plant for the florist. H. E. D.

Meadville, Pa.—C. R. Betts has moved his stand from the Merchants' National Bank building to the Kepler Hotel annex.

Coeur d' Alene, Idaho.—The Donart Floral Co. recently suffered fire damage to the extent of $2,000, the blaze starting in the boiler house of its heating plant during the recent cold snap. Two greenhouses were badly damaged, but the company's business suffered little interruption. The damage was repaired at once.

This picture was taken right after a blizzard, and proves conclusively that our style of construction is positively ice-clearing.

This full iron frame, curved eave JACOBS' GREENHOUSE was completely erected, including ventilation and heating system, by our own expert mechanics, for Mr. Chas. Bradley, at Convent, New Jersey.

This greenhouse is 25 x 85 feet, and has a partition in the middle, making two distinct and separate compartments, with separate heating systems, so that different temperatures may be maintained in both sections.

King Construction Co.,
North Tonawanda, N. Y.

Gentlemen.

The Greenhouses which your Company have constructed in Como Park this City are considered the finest range of greenhouses in the Country. This is the verdict of Tourists and Visitors that come to the park from all over the United States. In adding my testimonial which you have not requested, let me say that you deserve credit for this structure, the proportional and ornamental design of the whole plant and especially the one hundred foot tower is exceptionally well designed and executed in well balanced workmanship and is deeply and gratefully appreciated by

Yours very truly

Supt. of Parks.

Now is the time to decide on the GREENHOUSE. Write today—tell us what you have in mind. Let our experts whip your ideas into shape and submit estimates. We can furnish any kind of house—from a sumptuous conservatory or mammoth commercial range to a hot-frame. It will pay you to investigate.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

A few warm days last week sent prices down like an avalanche, potted plants and cut flowers coming into the market in great quantities. This was especially true in the case of bulbous stock, sweet peas and violets.

Various Notes.

A systematic plan for the beautification of Providence and vicinity has been inaugurated by the Providence Chamber of Commerce, which has made arrangements to furnish at cost plants of Dorothy Perkins roses and Van Houttei spiræas. Orders for nearly 50,000 of these have been received.

At the annual installation of officers of the Providence Elks, Theodore R. Peterson, of the Hogg Greenhouses, was inducted as trustee for two years.

James Hocking, treasurer of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, is recovering from his recent severe attack of the grip.

E. D. Tucker is preparing to remodel his houses and erect one or more new ones at his range at Saylesville.

Joseph Koppelman & Co. are removing their Asparagus plumosus plants from their houses at Oaklawn to the new houses off Pawtucket avenue, East Providence. W. H. M.

Rugby, N. D.—According to N. P. Lindberg, of the Rugby Greenhouses, business in northern North Dakota has been exceptionally good during the winter, despite the several snow blockades on all forms of transportation.

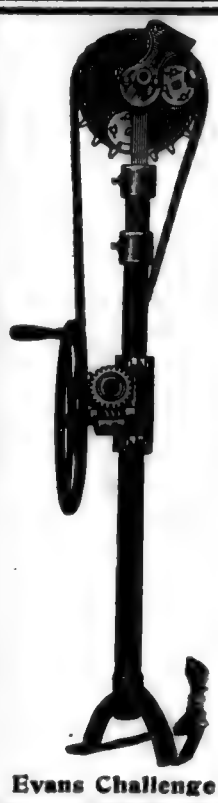
SELF-LOCKING

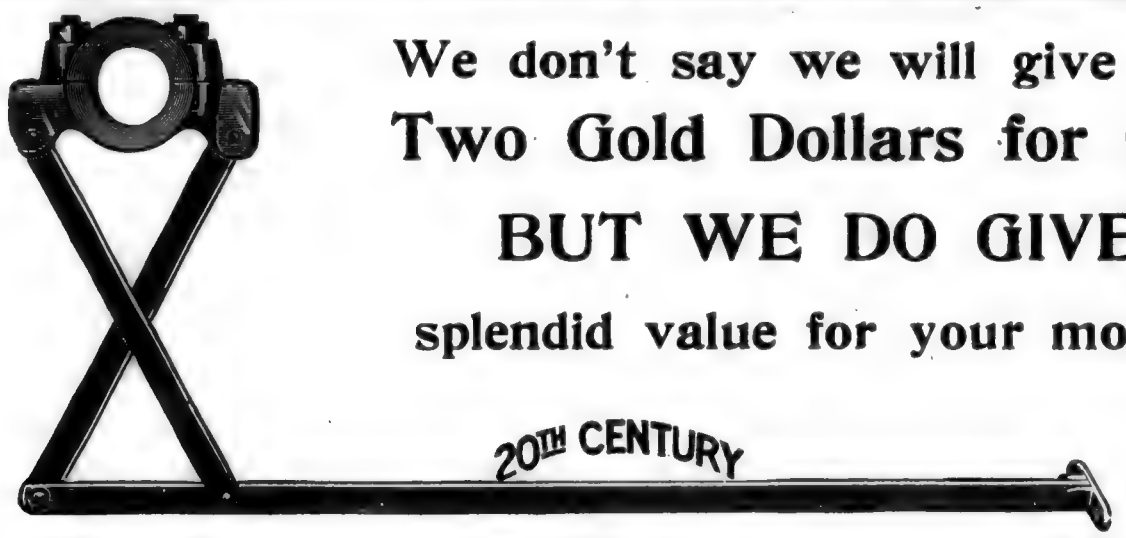
THE ADVANCE Ventilating Apparatus with a worm and gear will securely hold your sash in any position. No danger of sash falling and breaking glass. No danger when operating the machine. This machine will meet any requirements you may have, and the operation will be easy. All up-to-date florists consider the ADVANCE a standard, due to the far-advanced ideas and designs. It is no use to try to find a machine that is better or equal to this, for no concern has, as yet, been able to market one.

If you are needing a sash-operator at the present time, or will need one a little later, you will find it to your interest to let us figure with you. You know what proper ventilation means in your houses, and the only machine that insures that is the ADVANCE. We do not have a single customer that is not satisfied, and we have customers everywhere, too. Just ask anyone using our material how he likes it. Our customers are our largest and best advertisements, and we see no reason why you should not get in touch with us and do away with one of your worst troubles—ventilation.



Also, we would like for you to see our line of GREENHOUSE FITTINGS, such as Split Gutter Brackets, Column Brackets (set-screw type), Split Tees and many other useful fittings you need from time to time. All fittings are very easily erected and are so designed that they will stay where you want them and last forever. We are certain that you will readily be convinced of the many superior merits of our material if you once place an order with us.

We give all inquiries special, prompt attention and will be glad to take up any proposition you may have. Being able to ship orders the same day they are received is only another one of the many advantages you get when dealing with us.



Just drop us a card and ask for one of our Catalogues U.
It will be sent free. Don't wait—DO IT NOW.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business in the market is fair, but the supply of stock continues large and buyers practically dictate prices; that is, within reasonable limits. Roses are in heavy supply, which includes all the seasonable varieties and American Beauties. Carnations, too, are plentiful. The supply of Easter lilies is again fully sufficient for present needs. Bulbous stock is offered in limited quantities. Sweet peas are in heavy supply and it is impossible to clean up all of them. Valley and orchids have a rather slow market. Other offerings include callas, lilac, snapdragon, mignonette, violets, marguerites and forget-me-nots. Greens are plentiful.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held April 10 at Hotel Gibson. R. Witterstaetter acted as chairman. Mr. Witterstaetter gave an interesting talk on the Philadelphia show, his talk including every phase of the show, for which he had nothing but praise.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been having some fine, well-grown potted roses from J. A. Peterson & Sons.

The H. Weber & Sons Co., of Oakland, Md., have been shipping some excellent Formosa lilies to E. G. Gillett.

William Taylor, of Price Hill, has a fine lot of Easter lilies coming in nicely for Easter.

The Hoffmeister Floral Co. has put a large delivery truck into use.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

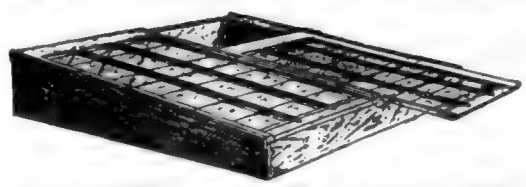
"This is truly a season of perplexities," remarked J. D. Eisele, vice-president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, in speaking of the vagaries of the weather. "Here is a carload of palms, for instance, awaiting shipment to a distant point, and outdoors we see perennials bursting into bloom, induced by a few days of sunshine. Our fear now is that it will require heroic measures to meet the situation, and, with the problem of short help, the wisdom of a Solomon will hardly pull us through. It is almost impossible to secure outside help. The wages of our steady employees have been increased to meet the advanced cost of living and all are working like beavers.

"Easter looms ahead, with business more than sufficient to atone for the setback during the month of March," continued Mr. Eisele, "and there is an abundance of stock equal to the heaviest demands. All that is needed is a steady, gradual opening, when all will be well.

"The direct returns from the National Flower Show are satisfactory and our efforts put forth in connection therewith were well repaid. The enthusiasm of the admiring crowd was marred only by two incidents: One, when a zealous amateur stooped too low to inspect the aquatics and plunged headlong into the tank. On being rescued by an attendant, he exclaimed he 'had fallen among the lilies fair.' Another time was when two ladies were pushed into the water by the crowd that thronged the garden. They were highly indignant when rescued."

Apropos of water lilies, I learn that the secret has been discovered how to keep the blooms open night and day. This information will be given the public in due season.

Roses being foremost in the mind's eye just now, it was interesting to see the large number held in reserve in the Dreer houses, and so staged that the individual beauty could be more easily observed. There are many that stand out preëminent, among them a glorious yellow, by name Duchess of Wellington.



Many advances have been made since my last visit to the Dreer establishment. A storage building, already found to be too small for the purposes intended, has been constructed. Half a million gladiolus bulbs are among the items stored. A new method of propagating the large quantity of dahlias is by potting the cuttings direct from the tuber, instead of via the sand route, as formerly. The percentage of loss is almost nothing, and within a couple of weeks fine, thrifty plants are made; at least, this is the case as seen here. Every facility is given to aid the progress of the business. W. M.

Newport, R. I.—The preliminary schedules for the midsummer exhibition of the Newport Garden Club and Newport Horticultural Society, to be held August 10 to 12, have been issued and entries in the classes for plants, fruits, roses and other cut flowers will be received until noon, August 7, by Secretary Fred. P. Weber, of Melville, R. I. As usual, there is a wide range of prizes.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

SYSTEM IN THE CEMETERY WORK

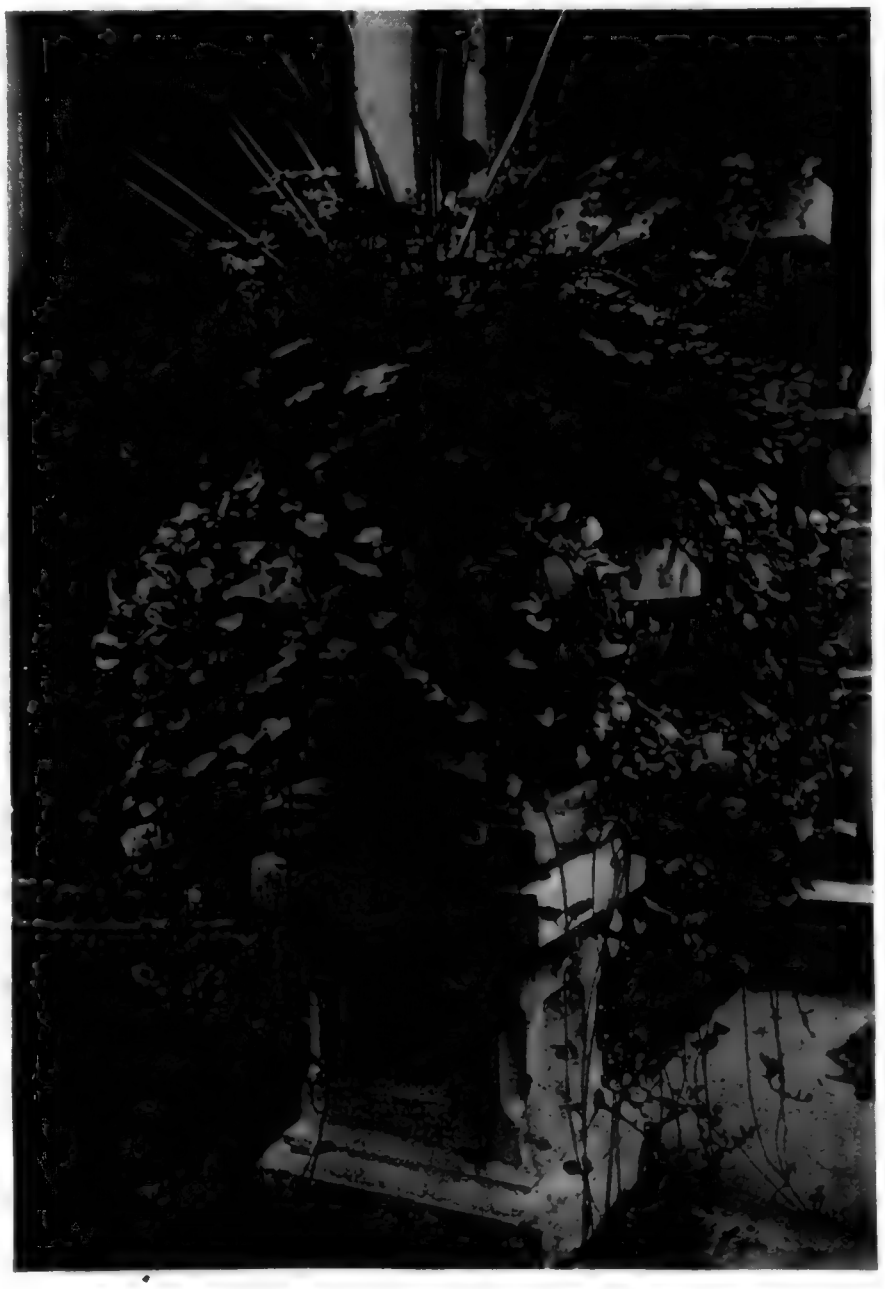
Experience teaches that to him who waits all things come in a rush, especially the cemetery and lawn work of the vernal season. In this article a man who knows tells how to get the orders early, how to fill them handily, and how to get other orders at other seasons.

By ROBERT A. SCOTT.

EVERYTHING today tends toward specialization and it is the specialist who does things expertly well. A specialist simply is a man who has worked along a certain line until he has mastered every phase of it. The specialist is the efficient man and in the last analysis the one who works with the least friction. The routine he follows and the directions he gives produce system among men. System becomes helpful public service, which is the spirit of modern business. When properly applied and carefully guided it becomes routine and is far easier to follow than the haphazard and slipshod way of doing the daily work.

In the following paragraphs I will endeavor to tell how system can be applied to cemetery work and other gardening operations, whether one fills vases in Portland, Me., or Portland, Ore. For our company it has developed our sales and relieved us of considerable of the hard toil this particular part of the business inevitably entails.

Two Systems.



It is essential that system be created for two ends of the business: System for getting the work and system for handling the work after one gets it; system in one is just as essential as system in the other. True, you may feel that you always get all the cemetery work you can handle and you may not be interested in a system for obtaining additional orders until you first have created a system for filling them. We experienced the same situation until we applied the system we now use.

In the city of Buffalo there are about fifteen florists who do cemetery work at the principal cemetery of which I speak. Mistakes and confusion crept in and complaints naturally came to the superintendent. As the famous Elbert Hubbard once said, "When things get too bad they correct themselves," and sure enough that was the way it worked out in this case. The cemetery association adopted a rule that no part of a vase or any other article could be removed from the grounds without the signed order of the person desiring the change. So the florists all had blanks printed to comply with the rule.

System Leads to Growth.

Herein developed a part of our system. We conceived the idea of a postal-card which would be signed and by means of which we could at the same time solicit the business at a small expense. This was the beginning of what I have termed system in cemetery work. This, remember, was actually forced on us, but, as we saw the light, conditions developed so that we were able to grasp them and adapt them so that we began to look for mistakes in order to bring the work as near perfection as possible.

I know that a vast number of florists will say: "That may be all right for his business, but for the orders I have and the time I get, we could not afford to do it." However few you have, it applies. I know that, because ours has grown from a few to a great many. To give you some basis for my assertions, I will tell you that we use 20,000 geraniums and 4,000 vincas, along with hundreds of other plants, to complete our work for Memorial day.

It's Time to Plan Cemetery and Lawn Vase Work.

Now Is the Time.

In a foregoing statement I said I would apply the system to the creation of sales as well as the execution of work. For the sake of clearness I will link the two as I go along. Memorial day being the largest business day, I will start there. In our particular section, our vases are placed for May 30, but I assume that in some parts of the country the vases are placed considerably earlier, which, of course, would change the mailing date of advertising matter for the spring business. The following is our system:

In the first place, we keep an accurate list of all cemetery customers, with name, address, location of lot at cemetery and work done in previous seasons. As I proceed you will see the advantage of this method.

About May 1, we mail a return postal to all customers notifying them of the approaching season, also asking them for their valued order. The attached return card is convenient for them to sign

Pansy Time

Many persons have entrusted to us for years the work of filling with pansies the vases and urns at the hallowed resting places of their dead. The time for the pansies to be set out is now approaching, and we take this opportunity to remind you that they last usually until the first of July. The charge is $2. Kindly fill in the blanks on the attached card and return promptly to and the response usually is immediate.

Early Orders.

We get over sixty per cent of the orders in ten days and our advance work can be done immediately. By advance work I mean the painting and getting the tops of the vases into our greenhouses.

By May 18, we have received eighty per cent of the orders, which is a big advantage. Weather permitting, we start taking the filled vases to the lawn about May 22. The wagon or machine takes out a load of filled vases or pots and brings in any others in that particular section which are to be filled. Thus we go on until the last one is done. We have a number of vases of a character that makes it impossible that they be moved, so a wagon and men have to complete this work at the cemetery. We find this method much more expensive than taking the top of the vase to the potting shed. In my estimation, the greatest advantage of the postal-card system is that the orders are received early and thus enable one to work to advantage in certain sections of the lawn. It is far cheaper to collect ten vases from one section than one vase from each of ten sections.

To Sell Cut Flowers.

For Memorial day there should be large sales of cemetery bouquets. Not content with what came to us, we mailed cards to our cemetery list. We told in a few words that we would be equipped with a large assortment of flowers suitable for cemetery use. With your cemetery list, this is not a hard thing to do and it is inexpensive, because every name on the list is a live prospect. In our case the response was even better than we had expected.

The next time we use the cards is after the cold season is at hand. We then notify the lot owners, using the reply postal, that we cover graves with hemlock for the winter season, also that we fill the urn with evergreens. In the start our returns to these autumn reminders were not so profitable as we anticipated, but we kept at it and the business grew each year until now we consider it a profitable item.

Cemetery Wreaths.

Another fine item in this connection is placing boxwood wreaths at Christmas time. It may seem to you that we overdo the cards when I say that again we mail reply postals asking for orders for boxwood wreaths. The cards are mailed about December 15 and last season was the largest we ever had. Cards followed some who had traveled south and I have in mind one man who wrote from Pinehurst, N. C., and ordered $27 worth of work on the strength of one postal reminder. We adopted boxwood wreaths because with them the work can be done at the least expense and with the largest returns of any article which we could offer at this time. I have other things in mind when I say this, such as the blanket of holly or boxwood, but these consume too much labor compared with making boxwood wreaths.

The Round of the Year.

Last, but not least, we have pansy time. Owing to the uncertainty of the pansy season, we hold the pansy cards until we can get the plants. We found that other people are just like we are. They want to order a thing out just as soon as it is ordered—it must be done at once. If we send the cards too soon many of them never come back, but

WE have earned a reputation for doing our cemetery work in an efficient and systematic manner. We acknowledge that our customers have kindly assisted us in this.

¶ The season is now approaching for the preliminary care of cemetery plots. We will be pleased to act for you in this matter as we have in the past.

¶ Will you kindly sign the attached card and mail to us by the 25th of the present month or at once if possible? It is necessary to have this card signed by you to remove the vase from your lot.

WE COVER GRAVES WITH HEMLOCK FOR $2.00

Two Sides of a Reply Postal Used by a Buffalo Florist to Secure Orders for Autumn Work

if sent at the right time the response is immediate and people expect the vases filled as promptly. Pansies, in our section, usually last until June 10. We are always pleased to get the pansy order; first, for the order itself, and, second, it is one less vase to fill in the rush just before Memorial day.

This completes our year's work. You can imagine that at the end of the year those on our list are mighty well aware of the name of the florist who can do cemetery work. This is where the publicity part comes in—keeping your name before your customers. It is mighty good advertising, the best you can get.

Records Essential.

In conclusion, I want to impress on you the importance of proper records. I consider it so important that I want to tell you in detail: First, get a journal that is indexed; then, as you receive orders, enter the name, address, section, lot number, the filling to be done, and the amount of the sale. This should be done without exception. In this way, your records are all intact. The old system of having loose sheets is apt to cause mistakes. The clean-cut way of the journal enables you to respond in more ways than one.

In closing, dear reader, I want to say that you should not infer that we consider this spring business one sweet dream. We feel about it somewhat as Sherman did about war, but cemetery work does not cause us the worry it did at one time. We have mastered the situation to a large extent and knowing one's condition enables us to accomplish what we once thought was impossible. Robert A. Scott.

A CONTROVERSY ON CUT PRICES.

The following conversation took place between a retailer who wanted to buy stock for a special sale and a grower who wanted to sell his stock, but not at a price that would permit exploiting the flowers at prices detrimental to the business:

Retailer—"I will give you 75 cents per hundred."

Grower—"Nothing doing!"

Retailer—"I want to hold a special sale, but if I give you 25 cents per bunch and sell at 35 cents there will not be much profit for me."

Grower—"Well, stick another nickel on."

Retailer—"Can't do it—I want to advertise them at a cut-rate price."

Grower—"Well, pay for your own advertising then. Don't ask me to."

Retailer—"Sure, but I want to make something out of it and have a banner sale as well."

Grower—"If I let you have the stock at 75 cents instead of $1 every buyer in the city would know of it, and I would be compelled to sell at 75 cents right along, and the price would not recover."

Retailer—"Nix, it's only for this sale."

Grower—"Say, listen, have you ever thought of this? I sell you at a cut price. In your sale you cut your competitor's price. He then cuts your price. But the public do not buy any more flowers! We lose! It depreciates values, lowers the tone of the business and does no good at all. It is a case of diamond cut diamond. To cut your price you cut your profits, and your profits pay your bills. That's all! If you won't pay the price I ask, you can't have the goods. But why not help cure the trade of one of its ills?"

NEW ORLEANS SPRING SHOW.

The Best Ever Held.

The annual charity show of the New Orleans Horticultural Society, given this year in the Athenæum, New Orleans, April 6 to 9, easily surpassed any of its predecessors. The attendance was larger, the proceeds greater and the exhibits more numerous and of greater variety than those of any other show given in the winter capital of the southland. This year the Louisiana Anti-Tuberculosis League was the beneficiary. Henry Scheuermann, president of the society; C. R. Panter, secretary, and P. A. Chopin, chairman of the general committee in charge of the show, expressed themselves as being more than satisfied with the successful consummation of the exhibition.

The Prize-Winners.

The judges appointed to pass on the exhibits were Richard Eichling, E. Valdejo and George Thomas. Of thirty-four exhibits, a large American flag formed by flowering and foliage plants, by Henry Kraak, of New Orleans, was considered the best design in the hall, and this exhibitor was awarded the cup donated by H. A. Dreer, Inc., of Philadelphia. The Gentilly Nursery Co. won the second plant prize, a vase given by H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia. The third award, the prize of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, went to P. A. Chopin. Charles Eble, of New Orleans, was a large exhibitor of plants and captured a prize donated by the Sefton Mfg. Co., of Chicago. Abele Bros., of New Orleans, had a good display of flowering and foliage plants, as shown in the accompanying illustration, for which they were awarded the Shaw Fern Co. prize. A. Verlinde & M. Vander Eecken exhibited ficus and araucaria and were given the prize of Zech & Mann, of Chicago. Claude Ory, H. Doescher and Max Scheinuk also were prize-winners. A. Dameran, H. Mische and the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. had plant exhibits.

C. W. Eichling, of the Avenue Floral Co., was the principal exhibitor in the cut flower classes. He had a large bride's party exhibit and won a cup donated by J. A. Budlong, of Chicago. Henry Scheuermann captured the M. Rice Co. prize and the Steckler Seed Co. was given the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. prize for a comprehensive display of seeds, garden furniture and implements. P. A. Chopin, Charles Eble and F. J. Reyes & Co. also were winners in the cut flower section.

A number of the newer carnations were exhibited by the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., of Joliet, Ill., and J. A. Budlong, of Chicago, sent American Beauty and Russell roses.

HELIOTROPES NOT FLOWERING.

I have some heliotrope plants that seem to be in good health but give no sign of bloom. They are growing in a house in a temperature of 60 degrees at night and 80 degrees during the day. The house is kept moist, as lilies are being grown in it. Last year the plants acted in the same way, being healthy and carrying three or four shoots and good foliage, but no blooms. After they were planted in the field they were a mass of bloom all summer. These plants bloomed without any trouble in the place where they originally came from. I have tried having them pot-bound, giving them more room and running some in a house with geraniums, but without success. The soil is from a bench in which mums were grown, with bone meal added. Geraniums do well in it. E. L. J.—Mass.

Perhaps you are running your plants too shaded. Give them full sun and a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees at night, an abundant water supply, a good soil and some liquid manure when well potbound, and they should flower freely. Of course, you must discontinue pinching a few weeks before you want them in flower. C. W.

NOTES ON DAHLIA CULTURE

DAHLIAS IN THE SPRINGTIME.

Dividing the Clumps.

For years I have devoted my whole time and energies to growing and improving dahlias. Twenty-one years ago I commenced growing them as an amateur, beginning with sixty varieties. Two years later I took up the dahlia business as a professional. Last spring I planted over 4,000,000 dahlia plants, nearly thirty-five acres. Dahlias are my hobby and my business combined.

To succeed with dahlias it is essential to have good roots to plant; therefore the separating of the clumps in the spring is an important matter, upon which future success depends. If the clumps are improperly separated, leaving the tubers without a crown from which to sprout, they will not grow.

Separate the clump, using a sharp knife and cutting each root separately, first dividing the clump in halves, then cutting to one root or tuber. In dividing, great care should be taken to leave a portion of the crown or original stalk on each root; it is on this crown that the sprout starts, and if the root has no crown, it is worthless. During the months of March and April the clumps send forth sprouts, generally one for each root on the clump. These aid in dividing properly.

When and Where to Plant.

The time of planting dahlias varies according to the locality, depending on whether the ground is sheltered or open; also on the earliness or lateness of the season, and on the time when the general crop of flowers is desired. Dahlias can be planted any time after danger of frost is over, and under ordinary conditions will bloom in from six to eight weeks after they have been planted. It is always best to wait until the ground becomes thoroughly warmed.

The dahlia is not as particular as most of our flowers, and will succeed under a great many adverse conditions. There are, however, certain locations where dahlias seem to outdo themselves. An open, sunny location seems to favor them at all times. They do well on high or low land, on hillsides or perfectly level land, giving good results in each location.

I find dahlias are particularly adapted for seashore use, where they are favorably affected by the moisture, and especially by the heavy dews which collect during the nights. I also find that many varieties do well under partial shade, producing fully as good flowers as they do in the hot sun, especially for exhibition purposes.

Dahlias will grow equally well in any kind of soil. The principal requirement is cultivation. I have sand, gravel, heavy and light loam, low land and hills, and I find little difference as far as the number of flowers is concerned. The only difference is that in sand and gravel they form short, sturdy, compact plants, while in heavy loam and low land they grow tall and rank, blooming about a week later than those planted at the same time in a sandy soil.

Culture and Feeding.

The soil should be thoroughly cultivated. It should be plowed or spaded eight to ten inches deep, well pulverized and thoroughly worked over, thus affording an opportunity for rapid expansion, and making an easy path for the tiny rootlets.

The fertilization of the soil is important. You can use horse, cow, sheep or hen manure, or chemicals. You can use any commercial fertilizer rich in nitrogen, potash, ammonia and phosphoric acid. Fish and potash, acid phosphate in the form of bone flour, or sulphate of potash, are also effective.

Every other fall I give my land a top-dressing of stable manure, plowing it under, and alternate with lime, using this as a top-dressing. The manure restores the necessary properties and makes the soil light and mellow, while lime has the same tendency and also keeps the soil sweet. When planting in the spring I use commercial fertilizers exclusively, using a complete potato fertilizer and ground bone meal, in equal proportions. Every fourth or fifth year I make a fall planting of winter rye; I turn this under in the spring, planting the bulbs with commercial fertilizers.

An application of manure, either in liquid or ordinary form, several times throughout the growing season proves beneficial, furnishing new material for the growing plants and insuring the best results.

Points About Planting.

Plant the roots in hills or drills, laying them flat, six inches deep. Do not stand the tuber on end. If you stand the tuber on end, having the sprout near the top of the ground, all the new tubers which form will grow near the top of the ground. Consequently, when you have a dry spell the plants will become stunted; whereas, if the tubers are planted flat and six inches deep, the roots receive sufficient moisture to keep them growing even in the driest season. In planting with manure, cover the manure an inch or so before planting the roots. The fertilizer should be thoroughly worked into the soil. Either fertilizer or manure will burn the sprout, if not covered with soil.

By planting the root first, then covering it to the depth of an inch or so with soil, and lastly applying the fertilizer or manure, the plant receives the entire benefit of the dressing. The dressing is above the tuber and every rain carries the food down to the roots; whereas, if the dressing is below the tuber, each rain takes the dressing farther away from the plant.

Remember, then, to plant the tuber six inches deep, laying it flat, with the sprout or eye facing upward; cover with an inch or so of soil, apply the dressing, and cover in level.

Cultivation is the principal requirement of the dahlia. Keep the soil well cultivated and free from weeds; never allow the soil to crust. Cultivate deeply at first, and continue once a week until the plants commence to flower. After they commence to bloom, do not cultivate, as then is the time the new roots are forming and you are liable to cut off the new tubers, weakening the growth of the plant. Do not fail to stir the soil after every rain, keeping the soil from forming a crust on the surface and conserving the moisture in the soil, thus avoiding the necessity of watering.

J. K. Alexander.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Bedding Geraniums.

This is the latest period for potting bedding geraniums in 4-inch pots. Use a fairly stiff loam, to which add a little old manure and fine bone. Do not use any sand or leaf-mold, and be sure to pot the plants firmly. Loosely potted stock in light soil will soon show a sickly, starved appearance. You can help the starved plants by feeding them with weak liquid manure, or giving each pot a sprinkling of fine bone or Clay's fertilizer. Are your plants getting crowded in the benches? If so, you can easily relieve them by using coldframes. Place a little warm horse manure in the frames and partly plunge the pots. They will grow better and stockier there than in the greenhouses; so will ageratums, fuchsias and many other bedding plants. For coleus, alternantheras, achyranthes, etc., a stronger hotbed is the ideal place and growth is much faster there than in a greenhouse. It is possible to damp down the plants and bottle a brisk heat each afternoon, which cannot well be done in greenhouses where a variety of stock is grown.

Poinsettias.

It is time to overhaul, pot or box the old poinsettia stools. Prune the plants back a little and start them in a warm, moist house. Water them lightly, but spray freely until they start to grow. Move them to cooler quarters as they start to grow, in order to get nice, stocky cuttings. These early cuttings will be ideal for bench culture or growing along in 6-inch or 7-inch pots if you want some big bracts, but if you only want short stock in pans for Christmas you need not start the poinsettias for a month or six weeks yet.

Primulas.

Primula obconica and P. Sinensis are, or should be, in flats of soil now, and ready, or nearly so, for 2½-inch pots. Use a soil for the first potting containing one-half leaf-mold, a little old manure and sand and the remainder loam, and do not pot too firmly. The plants will do well in coldframes in the summer. For some time yet, however, they need a bench in an ordinary greenhouse, and see that they are shaded from the direct rays of the sun. It is much too early to sow P. malacoides. July 1 is a suitable time to start this beautiful primula, as it is a rapid grower.

Coleus and Alternantheras.

If you do not carry over any stock plants of coleus and alternantheras, now is the time to buy rooted cuttings from some reputable concern. They are inexpensive and it is better for the average small country florist to buy them now than try to carry over a lot of stock in an ordinary greenhouse. If you have not a warm house for them, prepare a good hotbed and plunge the pots. They will grow in a way that will surprise you. On cold nights they need a mat or board shutter protection.

Canterbury Bells.

The early batch of Canterbury bells now is in bloom. What noble pot plants they are! Even finer plants will be at their best a month from now. Growers of these plants will find it necessary to stake each shoot separately in order to prevent breakages and get really shapely plants. Grow them in a cool, airy greenhouse. They do not like forcing. If you can get a batch in for Memorial day, the cut flowers will prove splendid for bunching. Now is the proper time to sow seed in order to have really strong plants to pot next fall. The single varieties in pink, white, mauve and dark blue make the best pot plants. The calycanthema, or hose in hose type, is pretty, but every shoot has to be tied up to its full length to prevent breakage.

Caladium Esculentum.

Caladium esculentum is a rapid grower and for that reason should not be started early. Place the plants in flats or on a warm bench where there is some bottom heat, in a light, sandy soil. Pot them as soon as growth starts, which will be within a comparatively few days. It is a mistake to start these caladiums, or elephant's ears, as they are commonly called, earlier than this date, as they make too much growth and starve in the pots.

Rambler Roses for 1917.

The best ramblers for early forcing are those grown in pots through the summer. Now is the time to try some good field plants. Pot them firmly, cut them down nearly to the tops of the pots, place them in a cool house and in two or three weeks many eyes will start, more than you will need. Reduce these to from four to six to a plant. Give them more heat as growth advances, in a bright, sunny house free of drafts. Drafts will cause mildew. Keep the shoots securely tied up and hold the plants indoors for a couple of months, then plunge outdoors and tie the shoots securely to stakes or a temporary fence, in order to give them full sun. These canes will ripen much earlier than those on stock planted outdoors.

If you do not want ramblers for early forcing, this is the time to buy what stock you need. Cut them down close to the ground when planted, and in other respects treat them the same as suggested for pot-grown plants. This stock can be dug up and potted in the fall and will make good stock for next Easter flowering.

MUMS IN THE SOUTH.

The month of April is a good time in the south to start propagating the young chrysanthemum plants. The cuttings are best rooted in frames. The frames should be rather deep, in order to protect the cuttings as much as possible from drafts. For propagating material there is nothing better than charcoal dust, although a mixture of half sand and half charcoal dust also is good. To get the best results there are two points to be carefully observed, the shading and the watering of the cuttings.

The sashes on the frames should be raised back and front about one foot, to permit plenty of ventilation, and should have a coat of whitewash or thin paint. Lath shades laid on the sashes or a cotton awning will keep the frames considerably cooled. These should be removed at sundown, to give the cuttings the benefit of the night dews. The cuttings will require a good watering when first inserted, and thereafter should be kept rather on the moist side. All the necessary watering should be done after the shade has been removed at sundown. L.

OTAKSA FOR EASTER.

The French hydrangeas have come to the front as Easter plants in the last few years, but that the old, favorite variety, Otaksa, still is in the running is shown by the accompanying illustration. It shows one of three houses of this plant flowered this Easter at the establishment of J. W. Dudley & Sons, Parkersburg, W. Va.

Hydrangea Otaksa as Grown for Easter at the Establishment of J. W. Dudley & Sons, Parkersburg, W. Va.

BLIGHTED LILY BUDS.

Can you tell me what is the trouble with my giganteum lilies? They are like the one enclosed. I have used tobacco for fumigating and have sprayed with nicotine extract, at the rate of about one teaspoonful to three gallons of water. Did I use it too strong? This is the first time I have had trouble with giganteums and I should like to know the cause. V. H. T.—Ky.

The tobacco fumigation and spraying at the strength named should not be in any way responsible for the buds of your lilies blighting in this way. Have you been planning to hold these plants for Easter and, seeing that they were somewhat too early, have you dropped the temperature sharply to retard the plants? If, for instance, your plants have been growing in a temperature of 65 degrees at night and you moved them to a house 20 degrees colder, the probabilities are that many buds will never open at all. It is quite safe to take plants with two or three open flowers and move them to even a cool cellar, but it would not do to place plants with buds one-half or one-fourth developed in so cool a storehouse. If these were cold storage bulbs, it is possible that they were frozen too much while in cold storage. This would not destroy the actual growths, but nearly all flowers would come blasted.

CARNATIONS

APPEARS TO BE YELLOWS.

Can you tell us what is the trouble with the enclosed carnation leaves? As you can see, they are yellow and streaked. Just a few plants in each bench show the disease, in various degrees. Some of the plants look as healthy as ever. A few of the young plants are becoming affected in the same way. These are in 2½-inch pots and are well rooted, but not potbound. The soil on the benches contains a fair proportion of barnyard manure and ground bone, well mixed before we put the soil in the houses. Since then we have put on small quantities of cattle manure, a light application of lime and two small applications of wood ashes. Last week we gave an application of soot from the boiler flues and the plants seemed to assume a greener color after that. About March 1 we used a commercial fertilizer, containing bone, blood and potash, at the rate of a 2-inch potful to a row across a 4½-foot bench. Was that too heavy a dose? Would a spraying with Bordeaux mixture be of any benefit? S. B.—N. Y.

The specimens submitted failed to disclose anything besides a case of yellows. I could perhaps be more positive if I had a whole plant for inspection. Your treatment of the blooming stock does not seem wrong. It is too late, of course, to suggest selecting the cuttings, as the propagating season is near its close, but I would suggest that you separate the young plants, selecting those which are absolutely clean, and grow them along for future propagating. Those which are slightly affected will probably give you fair returns next season, but it would be unwise to propagate from them. Spraying with Bordeaux will, of course, do no harm and it might be beneficial, if there is any fungous disease on them.

A. F. J. B.

THE USE OF SHEEP MANURE.

Will you be so kind as to let me know which is the better way to use pulverized sheep manure—dry or in water? If in water, how much per barrel? If dry, what quantity for a specified bench space? I should like to use it both for carnations and for pot plants. My carnations are strong and healthy and are producing good, big flowers. Is it advisable to use the manure every month at this time of the year, to keep the plants strong and the flowers large? I formerly used cow manure, as I had a good supply of it, but I am not familiar with the use of sheep manure. L. V.—Kan.

Sheep manure can be used in either liquid or dry form. We prefer to use it in the dry state, as it is then more easily applied and, as far as we have been able to observe, is just as effective, though perhaps not quite so quick in action. We sprinkle a small handful, about a 2½-inch potful, between the rows of plants, halfway across a 5-foot bench. Put it on when the soil is tolerably moist and let it lie a day before watering again. By that time it will have absorbed enough moisture to prevent it from washing away. You can apply it once each month or six weeks from this time on, but watch your blooms, so they will not become soft. At the first sign of softness, stop the use of the sheep manure.

To use it in liquid form, tie about a peck of the manure in a burlap bag and hang it in a 50-gallon barrel of water. After the liquid has stood a couple of days, you can use it. The liquid can be applied once each week or ten days, according to the weather and the condition of the plants.

A. F. J. B.

DISEASED OR SCALDED LEAVES.

Please tell me what is the trouble with the carnations I am sending you under separate cover. They were potted out of sand about ten days ago and have since developed this disease. My entire stock of Alice carnations seems to be affected. Is there anything that can be done? F. G. W.—Ky.

Your carnation plants either have a dreadful dose of leaf-spot or they have been scalded with some kind of spraying material. Only a microscopical examination will reveal which is the cause. There are some spots which have every appearance of the common leaf-spot, while there are large blotches which appear to be due to scald, such as is produced by arsenic. If it is leaf-spot, your remedy will be Bordeaux mixture, applied once each week until planting-out time. Plants that are as badly affected as those sent in, however, are not fit for anything.

A. F. J. B.

SCALE ON PLUMOSUS.

Enclosed you will find a branch of Asparagus plumosus that is badly affected with what seems to be a white scale. It came from a customer's plant. Can you tell me the cause and its remedy? C. M.—Mich.

Syringe the affected plants with Aphine, Fir Tree Oil or some other good, reliable preparation. The receptacles containing these insecticides will each tell in what proportion they should be used. A thorough spraying should kill and loosen the scale so that a large proportion can be washed off by using a fine spray nozzle on the hose. Give a second spraying whenever it seems necessary. C. W.

THE WORM WILL TURN.

The following was a paid reading notice in the Sun, published at Paducah, Ky.:

All ladies having storage pot plants in Bob Parrish's greenhouses, Wallace park, can get them any time they send for them. Ring 526 either phone (Park Cash Store) and get the amount you owe me as life is too short to work seven months on credit then beg for my money, so send cash or check when you send for plants. Yours to serve, BOB PARRISH.

ORCHIDS

MORE ON RESTING CATTLEYAS.

In The Review of February 10, on page 18, E. A. R., of Illinois, inquired how long cattleyas should be rested after flowering, and C. W. replied that they should be rested for a couple of months, or, to be more exact, two months. As an old collector of orchids and the finder of C. Trianæ Schroederæ, perhaps I may be allowed to "butt in." C. Trianæ flowers at the beginning of the dry season and, consequently, needs a long rest afterwards. C. Mossiæ, however, flowers during the first rains and starts to grow immediately. It consequently takes its rest before flowering. C. gigas and C. aurea flower during the middle of the wet season and do not begin their rest until six weeks or two months later. Dowiana grows where the rainfall is indeterminate and, therefore, needs no rest at all, or only a partial one. You will be surprised to hear that I found my first Schroederæ out on Christmas day. In its habitat its season of flowering is January and February, and the rains begin about the latter part of March. As far as my observations go, all cattleyas make their sheaths during the season of heaviest rainfall, and the cup formed by the expanding leaf is always full of water. If, therefore, your growths damp off when there is water in them, it follows that your conditions are wrong. Nature makes no mistakes; we are apt to do so.

Edw. A. Wallace.

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Shading.

While we have long spells of dark weather, the days are lengthening rapidly and on clear days the sun's rays are strong. It is not a good policy to shade any more than is absolutely necessary on such tough-leaved subjects as cattleyas and lælias. In fact, where these are being grown in an old house with heavy wooden rafters, they need only light shading even in summer, provided they have plenty of ventilation, a thing absolutely necessary on all possible occasions for the successful cultivation of cattleyas. Let the shading be light as yet. Kerosene and white lead, if made quite thin, can be spread on the roof with a force pump, or, where the houses are small and a neater appearance is wanted, a whitewash brush on a long handle may be used. Practically all orchids will be benefited by a light shade from early April on. During dark weather this is a disadvantage, but wooden roller shades are too expensive for the average commercial grower.

Cattleya Trianæ.

Most of the plants of Cattleya Trianæ have now finished blooming, and necessary repotting or basketing should be done as soon as possible. Large plants which hang over the sides of their receptacles will be better if carefully divided. Medium to small plants are, on the whole, preferable to large specimens. Always drain efficiently and pot firmly, using fern fiber of a somewhat coarser texture than that used for such orchids as odontoglossums, miltonias and oncidiums.

Cattleya Schroederæ.

Cattleya Schroederæ follows C. Trianæ and has been or is at its best. Its pale color does not seem to be liked so well in the markets as C. labiata, Trianæ or Mossiæ, but no other variety of any size can be flowered at this season, unless it be one of certain hybrids, which are far beyond the limit of the average purse. While some C. Schroederæ have sepals and petals nearly pure white, and while a percentage of perfectly white flowers will appear in newly imported stock, there are quite a few with a good deal of color in them, so much so that they are sometimes mistaken for C. Trianæ. C. Schroederæ succeeds well at the warm end of the cattleya house.

Cattleya Mossiæ.

A few Cattleya Mossiæ, the late spring or early summer cattleya, have bloomed and some good specimens recently were seen at the Philadelphia and New York shows. It is an inexpensive orchid, quite floriferous, and the large, attractive flowers sell well in the markets. Some forms are so large that they are fully equal to the best C. gigas, besides possessing more substance and having greater keeping qualities than that variety. Florists who have space for a few cattleyas should try a few newly imported C. Mossiæ, which may be expected to arrive in May, unless the war calls for vessels now engaged in the South American trade.

Cymbidiums.

All the cymbidiums carry attractive flowers. The best known are C. Lowianum and C. eburneum, the hybrids between these two species, C. Traceyanum, C. insigne, or Sanderi, C. Gottianum and others, all well worth growing. The flowers of this genus have wonderful lasting properties. I have kept C. Lowianum for four months and some other species are almost as durable. Cymbidiums are terrestrial orchids and must never be allowed to become dry at the root. Being vigorous in habit, they require tolerably large pots and succeed better in a compost of fern fiber alone. C. Lowianum does well in loam alone, with some lumpy charcoal and a few bits of dried cow manure added. All members of the family require a liberal water supply through the growing season, and liquid manure will benefit well rooted plants, provided it is given in moderately weak doses.

Odontoglossums.

Many of the odontoglossums have bloomed or now are in bloom. Be sure to protect the flowers from the attacks of shell snails as soon as they are visible, using a piece of cotton-wool wrapped below the spike. Plants which have been wintering in a sunny house should now have, if possible, a house with a northern exposure; a lean-to somewhat sunken and facing due north is an ideal location for most of the members of this genus in the hot months. O. crispum is far the best species. This is the most popular orchid in Europe, far exceeding the cattleya in that respect. There are a few odontoglossums, including grande, citrosmum, Uro-Skinneri, Rossii majus, pulchellum and Edwardi, which succeed well at the cool end of the cattleya house if given a little more summer shade than the cattleyas.

Dendrobiums.

When Dendrobium nobile, D. Wardianum and the many hybrids with nobile blood in them have finished flowering, they should be repotted where necessary. In many cases a top-dressing of fern fiber and sphagnum moss will suffice; then place the pots in a warm, moist house for the summer. Owing to the European war, we are unlikely to receive any dendrobiums this year. All come from the East Indies, and, unless a few should come via San Francisco, we are unlikely to get any new stock until the war is over. D. nobile is easily propagated here and, if we stop importing it, it will be possible to develop an ample stock of young plants from old pseudo-bulbs cut into short lengths and laid on sphagnum moss in a warm, moist house.

GOOD EASTER STOCK.

There never is any trouble selling good stock; such difficulty as is encountered comes in selling poor stuff—and in making it stay sold. Alfred M. Barton, of Weston, Ont., who does wholesale as well as retail business, appreciates this fact and he strives for quality rather than quantity production. An idea of his degree of success can be obtained by an inspection of the accompanying illustration.

Easter Lilies at A. M. Barton's, Weston, Ontario.

SHAKESPEARE TERCENTENARY.

C. C. Case, of the Dial-Garden Greenhouse, Prairie du Chien, Wis., is a student of Shakespeare, the three-hundredth anniversary of whose death falls on the same date as Easter, April 23. The following shows how Mr. Case links the two in his advertising:

DEAD 300 YEARS—STILL LIVES.

There is something suggestive in the coincidence that the three-hundredth anniversary of the death of Shakespeare comes at Easter this year. His genius is a continual resurrection. Upon the garden dial was inscribed what we consider the most inspired trinity of suggestive and beautiful phrases ever penned in any language except Holy Scripture:

"Man must endure his going hence, even as his coming hither—Ripeness is all."

The rock of the dial structure won't last long. But as long as language lasts these particular phrases will live as the most exquisite verbal expression of profound speculative philosophy and the only actual conclusion reached in all the ages. All gardens tell the same story in their own language. Ever so many of the many flowers which Shakespeare weaves, by mention, into the garlands of his verse, grow, in season, about this dial inscription of his composition. And we have many of them in bloom now in the greenhouse near at hand. You will want some of them now and at Easter, for many reasons, perhaps partly in remembrance of the immortal "Bard of Avon."

Legislation and Legal Decisions

REPAIR OF LEASED BUILDINGS.

Florists who occupy leased store rooms will be interested in a late decision of the Oklahoma Supreme court bearing on the landlord's duty to make repairs (Moore versus Enterprise Seed Co., 151 Pacific Reporter 867).

The plaintiff rented to the seed company for a period of five years the first floor and basement of an Oklahoma City building. After occupying the premises for about three years the seed company quit, and afterwards suit was brought by the landlord to recover rent for the unexpired portion of the lease term. This suit was defended on the ground that the premises were rendered unfit for occupancy, and that the company was constructively evicted because of the defective construction of a wall of the building and certain deficiencies in plumbing, permitting sewer water and gas to seep into the basement.

The lease contract contained no provision on the part of the landlord to keep the premises in repair. In deciding the case against the seed company the court said: "If the premises were to be used as a residence, or if there was an implied warranty of the fitness of the premises for the purposes for which they were leased, or if there was any duty on the part of the landlord to make repairs, the contention of the defendant would be tenable; but these are no longer open questions in this jurisdiction. It is a well recognized principle of law that, in the absence of a statute or agreement, there is no implied warranty that the leased premises are suitable for the purposes for which they are leased, or that the landlord will keep the property in repair." The Market.

The market last week was somewhat slow, which usually is the case preceding the Easter rush, but orders already were being placed, and at that time the outlook for Easter was good. There appeared to be, according to some of the large growers, plenty of stock for the holiday, but not much in the way of bulbous stock, owing to the lateness of the season. However, azaleas, spiræas, ramblers and other potted plants are numerous. Easter lilies are plentiful and are in the pink of condition. The cut flower market has been well stocked, but there has been no particular glut. Roses have been more than abundant and prices reasonable; they are expected to take on Easter prices. Russell, Milady, Ophelia and Sunburst roses have sold well, their quality being good. Carnations were plentiful last week, but were being held back some for the holiday. Sweet peas have been numerous and have been selling at low figures. Violets were fairly good and the holiday trade probably will about finish them. Valley is abundant and sells well, and the demand for it this week for wedding work will be heavy. Pussy willows sell nicely and are used extensively for basket work. Daffodils and jonquils continue to move easily and the stock is clearing fast. Tulips are slowing up. The supply of green goods approximately meets all the requirements.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Armbrust have returned to the city. Mr. Armbrust now is in the employ of H. E. Wilson, 88 East Main street.

Harry Merritt was cutting a large quantity of carnations and said they would be in fine condition for Easter. His White Wonder is doing exceptionally well and is unusually large.

Miss H. B. Ellis, who has been sick for about a month, has returned to work feeling much better.

The Kaelber Flower Store, recently opened on South Clinton street, is doing a fair business and the trade seems to be steady. The furnishings of the store are up-to-date and the lighting arrangement is unique. Miss Lillian Wheeler is in charge.

The monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held April 10, at the Musicians' Headquarters. The attendance was fair. John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of parks, gave a brief outline of his visit to the National Flower Show, at Philadelphia. The flower show committee was not able to report anything definite on this year's show. The principal address of the evening was given by Will H. Dildine, of James Vick's Sons, on "The European Seed Market." He said that because of the uncertainty of the future all plans go wrong. Whatever the American seedsman may do, he is literally gambling, as the uncertainty of conditions gives him practically nothing on which he may build his plans.

The New York Cut Flower Co. has opened a store at 76 East Main street, where it is showing a fine assortment of plants. Business was said to be good and a big Easter trade was anticipated.

The Ladies' Auxiliary held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. H. P. Neun, South avenue, April 12. The usual business was transacted, after which the members were entertained and served refreshments.

H. E. Wilson has added to his delivery service a fine new car, which should be of good use this week.

The Lord & Burnham Co. reports good business. Materials for Hugo Teute's iron-frame house, 40x250 feet, now is at his place awaiting good weather for erection. Frank Lavigne has received material for his curved-truss show house, which will be erected early in July. Reports from the local office of this company are to the effect that those who can swing a new house this season should get busy and send their orders in. Prices on glass, iron, etc., in fact, all building materials, as well as labor, still are on the increase and lower prices are nowhere in sight.

THE GLADIOLUS

THE GLADIOLUS SITUATION.

I find that orders are coming in so rapidly that it looks as if gladiolus bulbs were going to be scarce before the selling season is over. First size bulbs of leading varieties, such as America, Mrs. King, Independence, Augusta, Baron Hulot, etc., seem to be pretty much all sold. There is also a hurry-up call for good mixtures and planting stock. The bulb trade has not been in so healthy a condition for some time. This is due partly to the increased number of florists who are making use of the gladiolus in a commercial way and partly to the increased number of amateurs who are planting it for pleasure. As the French say, the gladiolus has "arrived" and we, who have been sweating at the state and other fairs, take considerable of the credit to ourselves.

GLADIOLI OF MERIT.

Is it too late to plant gladioli outdoors? Please name the best varieties and colors. F. C.—Ind.

It is too early to plant gladioli outdoors in your latitude. From April 10 to June 10 they may be planted. Cover them six inches deep. A few good commercial varieties are: America, pink; Mrs. F. King, scarlet; Augusta and Peace, white; Halley, salmon; Baron Hulot, blue; Klondyke, yellow; Panama, pink; Brenchleyensis, scarlet.

GLADIOLUS BULBS IN POTS.

I want to try some gladiolus bulbs in pots, to be moved to the open ground as soon as the weather will permit, for early flowers. When is the proper time to pot the bulbs to have them in condition for planting out next April?

C. P.—Ohio.

It is perfectly feasible to start your gladioli in pots for as early a batch as possible outdoors. Place the bulbs singly in 3½-inch or 4-inch pots about the end of February and stand the pots in a cold greenhouse. They can be moved into a frame by April 1. In order not to subject them to too severe a check, it is a good idea to stand them over a few inches of warm manure, on which a thin coating of coal ashes can be spread. Gradually harden the plants, and in your latitude it should be safe to plant them outdoors about April 25.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

E. J. Byam, of Rome, N. Y., is giving the Romans a big floral treat this Easter in the new show house, 32x150 feet, and the salesroom, 26x36 feet. The latter has a stucco facade, with inside furnishings, including an open fireplace. It is unique and has the most improved system of lighting and heating. The refrigerator is built into the wall, has a heavy plate glass front and has a capacity of one ton of ice.

The Humphrey Floral Co., of Rome, has touched up the salesroom in keeping with the season and is showing some well grown stock. Rebuilding will follow the spring business.

F. A. Taylor, of Canastota, N. Y., has been successful in growing some acacias from seed brought direct from Joppa by a local Knight Templar, and believes that this is the first time on record such a feat has been accomplished.

Frank Baker, of Utica, N. Y., is taking advantage of his fine place to give the Uticans a national show on a reduced scale. New York gave him some points. He mentioned that a representative of a Philadelphia house, who had seen both exhibitions, agreed that Father Knickerbocker had put one over on William Penn.

William Mathews, of Utica, says he derives much pleasure from reading the reports. While not quite so spry as in former years, he is always to be found among his pet orchids, and reluctantly hands over the activities of the business to his son Harry.

W. P. Pfeifer, of Utica, in addition to having a splendid crop of carnations, has one of the finest stocks of lilies and spiræas in that locality for Easter.

W. A. Rowlands, of Utica, catching a glimpse of Old King Sol, remarked that a banner crop of carnations for Easter was in sight and all sold ahead. Not content with the dual business now engaged in, Dr. Rowlands expects to receive the appointment of state boxing inspector and predicts that the manly art may take the place of bowling, which is now less popular than formerly. In fancy we see him acting as referee at Houston.

Brant Bros., of Utica, in commenting on the big Lord & Burnham Co. house in course of construction, pointed to the fine stock of roses in an adjoining structure and expressed entire satisfaction regarding the future in both supply and demand.

Peter Crowe, of Utica, is expected to add to his houses to accommodate additional stock of the popular Adiantum Croweanum.

S. Whitton & Sons, of Utica, report large sales for Easter and an abundance of stock.

Williams & Wieder, of Utica, deny the report that they intend selling out at this time, when business shows up so well.

W. D. Snell, of Herkimer, N. Y., says that the branch at Ilion is proving more than he can conveniently handle and that he will sell it to some hustling purchaser. The Remington Arms Co. has made large additions to its plant and benefited the trade.

E. A. Baker, of Ilion, reports a considerable increase in business.

J. O. Graham, of Little Falls, N. Y., found excellent conditions on his return from the east. There were large funeral orders and the receipt for the purchase of the greenhouse property recently acquired by him.

Joseph Traudt, of Canajoharie, N. Y., has made considerable improvements of late and has his usual high-grade stock for Easter. The Beechnut people call for high-class work.

A. J. Hilton, of Amsterdam, N. Y., commented that even the garage had been utilized to care for Easter stock, which was never better and all sold.

J. G. Hatcher, of Amsterdam and Schenectady, gave a private show at the Hoffman range Palm Sunday. The splendid assortment and high-grade stock were greatly admired. It was predicted that Easter business would beat all previous records.

W. D. Stewart, of Oswego, N. Y., remarked it was not so much the quantity of glass as what was under it that counted. He has the finest sweet peas thereabout and is successful in the culture of the orange and lemon.

C. Beckstedt, of Oswego, expects to do a little building after the spring rush. Easter stock and orders are satisfactory.

W. H. Workman, of Oswego, will possibly be in the market for an additional auto delivery car, if business conditions continue. Easter and spring planting sales, together with stock, are in a most healthy shape.

LANCASTER, PA.

The monthly meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' and Gardeners' Employees' Fraternity was held April 17 at the Chamber of Commerce building. Fourteen new members were admitted. The chocolate Easter rabbit was raffled for the benefit of the treasury and brought a net profit of $2,345. A festival to swell the death benefit fund was arranged, to be held the latter part of May. The committee of five has full power to act as it sees fit. Louis Benner, Alphonse Peters, Harry Benner, John Weise and Edward Geiter are the big five on whom the fraternity relies to make the festival a success. Next meeting will be held the first Monday in May, at the headquarters.

Albert M. Herr honored the fraternity with a visit at the April meeting.

Ghent, Belgium.—On top of the many troubles of the last twenty-one months, the flooding of the country north and west of this point has added one more disaster to those brought upon the growers here. Many nurseries are under water; the floods have come within nine miles of Ghent.

London, England.—The Kewites in America will be interested to know that in the heavy storm of March 28, among other damage at Kew, the last of the ancient elms, known as the Seven Sisters, was uprooted by the wind. During the year 1915, 4,300,330 persons visited Kew gardens.

London, England.—There has been much opposition as the result of action by the Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association decreeing that in 1916 and subsequent seasons its members shall charge extra for cases and packing. An effort now is being made to get British importers of Dutch bulbs to sign an agreement to place no orders until quotations are made on the old terms of free package and delivery to a Dutch port. A meeting to create public sentiment was held April 18, during the daffodil show.

London, England.—The spring exhibition of the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society, held March 29, failed of its usual success. A record blizzard kept away many exhibitors and many visitors. American carnations were slightly less numerous and British varieties slightly more numerous than in recent years. W. Wells & Co. won the cup offered by the American Carnation Society for American raised novelties, showing Good Cheer, Aviator and Pink Sensation, the latter being much the finest variety in the show.

Aalsmeer, Holland.—When the German government recently prohibited the importation of luxuries, including cut flowers, it dealt a severe blow to a number of growers here. With Mediterranean flowers cut off, large consignments have gone into Germany from this place this season and prices have been the best realized in many years. The market now has been cut off and there are fears that no other outlet can be found.

London, England.—During the Chelsea show a trade conference will be held to devise ways and means of improving the situation regarding glasshouse operation in England. It is the general opinion that concerted action must be taken to keep the trade alive, as recent prices have been unprofitable. It is said that most of those growing stock under glass have lost money, while growers of outdoor stock and dealers in seeds have had fairly good business.

Rotterdam, Holland.—The Holland-America line dispatched no boat between March 23 and April 15, when the Ryndam sailed, the delay being due to the dangers of navigating the North sea, because of which the Rotterdam, the largest steamer of the Holland-America's fleet, recently was withdrawn from service. The Ryndam carried several hundred cases of nursery stock but was not able to take all the consignments offered. The interruption of the Rotterdam-New York service will add greatly to the troubles of American importers. The situation is one in which it is impossible to obtain information regarding the probable facilities for moving fall shipments of Holland bulbs and Belgian azaleas.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Last week the wholesale cut flower market was glutted with all kinds of cut flowers and the demand was light. The calls for stock each morning did not make any impression on the large consignments that came in daily. These conditions, of course, forced the prices down to the lowest of the season. The stock coming in was of the highest quality, especially of roses, and as the demand for these was light many went to waste. Only the choicest stock brought anything like a price, while the lower grades went for a song. Many short Beauties are being shipped in, but the market condition leaves many unsold. The same is true of carnations; $7.50 per thousand was considered a good price Saturday, April 15. The outlook is for a big crop of roses and carnations for Easter, as well as of other flowers, such as jonquils, daffodils, snapdragons, tulips, Dutch hyacinths and lilies. Sweet peas will be in overabundance. Extra good valley is somewhat scarce. The wholesalers say that prices will be lower than for any previous Easter.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The meeting of the Florists' Club, held April 13 in the Odd Fellows' hall, was fairly well attended, thirty-five members being present. The proceedings were interesting from beginning to end. President Bourdet was in the chair and all the officers were present. All the committees made reports, that of the spring flower show being especially interesting to the members, as all have united in making the coming show the best and largest the club ever held. The committee on the application of J. H. Heitman reported favorably and his election followed. The following made application for membership: Oscar Ruff, a retailer; Alex Lorie, of the Missouri Botanical Garden; Chas. E. Mandeville, pot manufacturer; George Schmidt, a Kirkwood grower; Martin Lechner, bulb dealer. Several communications were filed for future reference. David Geddis was called upon for a report on the National Flower Show held recently at Philadelphia, and gave an interesting account of what he saw. President Bourdet also told the members the fine points about the show and spoke of all the side trips on the way home. A. Vandereen, who had just returned from a visit to Holland, was called upon and gave the members a short talk on Holland and some facts from the war zone. A vote of thanks was extended to the speakers.

On motion it was decided to appoint a committee of three to ascertain the amount of glass in St. Louis and vicinity. The committee consists of F. Windler, W. C. Smith and W. J. Pilcher. The report is to be ready by next meeting. The question box brought out some good discussions, especially on Easter lilies. This being of great importance at that time, the retailers, growers and wholesalers all took part. The next meeting of the club will take place May 11.

Various Notes.

W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, has started cutting on that big crop of Russell roses. This cut is about the finest in quality ever seen of this variety in this market. At the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., where this cut is handled, they say it brings top prices.

Prof. Whitten, of the State University, at Columbia, in a report says that the recent light frosts did not hurt the fruit any, particularly in the southern part of the state.

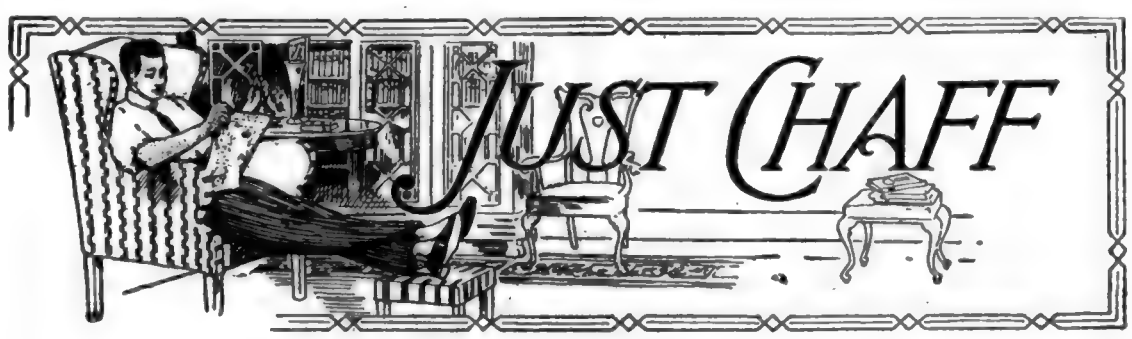
Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Weber, Sr., returned home much refreshed April 15 from a 10-day stay at French Lick Springs, Ind., and Mr. Weber is ready for a big Easter rush.

Ostertag Bros. are the local representatives of the Ideal vacuum flower box, manufactured by the Ideal Lighting Co., Davenport, Ia. Mr. Ostertag had these boxes displayed at the household show in the Coliseum last week and took many orders.

William Smith and E. A. Kelly took a day off April 9 for a fishing trip on the east side and came back with a great string of fine fish. Mr. Smith says the strange part of it was that on the way home nobody stopped them and asked where they had caught them.

There will be a spring flower show at Columbia, Mo., May 5, and President Bourdet, of the Florists' Club, says he has been asked to induce the local florists to make exhibits. He lined up quite a few at last week's club meeting.

The Koenig Floral Co. made an attractive display at the household show at the Coliseum last week, showing badly kept yards on one side and yards as they should be kept on the other. Ostertag Bros. had a display of rustic work and plants for front and back yards.



J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, was over last week and said that business kept him from the National Flower Show. Mr. Ammann reports that this is his twenty-fifth year consigning his output to the wholesale market of C. A. Kuehn.

Edward Sedivec has taken a partner. The style of the firm will be Sedivec & Ochs. Mr. Ochs is a graduate of the Missouri Botanical Garden, having completed a 4-year course. The firm will do a general florist and landscape business at 2714 Cherokee street.

Grimm & Gorly had an attractive opening of their enlarged store last week. Flowers were given away to all visitors and great crowds were in this way attracted all day.

Hugo Werner, of Werner Bros., says while most of the growers could not keep back their lily crop and have been cutting heavily, all their plants will not be ready, as expected, for Easter, to their great disappointment.

Great preparations are being made by the leading west end florists for Easter. Their show houses are filled with everything in season in blooming plants, lilies, of course, being the leading plant. J. J. B.

Her Name Was Ampelop Sis!

"Ivy, why don't you cling to me?"
He cried in whispers thick.
"Oh, Archibald, I will," she cried,
"I think that you're a brick."

Commercial Candor.

A New York firm of "flower brokers" whose card says "office hours 12 to 1," has this line on the pasteboard: "Don't go elsewhere to be cheated, come here."

An Accomplished Florist.

Retailer to porter—Look here, Sam, I can write my name in the dust on this showcase.

Sam—Yes, sir, there's nothing like eddication, is there, sir?

Not So Bad.

Rudolph—"Did that Irishman have any luck with his garden last year?"

Wilhelm—"In a way! He got sunstroke and collected $200 from a health insurance company!"—Chicago Daily News.

Yes, Ain't It?

First Young Lady (pointing to bunch of imitation rosebuds adorning lapel of second Y. L.): "That's a beautiful corsage you have there."

The Other One (after looking in her lap and several other places, and finally locating boutonniere): "Oh, you mean my buttonhole. Yes, ain't it pretty?"

Saving Seeds By Chloroform.

Florist: I see that plants are forced by a Danish scientist by administering chloroform, his theory being that brief periods of rest are followed by quicker growth.

Farmer: Seeds might be helped along, too, if hens were given chloroform.—Clipping.

He Had a Good Income.

"So you want to marry my daughter, eh?" snorted the old man. "Do you consider yourself financially able to do so?"

"Well," replied the suitor, "after a fellow has bought flowers for a girl for a year and still is not broke, I think he can afford to get married."—Chicago Daily News.

He Wasn't the Colored Kind.

A Washington woman who has enjoyed thirty-five years of more than usual connubial bliss has in her employ an amusing old colored cook.

One day, when a box of especially beautiful flowers was left for the mistress, the cook happened to be present. She said: "Yo' husband send you all them pretty flowers you gits, Missy?"

"Certainly, my husband," was the response.

"Glory be!" exclaimed the cook, "he suttenly am holdin' out well, ain't he?"—Clipping.

THE COLLEGE FLORISTS.

As reported in The Review for March 30, a meeting of college and experiment station florists and those interested in their work was held at Philadelphia March 28. As a result, the directors of the S. A. F. March 29 adopted the following resolution:

Resolved: That the members of the S. A. F. interested in the line of floricultural education and research be recognized as a section of the S. A. F. under the title of the College Florists' Section of the S. A. F.

Those present at the college men's meeting were H. B. Dorner, of Illinois; E. A. White and A. C. Beal, of New York; B. W. Anspon, of Maryland; E. I. Wilde, of Pennsylvania; A. H. Nehrling and A. S. Thurston, of Massachusetts, together with W. N. Rudd and Richard Vincent, Jr. At the meeting various problems connected with teaching and experimental work were discussed. Among some of the things which were talked over were how to establish a closer relationship of the commercial men with the colleges, how the colleges might coöperate with the commercial men, the best methods to use to give students a practical training in floriculture, the education of the public to a greater appreciation of flowers, and the placing of students during vacations in order that they might get actual experience along practical lines.

As a result of this informal meeting it was felt that there was need of an organization which not only would be of mutual benefit to its members, but could coöperate with the S. A. F.

There was a fine line of ferns and decorative plants at the greenhouses. The sale brought $1,114. Later in the week the sale was confirmed by Referee Porter. R. B. M.

OBITUARY

William E. Doyle.

William E. Doyle, one of Boston's pioneer florists, died at his home, 15 Kilsyth Road, Brookline, Mass., April 16, after a brief illness, hemorrhage being the immediate cause of death. The deceased was born at Roxbury, Mass., May 22, 1844. He was educated in the Roxbury public schools and moved while still a boy to Syracuse, N. Y., where his father, himself a skillful horticulturist, taught him the growing and care of plants and flowers. Returning to Boston, Mr. Doyle in 1867 opened a flower store at 43 Tremont street. For one year he was in partnership with Thomas W. Dee, under the firm name of Dee & Doyle. Later the business was conducted in his own name and he soon gained a wide reputation.

About twenty-six years ago he opened a store at 306 Boylston street and later a branch store at 6 Beacon street. Removing his home to Cambridge, he took over the once famous Hovey estate, then in a much neglected condition. Here he had some 35,000 feet of glass and grew all kinds of flowers, also making a specialty of large-sized palms and other decorative plants. As a decorator Mr. Doyle had a wide reputation and on numerous occasions attested his skill. Decorations that he liked to speak of were those on the occasion of the visit of President Cleveland and his bride to the Hotel Vendome and the decoration of the Boston theater for the visit of the late King Edward VII, at that time Prince of Wales, and for over twenty years the class day decorations at Harvard. He also on a number of occasions furnished and superintended decorations at the Madison Square Garden, New York.

Mr. Doyle retired from business two or three years ago and had since interested himself chiefly in real estate in his home city. He was a Democrat in politics, serving in the Cambridge council as councilman and alderman, and on the school committee. In 1884 and 1885 he was a member of the state legislature and was a mayoralty candidate in 1898. He was a delegate to the national convention which nominated the Palmer-Buckner ticket. He was a personal friend and admirer of Ex-president Roosevelt.

For some years he was actively identified with the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, serving on the executive committee in 1887 and as vice-president in 1890, the year the S. A. F. convention met in Boston. At one time he was actively interested in the S. A. F. and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. The Killarney rose was introduced and popularized in Boston by Mr. Doyle, as were many other flowers of note.

The deceased is survived by three children, Alice W. Doyle, of Brookline; Geo. B. Doyle, of Brookline; W. E. Doyle, of London, England. At the funeral services at St. Aldan's church, Brookline, April 20, there was a large attendance, including many of his old-time friends and confreres. The floral tributes were numerous.

Besides his wife, Mr. Coleman leaves a daughter, brother and three sisters.

THE price of paint continues to advance steadily.

EASTER this year seems decidedly to mark the advent of summer rather than of spring.

EACH letter The Review receives from Canada, and nearly every one contains $2 for a year's subscription, now bears the sticker that shows it to have been opened and resealed by the censor.

THE spring shows and the Easter displays in the flower stores all indicate that Pink Pearl is the best forcing rhododendron. The fall in price which has accompanied the working up of large stocks of this variety has served to greatly increase the popularity of the rhododendron as a pot plant for Easter.

EARLY this week the Western Union distributed many thousands of large display cards advertising its new purchase and delivery service as applied to Easter flowers. It could not do otherwise than largely increase the number of deliveries to be made at distant places and everything that means more sales of flowers is a boost for each of us.

SOME day everyone will know Narcissus King Alfred. The trumpet and perianth are all of one shade, a splendid golden yellow. At the present time the variety is higher in price than any other in the list and in some of the recent Dutch catalogues a pen has been used to advance the quotation to $35 per hundred bulbs. The trade cannot use a variety at that price, but when the price comes down within reach everyone will grow it.

DATES OF EASTER.

The latest Easter in this century occurs in 1943, when the date is April 25; otherwise the Easter of 1916 is the latest with which any florist now living will have to contend, unless he was in the business in 1886, when Easter fell on the same date it will in 1943. The dates of Easter for the next dozen years are:

Year	Date
1917	April 8
1918	March 31
1919	April 20
1920	April 4
1921	March 27
1922	April 16
1923	April 1
1924	April 20
1925	April 12
1926	April 4
1927	April 17
1928	April 8

KASTING WINS SUIT.

In a decision handed down by Judge Whittelsey at Erie, Pa., April 14, Mabel A. Baur was ordered to pay William F. Kasting for the reconveyance of property in West Twenty-sixth street and the final account of the auditor in the case was ordered to be filed within twenty days. The decision brought to an end a dispute over the title of the property formerly held by the Niemeyer estate.

The case was first brought up in court in May, 1913. Mr. Kasting and Mabel Baur, with her husband, S. Alfred Baur, formed a partnership for the conduct of a greenhouse. Later, Mr. Kasting bought out the Baurs' interest and conducted the business himself, but owing to a failure to convey the property to him, action was started in court, which now has resulted in his victory.

Mr. Kasting is head of the W. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, and is postmaster at Buffalo; also he is treasurer of the Society of American Florists. He is said to have felt keenly as an injustice the characteristic legal allegations made at the time the Baurs started the case now decided in his favor and therefore to take special pleasure in the result.

EASTER PLANTS CLEAN UP WELL.

With unimportant exceptions the growers of Easter pot plants have had their record season. Appreciating the generally prosperous condition of the business, nearly all of them set out early in the season to prepare the largest stock ever offered for the spring flower festival. A late Easter made it easily possible to have everything ready; the only difficulty was to hold back some of the early blooming stock. But nowadays every important plant forcing establishment has its storage houses, where the unwelcome sun can be kept from stock that seems likely to be ready too soon. The Easter plants seldom have been of better quality, nor has the variety ever been greater. A good many of the lilies were short in stem, but since the basket arrangements became popular shortness in the stem of the lily is not the important factor that it was when lilies were sold cut, or only one plant to the pot; nowadays the retail stores need short lilies and are looking for them instead of declining to buy them.

The four days beginning with Palm Sunday are the busiest in the plantsmen's year. Then they sell and deliver their spring crop. Most of them have cleaned out as completely as ever will be possible. There has been a marked increase in the popularity of the roses, in which Crimson Rambler has not shared. The varieties most wanted have been Tausendschon, Dorothy Perkins, Hiawatha and Erna Teschendorff. Other subjects have sold about as usual, except that spiræa appears to be losing its popularity; a number of growers report that while everything else had been ordered up by Palm Sunday, they still had quantities of good spiræa that were slow sale at low prices.

WHAT MAKES MERIT?

The value of the advertising space in a periodical depends first of all upon the way that periodical is regarded by those for whom it is published. Anybody who has the price can print a paper—it is not so easy to get it read. That is why letters like these have a value:

I could not begin to tell you how much I enjoy every issue of The Review, but I read every number from cover to cover. Your report of the National Flower Show at Philadelphia certainly was complete and I was able to enjoy the show almost as much as if I had been there. As for the illustrations, well, they were fine!—Robert W. Yeo, North Bergen, N. J., April 12, 1916.

We have the pleasure to inform you that we always are interested by The Review, as in it we are able to see communications regarding the horticulture of the world. Indeed, The Review is the very best journal in this line.—Saitama Engei & Co., Ltd., Tokyo, Japan, March 29, 1916.

Sending out free copies to those who don't care enough about a paper to pay for it does not bring letters like the above. Nor does a free circulation produce results for advertisers like the following:

You receive so many compliments from advertisers in The Review, about good results obtained, that we are afraid you will not care very much for our mite of acknowledgment. But to state facts: We owe The Review the establishment of our business. The kind information you have given us at times has helped us along wonderfully and last year, when the time came to offer our stock for the first time, we concluded to advertise in The Review only. The expenses for that year's ads were $8.40, and this year $7.20. As for the results: Last year we sold over 6000 bulbs; this year so far, over 12,000, and the few we have left will surely go with another two insertions of a classified ad.—Gerbing Floral Garden Co., Fernandina, Fla., April 12, 1916.

The Gerbing Garden specializes in fancy-leaved caladiums, offering them at $8, $10 and $12 per hundred. Supposing that all were sold at the average price, it would mean that the first season's expenditure of $8.40 brought returns of $600 and that this season's expenditure of $7.20 brought returns of $1,200.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

At last the regenerating effect of Easter is abroad in the Chicago market, and the local trade is vying with shipping business in activity. The local demand, however, did not come to life until April 15. Then it began to make itself felt, and each day since it has been increasingly strong. According to many of the larger wholesalers, there is every prospect of a better Easter business than the trade has ever enjoyed. To be sure, the cool weather has had much to do with this, for without it the growers would not have been able to hold back the blooming plants that are now coming in just right.

be scarce. Those of medium length are scarcer than those with long stems. Prices are accordingly stiffer, and stock clears rapidly. There is a good supply of other roses, with the newer varieties enjoying the preference. Russell is in heavy demand as a substitute for medium length Beauties. Quality is, generally speaking, most excellent.

Carnations are far short of the demand, and there is every indication that they will be remarkably scarce for Easter. This fact, together with the departure of bulbous stock, will go a long way to boost Easter lilies and roses, which are in abundant supply. Jonquils, with the exception of some inferior outdoor stock, are about done for. Daffodils may be counted out. And tulips are practically off the market. There is a large supply of Easter lilies and they are moving rapidly. Of short Easter lilies there is no end. Prices are even more variable than the quality of the lilies. Valley, while not decidedly short, is far from exceeding the demand, which is quite active. Callas are plentiful and enjoy a steady sale. Sweet peas, too, are moving well, as the Easter crop is not so large as was expected. Narcissus poeticus is in fair supply, but does not meet with much demand. Violets are almost a thing of the past. Snapdragon of excellent quality is available in quantity and sells readily. Freesias are not in sufficient supply to cut much of a figure in the market. Mignonette and calendulas may be had if desired. Spanish iris clears soon after reaching the market. Gladioli, too, are quite salable. A few bunches of single white lilac and double purple lilac have found their way to the market. The trade has not as yet had time to make their acquaintance. Cattleyas are even scarcer than they were and prices have taken a jump.

Blooming plants such as azaleas, hydrangeas, climbing and rambler roses have experienced an almost unparalleled sale. Many of the largest growers reported early in the week they were entirely sold out.

The movement of green goods continues to keep pace with the cut flower demand, with no marked change in the matter of supply from the conditions existing last week.

Oechslin's Best Season.

Palm Sunday found Frank Oechslin's establishment as busy as it is possible to be; practically every blooming plant on the place had been sold and was delivered within the succeeding three days. On the whole the stock was a bit better than it ever has been before, although many of the lilies were short in stem. The bulbous stock was good, being held in nice shape in the cold cellar. Azaleas, not so numerous as in some years, were heavily flowered, Mme Vander Cruyssen being the principal variety.

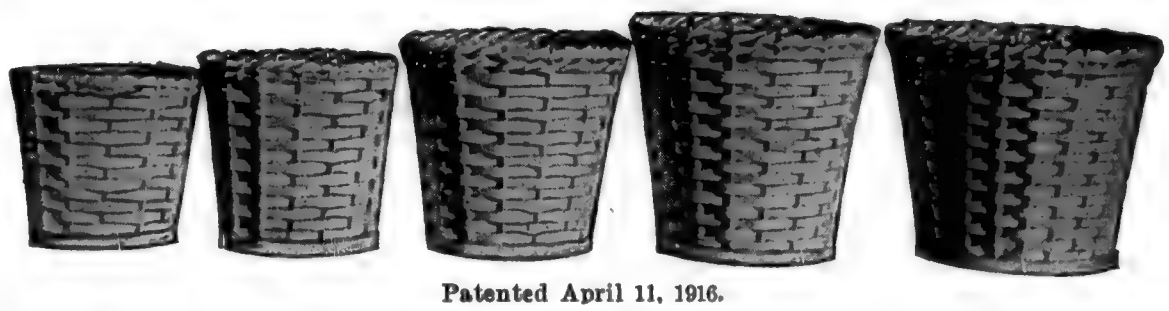
The roses were the leader, a larger number and better quality than ever before. A special feature was made of plants trained to umbrella shape and they were fine, the varieties being Tausendschon and Dorothy Perkins. Tausendschon is easily the best variety on the list, partly on the score of beauty, partly because of its amenability to the grower's desires and partly because it is so tenacious of its petals. This late Easter Dorothy Perkins is perfect, but it comes so slowly that it was not forced last Easter, nor will it be in 1917, when Easter is fifteen days earlier than this year. Crimson Rambler has been dropped; its sport, Erna Teschendorff, is used instead. Two varieties grown in quantity this year for the first time are Yvonne Rabier and Mme. Jules Gouchault. Rabier produces pure white, large double flowers in great profusion; its one fault seems to be that, like other white polyanthas, it drops its petals quickly. Mr. Oechslin's batch of it was a few days earlier than he intended. Gouchault is a splendid variety for basket work; dwarf, bushy, with excellent foliage. It produces large, stiff stems, carrying erect panicles of numerous two-toned flowers, darker on the outside of the petals than within, vermilion red maturing to bright rose. The retailers took to this like a duck to a pond.

Village Elections.

In the village elections in Cook county April 25, Adolph Poehlmann was reëlected police magistrate of Morton Grove. August Poehlmann is village president, his term running another year.

At Western Springs Albert Erickson was elected village trustee.

At Niles Center C. Blameuser was elected a trustee.



At Arlington Heights George Klehm was elected a trustee.

Women as Florists.

"If your friends tell you that you look 'so sweet among the flowers,' don't imagine that you can, therefore, make a financial success of flower growing. No, indeed. To be successful you must have capital, at least $5,000 the first year, together with an infinite capacity for painstaking labor." This is according to Mrs.

H. A. Boardman, proprietor of the Riverside Greenhouse, of St. Paul, who is a member of the Middle West Agricultural and Horticultural Association, which held a three days' conference at the Art Institute last week. Mrs. Boardman made an address on the subject of greenhouse management as an occupation for women. And she should know all about it, for she has been successful at it.

Various Notes.

There will be the usual sales of lilies in the department stores the three days preceding Easter and it will keep the market from being glutted with short stock. It has been found the cheaper class of department stores can and will take and sell all the pot lilies of fair quality offered at 16 cents to 18 cents and it affords the growers an outlet independent of the wholesale cut flower market. The department store buyers do not seem to mind if the plants were grown in benches and were potted while in flower, the day before delivery.

After being associated with A. C. Spencer for some time, Ed Hauswirth is making a start in business for himself at Fort Wayne, Ind. The refrigerator department of the A. L. Randall Co. is building a handsome box for the new store.

Joseph Kohout has assumed the management of the Meredith Flower & Vegetable Co., Libertyville, Ill., in addition to the responsibilities of his own establishment. The two places are about two miles apart, on the same car line.

The Mrs. Russell plants at Union Grove promise a splendid cut in May and look so well in general that they will be kept going without rest so long as they can be kept in their present condition, says Richard Salm.

The steady and almost rapid growth of the telegraph delivery phase of the business is commented on by W. J. Smyth, who says he has found it worth while to give such orders special attention as a means for keeping them coming. He says the man who lets such an order fall down for any reason is blocking the wheels of progress.

ter than the average success. He had 5,000 pots, using bulbs from Barnard and Henderson, and nearly all made stems above eighteen inches. Felix Reichling says the cut of carnations the first half of April was one-third less than last year and the cut of roses one-fourth heavier.

The Easter flower show at Garfield park opened Palm Sunday and over 5,000 people passed the counter in the first eight hours. It was a good show and people who saw it told their friends. All the other parks also have special Easter displays, free to the public and at least as accessible as the Coliseum.

The strength of the demand for cuttings of Carnation White Perfection is noted by Wietor Bros., who say that with many growers it is increasing in popularity, while with them they rate it below both Matchless and White Enchantress and will drop it after this season.

Whether it was good luck or keen business foresight makes no difference, the fact remains that Joseph Ziska & Sons have been enjoying the benefits of a stock of crepe paper bought before the advance in price took place and held until values had not only nearly doubled but green had become practically unobtainable at any price.

Anton Then's pot plants for Easter and say he was cleaned out of everything but lilies and spiræas as early as April 14.

The last ten days have been most inauspicious for visitors to the establishment of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove. Everywhere scenes of activity greeted the eye. And on every bench in the plant department were stuck among the several ranks of pots the sign "Sold." In the Easter lily houses, electric lights were strung about overhead—mute evidence of night work. August Poehlmann says there has been practically a clean-up, and the supply was unusually large.

Joseph Foerster is much relieved at the complete recovery of his little daughter, who has been ill with scarlet fever.

At Winterson's Seed Store night work was supplemented by a 14-hour shift on Palm Sunday in the effort to catch up with orders.

A 7-passenger touring car has been added to the automobile fleet of Simpson's Flower Shop, 3656 Ogden avenue, according to C. B. Le Mer.

Forty carloads, 12,500 bags, of Wizard manures are being used by one Chicago park system this season, according to the Pulverized Manure Co.

A recent trip made by Sidney Buchbinder resulted in two nice orders for Buchbinder Bros. A special 15-foot refrigerator is being built for the Eldridge Floral Co., of Minneapolis, and another of smaller size for the Winona Floral Co., of Winona, Minn.

Orders for nursery stock are unusually heavy, according to D. D. P. Roy, who is working on several nice landscaping contracts.

Late April 15, two small bootblacks stopped to admire the flowers in front of the Chicago Floral House, 41 West Randolph street. They appealed to the boys and one of them snatched a large bouquet and away they went. A policeman caught one of them—the one without the flowers. He was turned over to his parents.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Various Notes.

General satisfaction is expressed at the announcement that the Department of Agriculture has promised to give careful consideration to the request of Newport that an inspector of the federal horticultural board be permanently stationed in this city, for the examination of plants, shrubs, etc., to be shipped in interstate commerce, so that the shipments will not have to be routed through Providence, where such an inspector now is stationed.

V. A. Vanicek read an interesting and instructive paper on the propagation of shrubs at the semimonthly meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, April 11. There were several talks by members who had visited the recent flower shows in New York and Philadelphia. Richard Gardner, John Baumgartner and John B. The Market.

The week ending April 19 has been rather uneven, with a stronger tone as Easter approaches. Roses have been plentiful, selling cheaply at times. Carnations, on the other hand, have shown a tendency that might almost be called scarcity, although perhaps that is rather a strong term under the circumstances. Good, bright-colored carnations have brought excellent prices; faded or poorly grown stock has sold cheaply. Sweet peas, though in good supply, have sold quite well. Advance orders for Easter indicate that the buyers fear a scarcity of peas and seek to cover. The really scarce flower on the list is the orchid. Cattleya Mossiæ is depended on for Easter. To make way for it, the less desirable Cattleya Schroederæ was pushed off a fortnight ago on a rather reluctant market. Unfortunately, the Mossiæ depended on for this Easter came from a different section than usual. The result is that they positively refuse to bloom before May, the further result being that the price is advancing to towering heights, an unfortunate condition.

Easter lilies are plentiful, with indications of a heavy demand that will only balk at the shorts. It is more than likely that double violets will hold out; the singles are pretty well over. Southern daffodils continue an important flower to the quantity buyers; they are hardly good enough to have much effect on greenhouse-grown varieties. Iris is beginning to come in quite freely, a novelty for Easter.

The Bermuda Lily.

It was announced in this column some weeks ago that Fred J. Michell, Sr., was going, on his first real holiday, to Bermuda. While on a pleasure holiday in the island of flowers, so active a man as Mr. Michell would not allow the opportunity to pass without adding to his store of knowledge on matters horticultural. The farmers in Bermuda are nearly all Portuguese. They speak English imperfectly and are not well organized to carry on their business profitably. Those who grow lilies often receive so little for the bulbs that it discourages them. They know nothing of packing and do not get their product to our market in fit condition unless an outsider steps in, attends to the grading and packing and, generally, takes the profit. Under these conditions it is not surprising that the lily disease remains a serious menace. Add to this trouble the high price of labor, often inefficient, and it will be readily understood why lily growing in Bermuda makes little headway. There are some fields of lilies in splendid condition, but even these cannot compete in price with the Japanese lilies.

Potato growing is increasing. Three crops are harvested in one year and they are fine. Onions are grown in moderate numbers. There are great fields of parsley and lettuce grown for the New York market. The British government has established an agricultural station for the purpose of helping the farmers by testing their seeds and giving them cultural aid.

Various Notes.

E. R. Martin purchased the retail business, lease, good will and fixtures at 1725 Chestnut street April 17, from the creditors of Ludwig P. Vollers. Mr. Martin assumed control April 18, but it will take a few days more to obtain the court's legal assent.

Rodman M. Eisenhart, of Torresdale, Pa., was a successful sweet pea exhibitor at the New York show.

Milton H. Bickley issued invitations for Palm Sunday to his greenhouses at Palmer's Corner, Chester, Pa. A large crowd visited the place during the day, enjoying the fine azaleas, spiræas, hyacinths, carnations, etc. Mr. Bickley was assisted throughout the day by William J. Muth, which perhaps accounts for the rumor that three stunning King houses will be added to the plant ere long.

H. Bayersdorfer paid his fifth visit to the British legation in Washington April 13. Mr. Bayersdorfer is fighting hard to recover a permit for his German goods to come here. It was issued some time ago. No one seems to know just where this permit may be. Its recovery entails a lot of hard work.

Walter Davis has been assisting E. R. Martin in his new store this week. Mr. Martin will continue his downtown store, on Passayunk avenue.

The M. Rice Co. has followed a record-breaking Easter season with an early start for Memorial day. Two of the enterprising young men have just returned from a most encouraging visit to Boston.

The Florex Gardens has commenced work on a new barn of hollow tile and concrete construction. It will be large enough to house sixty head of cattle. A large silo will be erected.

The Henry F. Michell Co. has contracted for a commodious new office building and garage at Andalusia. They will be built on the latest lines, of hollow tile and concrete.

Alfred M. Campbell has an overflow store this week. It is at 1512 Sansom street.

The Public Ledger devoted the entire front page of its pictorial section April 9 to a reproduction of the Charles Henry Fox design in flowers, "A Bit of Old Rome," which took the Public Ledger prize at the N. F. S. The idea was illustrated in The Review some years ago, when Mr. Fox first brought it out.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The market closed on Saturday, April 15, with a bountiful supply of stock, particularly roses and lilies. Beauties of late have been dragging, though the quality is fine. The Killarneys, especially White Killarney, have been accumulating. Other roses continue to sell. Of course, all roses below excellent are hanging just at present. Carnations have shown no appreciable change. The quality is good, with a small percentage of splits. Easter lilies are plentiful. Callas, too, are sufficient for all requirements. Cattleyas and valley are none too plentiful. Violets are selling fairly well. Sweet peas are good and greatly exceed the violets in quantity.

Some excellent snapdragon is to be had, but the sales are rather slow. Daffodils and jonquils are improving in quality and are considered good for this time of the season. Freesias and Roman hyacinths are hardly to be considered, because they are nearly done for. The single white tulips are not selling so well as they might, but the double ones sell readily. Smilax and boxwood continue short, particularly the latter. Asparagus is abundant.

Various Notes.

Walter Stroh, of Batavia, was in town last week.

A display of seasonable decorative plants was to be seen at Felton's Flower Shop last week.

A huge assortment of seasonable plants, including some extra fine specimens, was on display at S. A. Anderson's annual Palm Sunday flower show. This is always largely attended and always creates much comment. A. E.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

It was hardly a good Saturday last week, following six dull days during which stock accumulated. There was a surplus to dispose of and prices were considerably shaded before the iceboxes were cleared. Prices naturally will harden during the present week. I suppose it will be a plant Easter, as usual, for every plant of all the growers in this section had been sold and delivery made by April 19.

In the cut flower market American Beauties now are abundant and prices have fallen. Good stock last week sold as low as $10 per hundred. In small quantities the selects touched $25. The experts declared there would be no great advance in anything for Easter. The rose market, however, is not overstocked. Hadley still is a great favorite and its best blooms sell at $30; so do the best C. Brunner roses. Euler, Russell and Ophelia are favorites and the public is fortunate in having so many splendid varieties to choose from. Carnations are stronger, some choice arrivals even touching $4 per hundred April 15. Many, however, sold at $3 per hundred, and anything not up to the standard fell to $2 and under. Good prices were expected for Easter. Orchids have advanced and promise excellent values, some of the best cattleyas selling at 50 cents. There are, however, many inferior blooms, on which it is hard to realize over 15 or 20 cents each. Mossiæ leads the list. There have been low figures on the longiflorum, 3 and 4 cents each for the short-stemmed and not more than 8 cents for the best of them. It was thought the top for Easter would be $10 per hundred.

Valley is not so plentiful and prices have been up to 4 cents. Of gardenias there is no end and the prices remain down, only the selected bringing $2 per dozen. Bulbous stock is abundant and good prices have been maintained. The tulips are selling well and are of fine quality. There are large quantities of daffodils. The southern shipments continue, but are lacking in quality. Narcissi and freesia are in limited supply. There are plenty of callas and an overwhelming supply of sweet peas and violets.

Much of the market's developments depends upon the weather. There are daisies, lilac, pansies, stocks and snapdragon in great abundance and all the seasonable flowers of the springtime.

Various Notes.

April 14 Professor Waugh, of Amherst, Mass., lectured in the Museum building, Bronx park, on "How the Landscape Gardener Uses Plants." Arthur Cowee, of Berlin, N. Y., will lecture on "The Gladiolus," April 22. These Saturday lectures will continue every week until June 10.

Palm Sunday absorbed all the leaves of the florists' supply houses that could be secured for the commemorative occasion. More than 100,000 palm branches were shipped to New York for this year's demand.

Secretary John Young smilingly announces that there were more than $40,000 in gate receipts at the flower show—a remarkable success, with every prospect of a splendid profit when the final returns are made.

MAMARONECK, N. Y.

A good percentage of the membership of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was present at the monthly meeting held in the society's rooms in Hubbard hall, Greenwich, Conn., April 14. President Seeley presided. Two new members were elected and several proposals were received and filed. Harry Turner, of the Morris Nursery Co., addressed the members briefly. A number of letters were read from friends in the trade and others, offering prizes for the summer and fall exhibitions. The summer show will be held at Mamaroneck, in June, the exact date to be announced later. The fall show will be held at Greenwich, Conn., October 31 and November 1. A splendid schedule is in preparation that will give every grower a chance, whether large or small. An attractive list of prizes will be offered, consisting of cash, cut glass and silverware. A discussion of the various features of the two great shows recently held at Philadelphia and New York brought out some interesting facts.

A feature of the meeting was the splendid display on the exhibition tables. The following awards were made: Honorable mention to R. Grunnert for Carnation Matchless; Carnation Alma Ward, by J. Linane, honorable mention; Ophelia roses, by James Stuart, cultural certificate; American Beauties, by J. Foster, cultural certificate; tulips in twenty-four varieties, by P. W. Popp, certificate of merit. The next meeting will be held May 12.

The Market.

Trade showed considerably more life last week, although there was nothing in the way of big events and Palm Sunday does not figure more than a good Saturday. The indications now are for a big cut of Easter flowers, which will keep prices down on everything. Roses will be plentiful, but there will not be any great quantity of bulbous stock. There will be enough valley to supply all needs, besides quantities of sweet peas. Cattleyas may be short of the demand, as they are largely taking the place of violets, but there will be enough flowers of some sort to take care of all orders.

One of the peculiar circumstances is the almost complete dropping of the use of violets and many are asking how they may be brought back into their own. Probably the only way it can be done will be to stop growing them entirely for a couple of years and then bring them back as a novelty, for orchids and sweet peas have put them out of business.

The use of artificial flowers for decorative purposes has certainly made a wonderful advance this year, as not only the department stores but all who decorate windows seem to find use for a basket or vase of some kind of artificial material.

Various Notes.

The public conservatories, both at Schenley park and the North Side park, have made great efforts to hold their bulbous flowers for their Easter displays, which are looked forward to annually as a great treat and are visited by thousands every day. On Sunday it is no unusual occurrence to see a line of people almost a quarter of a mile long waiting to pass through the houses. Superintendent George Burke and his able assistants, John Jones and James Moore, surely deserve great credit for the artistic arrangement of their displays. At many other places the men in charge may grow as good stock and have as beautiful flowers, but in few other places will they empty five or six houses so as to arrange the stock for color effects and so as to show the many varieties of flowers to the best advantage. With such arrange-

The Market.

Prospects for a fine Easter business are excellent. The middle west has had a good share of the prosperity that has invaded the country, the kind of invasion we all want. All lines of manufacture are busy. Traveling salesmen report good orders in the various horticultural lines and, moreover, that collections are good. Minneapolis growers have fine stocks and have booked orders well in advance. Easter stock is nearly all sold. The weather is changeable from bright, hot spells to snow flurries. All florists hope for fine weather at Easter. If we have it, we shall have a banner business.

Various Notes.

The Hiawatha Gardens Co. had sold all its lily stock by April 10. This company has a fine lot of roses, both in pots and for cutting.

The Chicago Avenue Greenhouses report a good, steady trade, with funeral work above the average for the season.

The Lakewood Cemetery Greenhouses have disposed of all the lilies and primroses. The association has a fine lot of La Reine, Murillo and other tulips for the Easter cut.

The Sunshine Florists last week had a good decoration, consisting of fancy roses and other flowers, with a unique arrangement of dolls and ribbons. They have a new delivery car, specially constructed for delivering plants.
